Position of French Force In Turkish Asia Minor Reported Serious

LLOYD GEORGE HINTS AT EXTENSIVE MOVE

'Porte's' Exact Status Is Mystery But Martial Law Prevails

LONDON, Mar. 9.—A new government headed by Sali Pasha has been formed in Constantinople, a dispatch today said. The new cabinet, according to the dispatch, includes most of the members of the receding government.

The exact situation in the Turkish capital today was not clear. Latest reports from official messages received here indicated that Constantinople is under martial law, and controlled by British soldiers. The Turks were reported stirring up Arabians, Mesopotamians and Thracians.

Position of French forces in Cilicia (Turkish Asia Minor) was described as serious. The French, it was said, are menaced by large bodies of Turkish nationalist troops of the forces of Mustafa Kemal, leader of the Turkish rebels.

Occupation of Constantinople, it was intimated, may be permanent, the British taking the position that the safety of Allied commerce demands full protection for the "gateway to the East."

Outbreaks Occur
Some outbreaks have occurred in Constantinople, official messages said, but it was believed the Allied force there is sufficient to prevent the disturbances assuming serious proportions.

French dispatches indicated the British government is considerably displeased at the turn in Turkish events and feels that Great Britain, Italy and Greece have combined to force through a program to which they know France is opposed.

Meantime there were indications that the conferences here will again take up the Turkish question to devise a formal plan for settling the entire Turkish question. Premier Lloyd George's statement in the House of Commons yesterday that the government had information that 16,000 Armenians have been massacred in Turkish Asia Minor, was taken to mean that opinion is being prepared for extensive action there.

The French, Lloyd George said, are sending reinforcements to their troops in Cilicia, re-establishing their positions to protect Armenians.

PINCHOT SUCCESSOR QUILTS FORESTRY POST

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—Henry S. Graves, head of the federal forestry service since Gifford Pinchot, has resigned to return to private life. Mr. Graves headed the Yale forestry school before entering government service and was at the head of the lumber operations conducted by the American expeditionary forces in France.

The poor pay of scientific men in the government service was given by Mr. Graves as the necessity compelling him to leave the position of chief forester.

H. C. L. BLAMED AS PUPILS UNDERWEIGHT

COLUMBUS, Ind., Mar. 9.—Declaration on the part of parents of boys and girls attending the public schools of Columbus that their children were under-nourished because of the high cost of living has resulted in an investigation of conditions. The investigation, as far as it has proceeded shows that 46 per cent of the children are more than four pounds underweight. Only 12 per cent of the thousands that attend school have been found to be normal in poundage.

YOUTH FAILS IN SUIT FOR ANNULMENT OF WEDDING AS LICENSE BOOK BLOCKS PATH

Clayton Sunburg, of Orange, proved himself to be extremely forgetful when he appeared on the witness stand in Judge West's court today and testified in connection with his petition for an annulment of his marriage to Hazel Bentz Sunburg, that although he was a minor when the license was secured he was neither asked any questions as to his age or asked to swear to the facts set forth in his application for the license.

The marriage license record of February 2, 1915, proved to be the stumbling block to Sunburg's story. This great recorder of joy and happiness and sometimes sorrow and woe not only showed conclusively that Sunburg had been asked as to his age and the age of his bride, but that the parents of both had given their consent to the marriage, these consents also showing the age of the couple.

When these facts were presented from the silent witness it took Judge West just as long to deny the application for annulment as the time consumed in speaking the words. To the court this was positive and absolute testimony.

Attorney L. F. Coburn, of Orange, representing Sunburg, is expected to file at an early date a petition for divorce for his client now that the marriage has been held legal. It is said that Mrs. Sunburg is being held in an institution in Missouri. At the time the marriage license was issued Sunburg was 18 and his bride 16 years old.

Temporary G. O. P. Chiefs Will Be Named in April

CHICAGO, Mar. 9.—Appointment of temporary officers for the Republican National Convention here June 8, will be named in Chicago in April, it was learned today.

A call for the meeting of the Republican committee on arrangements which appoints the officers, is expected to be issued within the next two weeks.

So far only two names have received much attention for the chairmanship, it was learned.

They are Senator Lodge, Republican leader in the senate, and Elihu Root, former secretary of state. Supporters of Major General Leonard Wood here while not outspoken about it, were inclined to favor the selection of Root. The appointment of Frank H. Hitchcock, close assistant of Root during Roosevelt's second term, as Wood's campaign manager, strengthens belief in that leaning. Others mentioned for the chairmanship were former Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana and Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois.

Hitchcock, Wood and Col. W. C. Procter, millionaire soap manufacturer of Cincinnati, were expected to confer today with Wood boosters on future plans.

Work of preparing the platform which will be submitted to the G. O. P. convention is proceeding steadily, Hays said.

More than a thousand replies have been received at the Washington headquarters of the Republican National Committee, in response to the offer of $10,000 in prizes by Truxton Beale, former minister to Persia, for the best suggestions for a Republican platform. The winner will be announced April 1.

KICK WINS LIBERTY FOR CRATED COW ELK

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Mar. 9.—Kicking at the opportune moment returned to a Yellowstone Park cow elk the freedom of the hills, early one Saturday morning lately a few seconds before the elk was to be loaded on an express car of the North Coast Limited for shipment to an eastern park. With three other elk the one which escaped was in a crate on the station platform at Livingston. Just as the limited drew into the local yards the elk gave a final kick and the crate gave way. Galloping down Main street the elk disappeared in the darkness, while its fellows were loaded on the express car.

Mrs. Gaines claimed that the stock passed to her from the estate of her father. The stock, fifty shares issued by the Huyler corporation, is declared by Mrs. Gaines to have been come her property in 1885.

Coultter, Frank and David Huyler, nephews of Mrs. Gaines, received their stock from the estate of their father.

MAN REPORTED SLAIN IN HOLD-UP APPEARS

SIoux CITY, Ia., Mar. 9.—While his parents were attending his "funeral" in Johnston, Neb., recently, Dewey Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kinney, walked into Police Headquarters here and declared he was not dead. Kinney was reported shot and killed in a hold-up in Sioux City, Neb., several days previously.

The body of the man believed to be Kinney was declared that of Sam Corlinsky, pal of a bandit suspect held in the city jail here. The suspect declared Corlinsky was accidentally shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinney came from Johnston Cemetery to Sioux City to meet their son. He was held in jail as a material witness in the case against the bandit suspect.

He said he did not know he had been reported dead until he read a story of his supposed death in a newspaper in Nebraska.

SACRIFICES HERSELF TO FEED CANINE PAL

In the opinion of the examining doctor she died of pleurisy accelerated by starvation. She lived in a cottage on Cornfield Road, where her only companion was a dog, who was particularly well nourished. The testimony showed that she had a regular income of $50 a month, and spent most of it for food for the dog.

Bloch took a train in which his wife objected to the dangers of the trip by air. Bloch said he would reach Charleston, W. Va., in time to vote to ratify the suffrage amendment. A report from Republican National headquarters here said that State Senator Montgomery of West Virginia, anti-suffragist, also was racing for Charleston. Montgomery now lives in Indiana, but retains his office in West Virginia, it was said.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—The senate today adopted the Lenroot reservation on voting powers in the League of Nations with an amendment by Senator Lodge.

Adoption of this reservation cleared the way to taking up the reservation on Article 10, the central question in the treaty controversy.

The reservation as adopted provides that the United States shall not be bound by any decision, in the making of which any other country has more votes than the United States. The vote on the reservation was 57 to 20.

Discussion of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock refusing a treaty compromise broke out in the senate today soon after it met. Lodge opened the debate.

Efforts to agree on a compromise on Article 10 reservation continued. A new reservation was agreed upon by Republican leaders, including Senator Lodge, and was accepted by some Democrats. Whether enough Democrats will agree to it is not yet apparent, but it will be offered by the Republicans. Elihu Root is credited with having given impetus to this latest compromise move. He advised Lodge and other Republican leaders this week to do their utmost by changing the phraseology of reservations to win over enough Democrats to bring about ratification.

Lodge declared he thought "What the president said about France was most unfortunate." He then quoted the portion of the letter in which Wilson said that imperialists and militarists are in control of the French government.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—"The league, as it stands or no league at all" is the issue in the treaty fight as President Wilson sees it, in the opinion of senators of both parties who today discussed Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock.

Senators Borah and Hitchcock, who represent the extremes, agreed that the president had clearly drawn the issue and that if the treaty goes into the campaign, it will be upon that basis.

At the same time, senators working for a compromise on the reservation to article X continued their work. They read into Wilson's letter an implication that he would accept, against his will, the bi-partisan reservation to article X.

The question of how far the president's letter will affect Democratic senators who have been wavering, probably will be answered only when the final roll is called on the treaty. Sees No Change

Hitchcock, the Democratic leader, said in his judgment the letter would not change the situation. "The bit-unders" were pleased to note that the president wanted the issue as clear cut as they want it, Borah said. Borah has maintained that the only way to go to the people in the campaign on the treaty is on an issue of the treaty as it stands or no treaty at all.

Republican mild reservationists were inclined to be angry at the "wild" description of them, as "wild nullifiers." The letter may send them back into the Lodge camp, it was believed.

Lodge and his group said the letter was "typical" Lodge, refraining from formal comment, called attention to the "delightful passages." In the letter, "particularly the one in which he attacks France."

Senators Borah and McCormick, Illinois, expected to bring up the letter today in speeches. It seemed likely that one of its effects will be to lengthen debate on article X.

In some quarters it was firmly believed the president's letter constituted the last act needed to insure the defeat of the peace treaty.

The president said that ratification of the treaty with reservations, and more particularly article X, would be a nullification of all the pledges upon which the United States entered the war, and of all the moral obligations to establish an organization for world peace.

With particular reference to article X, the president stated that it was "cuts at the very life and heart of the covenant" and would mark the United States as desiring to return to the old world of jealous rivalry and misunderstanding. "From which our gallant soldiers have rescued us, and would leave us without any vision or new conception of justice and peace."

"I feel," said the president, "that

Across Pacific Air Dash by Gigantic U. S. Navy Craft Due

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—Preparations are now being made by the United States navy to send two great flying boats across the Pacific to Manila and from thence to China, according to an announcement made at the national Air-craft Show here.

The planes for the 8,000 mile flight will be twice as large as the "Nancies" which made the trans-Atlantic flight and are now under construction, it was said.

The "hop-off" is scheduled for next month.

POLY'S BOOSTERS OF ATHLETICS WILL RUN STAND NEAR CIRCUS

"Peanuts! Ice cream! Soda pop!" These are war cries which will emanate from a "stand" to be operated near the circus "lot" tomorrow by the Letter Man's Club, just formed at the Santa Ana High School to stimulate interest in athletics.

The profits which will accrue from the venture will go in part to the purchase of cups which will be put up by the club for competition among the various grammar schools of the city.

Leland Plavan, Harold Finley and Harry Lebard are the men who will have charge of the "hot dog" stand.

WAR LOVE TRIANGLE BARED IN CHICAGO AS TWO FOUND DEAD

CHICAGO, Mar. 9.—A war love triangle was revealed here today, when Clifford Melville Bleyer, 36 years old, head of the Clifford Bleyer Advertising Agency, and Mrs. Ruth Randall, divorced wife of an overseas soldier, were found dead together.

Police today worked on theory that Mrs. Randall killed Bleyer and then took her own life as they lay in her bed.

The deaths were revealed when an investigation was ordered by Mrs. Bleyer after her husband had been missing from home two nights.

Police believe the tragedy occurred Saturday night.

A verse believed written by Mrs. Randall and found beside the bed where the two lay, furnished police, said that Mrs. Randall killed Bleyer, then took her own life. One line read:

"We shall keep our secret closely hid beneath the coffin lid."

EDISON WORK STOPS FOR TODD FUNERAL

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—The war

was prolonged four months by the failure of the navy department to act promptly on recommendations of Allied naval authorities and himself, Rear Admiral William S. Sims declared today before the Senate Naval Affairs Sub-Committee, testifying in its probe of the navy's war work.

In the first few months of the war, he said, the navy pursued "vacillating" and "hand-to-mouth policies."

Sims, who was the first witness called, attacked the American naval policy and Secretary Daniels and in beginning his testimony charged:

"That the navy's failure to co-operate fully with the Allies resulted in needless sacrifices.

That Sims' efforts to get team work were "delayed or nullified."

That Daniels committed a "manifest outrage" in making public one of Sims' letters regarding Admiral Wilson and various other naval officers and sending it out by radio.

"That a campaign of deliberate propaganda" had been resorted to by Daniels to injure Sims."

MRS. THORKILDSEN'S $2000 CAPE STOLEN

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Scores of thieves operating in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon and Monday secured clothing, jewelry and Liberty bonds totaling about $27,000, according to reports made to detective headquarters. The robbers stole from parked automobiles, houses and hotel rooms, while the pickpockets worked in the crowded street cars and railway stations.

All Southern California pawnshops are being watched for a fur coat valued at $15,000 that was stolen from Edward R. Rotte at a downtown hotel, and a sable cape valued at $2000 which Mrs. Selma Thorkildsen, who gained notoriety as the result of the divorce trial recently ended, reported stolen from her at San Diego yesterday.

Primary planned for Wood, says Johnson

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Mar. 9.—

Senator Hiram Johnson of California again assailed the Republican State primary for presidential endorsement to take place March 15 in the opening address of his Minnesota campaign here yesterday.

In a speech he reiterated declarations that the primary was arranged in the interests of General Wood.

"The American expedition to Siberia is an instance of what would happen from participation in the League of Nations," said Senator Johnson, in touching upon national issues. "We went there without a policy and we came out without a policy."

MARY PICKFORD AT L. A. MAKES HER WILL

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Mary Pickford has made her will providing for the distribution of her millions in case of her death.

And, according to the "Queen of Screenland," it was this will and not a desire to marry Douglas Fairbanks that caused her to stage her divorce drama in Nevada. She declared her numerous business transactions were handicapped and made intricate by the domestic differences growing out of her marriage to Owen Moore, and that after years of waiting and fighting against the inevitable she yielded and took the step which set freedom and motion picture fans throughout the nation agog.

"Every one has her life to live, and mine is only a small part in this big world," said Miss Pickford at her bungalow.

"ON WITH THE DANCE"

Big Production Starring Mae Murray and David Powell, at the Temple Theater for Four Days This Week Starting Thursday.

MAE MURRAY and DAVID POWELL in a scene from the GEORGE FITZMAURICE production "ON WITH THE DANCE," A PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT PICTURE

MAE MURRAY'S COSTUMES

SAN DIEGO TEACHER FILES IN BANKRUPTCY

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—More forceful than a dozen orations on the need for increased teachers' salaries is a petition of bankruptcy filed in federal court by Miss Cornelia C. Foster of San Diego. Although her debts do not run into four figures, she stated in the petition that she is without funds to pay an attorney for drawing up the papers. She gave her liabilities as $572 and assets as $166.25, the latter sum representing clothing, books and tools. According to her statement, her services as teacher in the Central grammar school of East San Diego bring her only $41.25 per month. The petition reads: "That affiant is an unmarried woman and that the salary which she receives as a teacher is very small and barely sufficient to provide her with the common necessities of life, owing to the fact that her credit has been ruined through several judgments having been taken against her."

Sing a song of sixpence, a pocketful of rye, That was, oh, so long ago. Ah, how time does fly! Now sixpence will buy nothing. And a pocketful of rye Is worth its weight in good doubloons, the price has gone so high. —Scissors.

RAILWAY MEN FAVOR STRIKE OF 400,000

CHICAGO, Mar. 9.—Grand Lodge heads of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Signal Workers were scheduled to decide today whether to call the 400,000 members out on strike.

Sentiment favoring a strike which might tie up all the nation's railroads ran high at sessions yesterday.

An Epitaph

"Remember, friends, as you pass by, As you are now, so once was I, As I am now, so you will be, Prepare for death, and follow me."

Old Resident Given Up By Physicians

"Given up by five doctors, my only hope an operation. I rebelled on cutting me open, as I am 75 years old. A neighbor advised trying Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble. I got relief right away. I had not eaten for 10 days and was as yellow as a gold piece. I could have lived only a few days but for this medicine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. All druggists.—Adv.

STOCKTON, Cal., Mar. 9.—Ray Jordan, new Seal spitball hurler, who has not yet donned a uniform, is recovering from an attack of ptomaine poisoning suffered just after his arrival. Herb Hunter, actor ball player, is another new comer in the Seal camp.

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 9.—Members of the Beaver baseball squad, enroute to Ontario, Calif., are scheduled to stop at Sacramento today and start their spring work by getting some pointers in watching Bill Rodgers' gang work out.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Mar. 9.—Fred Mollwitz received from Manager Rickey of the Cardinals, looks like the best fielding firstbaseman seen on the local lot.

Walt McRedie and thirteen of his Beavers dropped into town this morning on their way to Ontario.

Do not take women from the bedside of those who suffer; it is their post of honor.—Mme. Cecile Fee.

PUTTING STOP TO YOUNGSTER RAIDS

SAN DIEGO, Mar. 10.—County Horticultural Commissioner Gorton of San Diego has been compelled to use repression measure against the small boys when their maraudings graduated from a "retail to a whole sale business." He says in a letter to Director Hecke: "In San Diego county we have suffered quite an annual loss of fruit and damage to trees. We were flooded with complaints from the growers not only for loss of fruit which was sustained, which was not inconsiderable, but by the fact that the boys sometimes would do four or five dollars worth of damage to a tree in obtaining twenty-five cents worth of fruit. No one else seemed able to handle it so in one district I instructed the inspector on his way home to gather up all of the small boys in possession of fruit for which they could not give a pedigree and bring them in to the Probation Officer for his attention. I believe that this action has caused an appreciable decrease in this sort of thing and it really did not take over five or ten minutes of the inspector's time to handle it."

For Sale: Furniture for 3-room house. Must be sold at once. Phone 415-W, 792-R or 28 (phone office) or call at 714 South Main. Will be at 637 Riverine, where furniture can be seen, from 10:00 to 2:30.

HOT BATTLES AT BISBEE FORECAST

BY M. D. TRACY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

TOMBSTONE, Mar. 9.—The pleading of self-defense as justification for kidnapping, apparently will be the unique situation which the Bisbee deportation trial will develop when the taking of evidence begins. Court sessions will resume tomorrow and attorneys for both sides are busily engaged preparing for what is expected to be a hot battle.

The evidence, it is apparent, will seek to establish these general contentions:

The prosecution will first seek to prove that H. E. Wooten kidnapped Fred W. Brown, that being the specific issue in the trial.

The state will then try to show that the alleged kidnapping of Brown was part of a general conspiracy among the 211 defendants to drive all striking miners and their sympathizers from the Bisbee Warren mining district.

Defense Answer

The defense, in its answer, is expected to try to prove that the strikers had conspired to tie up the Arizona mines; that they were I. W. W. and disloyal and that the deportation was necessary as a means of defending themselves, as well as defending the United States government against the alleged plan.

During the first week of evidence, it is believed the latitude of testimony to be allowed will be determined. Rumors of sensational evidence around, but it is frankly admitted by both the prosecution and the defense that it remains to be seen how much evidence will actually enter into the trial.

When court convenes tomorrow, 12 of the 24 jurors will be dismissed as the first move.

The jury, which is kept locked up, took a long walk today. The diet has been reduced to two meals daily. Members of the jury felt that three meals were too much now that they were forced to abandon their active life in the open.

SENATE VOTE PAVES

could not look the soldiers of our gallant armies in the face again if I did not do everything in my power to remove every obstacle in the way of adoption of this particular article of the covenant because we made these pledges to them as well as to the rest of the world and it was to this cause they deemed themselves devoted in a spirit of crusaders. I should be forever unfaithful to them if I did not do my utmost to fulfill the high purpose for which they fought.

The president did not consider it necessary, he said, to stipulate in connection with Article X the constitutional methods that should be used to fill the country's constitutional obligations under it.

"It was understood," President Wilson continued, "as a matter of course at the conference in Paris whatever obligations any government assumed, of whatever duties it undertook under the treaty, would have to be fulfilled by its usual and established constitutional methods of action."

Sees Nullification

Later, in his letter, the chief executive said, "There can be no objection to explaining again what our constitutional method is—that Congress alone can declare war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on land or on the sea."

"I am sorry to say reservations which have come under my notice are, almost without exception, not in interpretation of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them, but in effect virtual nullification of these articles."

A RECIPE FOR CEMENT

Four parts of iron filings, two of lime, a fifth part of common salt, mixed to a paste by the addition of vinegar makes an excellent cement for spark plugs, for connecting pipes, etc. When properly compounded this cement will withstand compression and heat and can be air dried.

YOU WOULDN'T TRY TO TAME A WILD-CAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous Dangerous Calomel.

Calomel salivates. It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with your bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than any other remedy without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

LIEUT. DEAYER BURIED WITH HONORS

Further details concerning the death of Lieut. Charles L. Deaver, who was teaching in the history department of Santa Ana High School when he went into the army, have been secured from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Deaver of Riverside. A letter received by them from Dr. H. W. Kimbley, a former Riverside boy, now in San Francisco, states that Dr. Kimbley talked in San Francisco to the former German officer who knew Lieut. Deaver when he was in a German hospital. The German recognized Lieut. Deaver's picture upon a bulletin posted in San Francisco.

Lieut. Deaver was taken prisoner while suffering from shell shock and gas on Oct. 6, 1918. He died on December 1, 1918, while walking in the grounds of a military hospital in Munster, in the province of Westphalia, near the Holland border. He was buried by the Germans with full military honors of one of his rank. His grave is marked by a wooden slab on which is inscribed:

"Here rests in God, Lieut. Charles L. Deaver, from the American army. He died for his country."

At the time of his death Deaver had apparently regained his strength, but his mind was a blank, except that he often spoke of his mother and of San Francisco, but could not remember where his parents lived. He could neither read nor write, according to the information given by the German officer.

On the morning of November 29, 1918, Lieut. Deaver was confined to bed, not feeling well. He stated that he felt stupid and could not eat. The hospital physician, the letter states, could not understand his case except that his suffering was from the effects of shell shock.

The German officer told Dr. Kimbley that he was with Lieut. Deaver all the time he was in the hospital and had taken him to meet his aunt and sister who lived near the hospital.

The young officer was given every attention in the hospital and he became a favorite with the Germans and other prisoners. His death came suddenly as he was walking in a garden. A nurse rushed to his aid but life was extinct when she reached him. He was buried in the uniform of an American officer.

SAYS BLAST PERILS LIE IN DYESTUFFS

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—Certain common dyestuffs are dangerous explosives, Dr. L. C. Cone of the National Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering (New York), calls attention to this little expected peril.

"A dye widely used for khaki shades on wool during the war was known as chrome yellow," he writes. "This was made in very large quantities, dried, ground, packed and shipped. It is doubtful if a single producer of this dye tested this material for its explosive properties before he began to produce it on a commercial scale, yet, as I can quickly demonstrate to you by igniting a small portion of the dye, its quick burning properties render it more dangerous than many of our violent explosives."

"It is further doubtful if a single producer of this dye escaped the penalties of his failure to test the product. One large producer informed me that the total profits from his company's manufacture of this dye had been lost through disastrous fires and accidents."

"The same thing is true of another widely used chrome dye, which is frequently known as meta chrome brown. This product has been the cause of at least three disastrous explosions in different companies to my knowledge. With these experiences in mind we shall be very remiss in our duties if we do not examine every new dye for its explosive properties."

APPEAL TRANSCRIPT
IN NEW CASE FILED

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—The appeal of Harry New, convicted slayer of his 20-year-old sweetheart, Freda J. Lesser, was brought before the District Court of Appeals, Department 2, when a transcript of the trial proceedings was filed. The new fight is directed against the judgment of the jury, the sentence imposed by Superior Judge Galvin Craig and his order denying a new trial. The attorneys ask an entirely new trial.

According to Attorney John L. Richardson, of the defense counsel, briefs setting forth the alleged errors of the lower court will be filed within a few days. With the case before the higher bench the prosecution passes from the county district attorney's office to that of the state attorney general, although it was expected District Attorney Woolwine will lead the principal aid to the state.

SMOKELESS AMERICA CAMPAIGN PLANNED

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Smokeless America by 1925 is the aim of the International Cigarette League, organized as successor to the Anti-Cigarette League, it was announced here.

"Save the girl" is one slogan, and an effort will be made to enlist every girl in the "clean life army" of the league.

"Bad habits are the beginning of criminal careers," explained Miss Lucy Page Gaston, executive superintendent of the organization. A campaign for $100,000 to carry on the work will begin soon.

Public schools and women's clubs will be enlisted in the cause as well as churches.

SAY CEREAL DIET O. K. FOR BABIES

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—When infants about six months old fail to gain weight on a diet of milk mixtures that should suffice, a very small quantity of a cereal added to the diet brings about a marked and rapid change.

Dr. Alfred F. Hess and Lester J. Unger of New York, in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association remark that their experiments show that two or three grains of cereal added to the diet frequently caused an increase of two or three ounces of weight by the following day.

"The simplest and most direct explanation of this reaction," they say, "is that this carbohydrate brings about a more complete oxidation and thereby a better utilization of the food. However this may be, it illustrates the point that not everything which induces growth—and does not conform to accepted standards—is a vitamin."

Their study shows that infants often develop rickets while receiving generous diet and that when deprived of the fat-soluble vitamin they do not suffer, if their diet includes sufficient calories and is otherwise complete.

SAYS JAPS PLANNING
BIG MEXICO COLONY

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—Senator Phelan made the following statement yesterday:

"I have just received authentic information that at a point in Mexico about three miles south of the California boundary at Andrade, Cal., three Japanese companies have acquired 15,000 acres of land in parcels of 7000, 5000 and 3000 acres each with a view of establishing a Japanese settlement."

NATURE TO RESTORE
RACE VIGOR, CLAIM

LONDON, Mar. 9.—Many writers have laid stress upon the fact that Europe, in losing the flower of its youth upon the battlefield, has left only the least fit and most unhealthy to become the progenitors of future races. And they cite the effect of the Napoleonic wars on the physique and stamina of the French.

In answer to these pessimists the scientific editor of the Illustrated London News writes:

"Against this it may be urged that the recuperative power of nature soon reasserts itself, and no one who has watched present writers the year reviews on July 14 could point that, at the outbreak of the present war, the Frenchman had more than recovered the tall stature and the high muscular and nervous energy of his forefathers. While, therefore, we must expect a certain fall off in the physique of the children born between, say, 1914 and thirty years hence, we may be fairly confident that, given the maintenance of the present standard of living and the absence of any great epidemic, at the end of that time the English race will return to its pre-war standard of physical fitness."

RAINS BIG BENEFIT

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 9.—The recent rains have been sufficient in most sections of California to postpone the threatened cattle feed famine for at least six weeks on the Northern California ranges and pastures, according to reports received here by the California Cattlemen's Association. If the March rainfall is normal it will not be necessary to ship cattle out of the state.

Pat took out his pencil and wrote beneath the inscription:

"To follow you, I'm not content, Until I know which way you went."

BURGLARY MADE EASY BY AUTO LAW, CLAIM

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Burglary in Los Angeles is made easy by a state law, according to complaints made to the Chamber of Commerce. The law attacked, requires that the owner of an automobile display in a conspicuous place in the car his name and address, where all may read it.

Burglary is made easy, according to the complaints, because thieves may check up those who are attending theatres by their cars standing outside. It is said to be easy for anyone to obtain the name and address of the owner from an empty car, which, standing in front of a theatre is an advertisement that the owner probably is away from home for several hours and that the time is opportune for burglarizing his home.

The statement was made that because of this fact, laws throughout the Middle West similar to this one in California were repealed.

EX-WHALER IS TALKING AT CO. FARM TODAY

"Whale Oil Gus" Folger, a former sailor employed in old-time whaling expeditions, is at the County Farm this afternoon for the purpose of giving a free entertainment to those who live on the farm and at the County Hospital. Folger gave an entertainment at the high school here last week.

MISS SWALL HAS ENDED SERVICE AT HOSPITAL

Yesterday Miss Hazel Swall left the County Hospital, where she has been matron most of the time since it was built, and after a visit with relatives here for a time she will go east on a trip. Miss Swall resigned about a month ago. Her successor, Miss Grant, has been at the hospital since March 1.

COST OF SICKNESS

Preventable and curable sickness must not be overlooked among the reasons for the high cost of living, according to William Fellowes Morgan, trustee of the United Hospital fund for New York City.

Mr. Morgan has figures to prove that in New York City alone there are 150,000 persons ill daily, with diseases which could have been prevented, or could be cured quickly by proper treatment. The yearly loss in wages as a result of this sickness totals up the appalling sum of $54,000,000. Whether the working class can well afford such a loss is an idle question. It cannot. There is also, of course, a vast incidental loss to the community.

Every community has the same problem, though on a smaller scale. The solution is better education in the laws of health and cleanliness, and the prevention of accidents and disease. Such education not to be casual or sporadic, but part of a definite plan carefully drawn up by experts in such matters and carefully carried out. In connection with this educational program better hospital facilities are needed everywhere. The hospitals of this and should do, and would do if they country are not doing even a small percentage of the work they could were properly equipped and financed.

Nothing is of more concern to the public from an economic point of view than the public health. The community hoping to reduce the high cost of living must take measures for the reduction of preventable illness, or it will still have a leak which tends to drain the public purse.

RELEASING USELESS EMPLOYEES

The new secretary of agriculture, Edwin T. Meredith, made this statement shortly after assuming office: "Business men must look to the operations of their establishments, no matter in what line they may be engaged, and see that no useless employee is retained to add to the cost of distributing what the farmer produces. Useless employees must be released from nonproductive work that they may go into productive work and add to the sum total that may be distributed among all."

Well, the secretary of agriculture is a business man, of reputable ability and success. Therefore, he should take his own advice. Let reform, like charity, begin at home. If the Department of Agriculture is anything like the other departments at Washington, Mr. Meredith will soon discover there are all around him "useless employees" who "must be released from non-productive work that they may go into productive work and add to the sum total that may be distributed among all." Why not go ahead, and set a good example?

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR WOMEN

It has been estimated that in 1919 there were 11,000,000 women and girls in the United States who were wage earners. There is great need for further protective legislation in behalf of these workers. The workers themselves need some of the benefits of a suitable organization, and the employers and consumers need further education to meet the problems arising from this wholesale entrance of women into industry.

The National Society for Vocational Education and the Vocational Education Association of the Middle West suggests that there is another important remedy for the difficulties which confront women in industry. That is vocational education. They say:

"The fundamental aim of vocational education should be to fit the worker to pursue effectively some specialized work, to assure advantageous entrance to a wage-earning occupation and to make it clear that employment in one phase of specialized work is but one stage, from which she should advance as experience, maturity and additional training justify advancement."

This vocational education would make it possible for the woman industrial worker to know and enjoy her work. In the entrance of so many women into industrial positions there has been a great deal of haste. The first opportunity that offered had to be taken because the would-be worker did not know anything else she would rather do and did not even know for what kind of work she was best fitted. To find the work which enlists not only the worker's surface ability, but also her interest and latent ability, will be to find the solution to many anxieties and dissatisfactions and to improve conditions generally for women in industry and for industry itself.

TEACHING CIVICS

There is one branch of study which should have the most careful consideration in normal schools. It is the fitting of teachers of all grades for teaching civics and an understanding and respect for the laws and government of this country.

Up to the present day the teaching of civics has been confined to high school and college courses almost entirely. Yet recent developments have shown how necessary it is that teaching on these subjects should begin earlier than that.

Seventy-five per cent of the children who enter the public schools never reach the high schools, and it is among those children, after they leave school, that the pernicious doctrines which destroy governments find their fairest field.

There should be the highest and most stringent requirements as to the loyalty and soundness of the teachers' position in the matter of government and law, and there should be in every normal course provision for training teachers to present these subjects interestingly and intelligently from the lower to the higher grades.

"Give me the first ten years of a child's life, and I care not who has him afterwards," said one great authority on education. The importance of these first ten years in the formation of civic ideals must not be overlooked by the educative body, and their direction should be under those only who are qualified by principle and training to handle so delicate a task.

FIUME FACTS

If the United States is going to enter the League of Nations, and assume the obligations that membership entails, the United States naturally has an interest in seeing that the new Europe created out of the war is started off as consistently as possible with the principles on which the League is based. We don't want to undertake to uphold any more injustices than we can help, and we don't want to buy into any more ready-made wars.

This reasoning has direct application to Fiume, whose problem would have been settled to this country's satisfaction and Europe's safety long ago if it had not been for D'Annunzio's crazy exploit and the mingled weakness and ambition of the Italian government.

The cloud of smoke raised anew has made many people forget some of the plainest facts about Fiume. It is just as well to recall them.

Italy did not go to war for Fiume. Italy did not fight at all for Fiume. Fiume was no part of 'Italia Irredenta.' She did not ask for it in the Pact of London, in which her allies would doubtless have conceded it if requested. Apparently Italy did not even think of Fiume until after the armistice was signed. Then, when it was evident that Austria-Hungary had collapsed, Italian imperialism awoke with a shout, and Italy tried to grab all she could out of the ruins, regardless of the principles she had adhered to while the struggle was uncertain.

With this growing hunger for territory came envy of the new-born Jugo-Slav nation. Foreseeing a possible rival in the future, Italy has deliberately schemed to stifle Jugo-Slavia in its infancy by taking its only available seaboard and harbor, which Italy does not need at all, and thus stifling her commerce. This is not only unjust; it is certain, if permitted, to make a bitter enemy of a neighbor who should be a friend, and to sow the seed of future war.

For Italy's own welfare no less than the welfare of Europe and the world, it is well for Adriatic settlement be adjusted conformably to the principles of justice and democracy on which the Allies fought and won the war.

Lesson In Dietetics

San Bernardino Index

There is such a thing as over-nutrition. It consists in eating more than sufficient of the foods one likes. Over-nutrition is often as deadly as malnutrition.

Denmark is a cleanly, intelligent, fairly prosperous country, a counterpart on a small scale of the United States in many ways. The Danish death rate now is considerably lower than the American, although they were about the same before the war.

The land of the Danes was an early victim of the conflict that raged all around her and her food supply was gradually depleted, until during the year October 1, 1917-October 1, 1918, the food restrictions became very severe.

To make grain go farthest, the Danish government compelled flour makers to use the whole berry.

The food administration gave great attention to the growing of vegetables so that the people had plenty of green stuff that year.

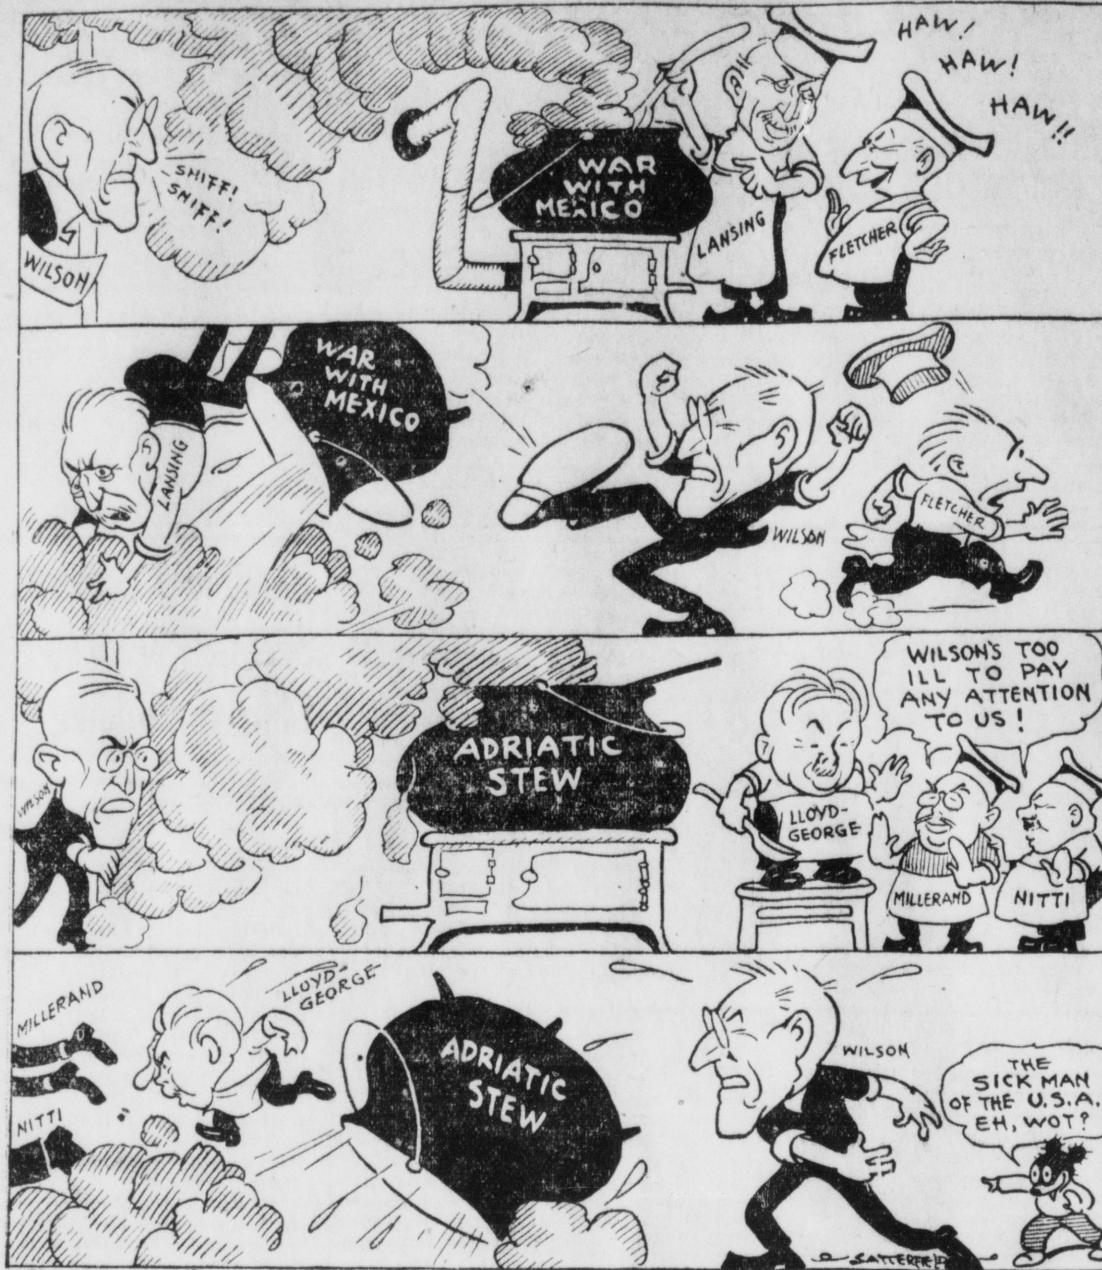

Little grain food was fed to livestock, so that meat in Denmark in 1917-1918 was scarce and expensive.

The Danes, therefore, lived largely on whole grain bread and vegetables and—

The death rate for the year was 9.9 per thousand! The lowest in all the world and, all things, so far as a search of available records indicates.

Take a lesson from Denmark!

Not So Sick After All

A Democratic Viewpoint

Here is an interesting political Editorial from the Santa Barbara News, whose publisher is a good enough Democrat to get the appointment of postmaster of Santa Barbara.

We want who? We want who? We want Hoover. This is the cry that those interested in directing the people away from their real wants are crying. The Los Angeles Times is full of the cry for Hoover, from the first column of the newspaper to the last column of the paper. Not that it really wants Hoover. This it does not want. This paper really prefers Lowden, or Wood, or any one else save Johnson. It does not want Johnson. It has believed that Hoover was the best name to defeat Johnson at the Republican primaries. Once Johnson is defeated, the Times will be found, not behind Hoover, but behind some one else. The Times knows that Hoover stands no more show of an election in November, than does Gerard.

Curiously enough, there is an element in the Democratic party that also is seeking the nomination of Mr. Hoover by that party, and giving a reason for the nomination that California must be carried by the Democrats. This is a peculiar reason. The Democrats are to nominate a man who has never sympathized with Jeffersonian democracy, simply that they may carry the state of California. His belief and his purpose amount to nothing. The only thing that is of value just at the present time in the mind of these worthies who desire that Mr. Hoover shall be taken up as a Democrat is his availability. But is he available? Where is his strength? Who desires to vote for Mr. Hoover? Just ask your acquaintances, and see how many of them place Mr. Hoover in any position as their choice, first, second or last, and either as a Democrat or a Republican. What has he done that shall attach the American people to him? He has fed the needy. That is true, but these United States furnished him the money and the power to feed the hungry, and any good business man could have done this just exactly as well. Is he a statesman? Echo answers, Is he? Is he a financier? Echo answers, Is he? He has proved himself able in gathering the wealth of the world. He has not done this except by taking advantage of the ways that make men rich, the same as Rockefeller was made rich, and Carnegie was made rich. In no other respect is he a financier. In his regulation of the food consumption in the United States during the war, he broke every rule of economics and did this without even the knowledge that he was breaking any rule of national finance. He restricted the use of wheat and sugar, and did not know that restricting the use of wheat and sugar would increase the price of corn and sugar substitutes.

The Democracy of this state has a peculiar way of making fools of themselves and incidentally of the party. Long years ago the Democracy was fighting corporate rule; that is, one year they fought the rule of corporations, and the next year they made the corporations a bed-fellow. The people did not know where to find them, did not know just how soon the platform of one year would be destroyed by the platform of the next year. The people did not trust them, and a victory of one year was turned into a defeat the year that had the next election. In 1882, the Democracy swept the state on the anti-corporation platform. Then came the Stockton convention, and the year 1884, and the Democracy lost the state by a large majority, despite the fact that the Democracy was prosperous in every other state.

The people of the state of California are Democratic if tested by the Jeffersonian spirit. Equal Rights to All and Special Privileges to None. But the plan of Democratic when the sole question is whether a few narrow-minded individuals who call themselves Democrats shall get together and attempt to rule the state. The people are Democratic when Democracy is true to itself. They are Republican when they are betrayed by the Democracy.

The interests of the people of the state of California are not centered in the nomination of Hoover by the Republicans or by the Democrats. He is neither republican nor democratic. Johnson is the true Republican, and will be the choice of the Democrats of this state.

BACK HERE

The shaded lamp throws softest beams,
And as I watch her face it seems
That we have never been apart.
And that the weary months have been
But melancholy dreams.
The days that passed with leaden feet
Are filled for me with fancies sweet.
Verdun is mine in memory,
And matchless comrades may I now
In recollection greet.
Kindly they treated me—the years
That brought to her so many tears.
So many hours of restless care,
So many days and weeks and months
Of overwhelming fears.
She reads to me, the light turned low,
Just as before, her hair aglow
With ruddy fire. But now
There's glint of silver there that once
I did not know—
A few tired lines that were not there,
A few thin strands of graying hair;
Two years of life are lost to her—
Two golden years of youth. It seems Not altogether fair.

—Clyde Langston Eddy in The Homes Sector.

the same bull that trampled the body of the wife he really loved. The author seems to seek enhancement of the dramatic aspect of his story:

"The beauty of the whole world in this hour should be remembered. Houses, trees, walls, shrubs, knolls—all were overlaid with the snow blanket inches deep. It had been faintly blue, this carpet of snow, in the first moments after the storm passed, and before the sun had broken through. When the sun illumined the hill about the farm the snow was dazzling white, blinding the eye with a thousand gleams, as though it were diamond dust spread all about them. Afterward, when John and Danvers and Ruth had passed to the front of the house to look across the valley and away, the sun descending lost its white glare; its rays took on a crimson hue. Where they struck the snow fairly it was rose pink; where the shadows lay the blue was coming back again. The air was so clear that it seemed not to exist, yet did exist as a living, pulsing color which was all about—faint, hardly to be seen."

Just, one more quotation from "Evered"—the author of which, by the way, is Ben Ames Williams. He learned of his wife's innocence one evening and the next evening about the time he is killed by the red bull. Meantime:

"It would be easy to say that Evered during this solitary night and day was mad with grief and self-condemning, but it would not be true. The man was never more sane. His thoughts were profound, but they were quiet and slow and unperturbed. They were almost impersonal. There is in most men—though in few women—this power to withdraw out of one's self or into an inner deeper self; this power to stand as spectator of one's own actions. It is a manifestation of a deeper, more remote consciousness. It is as though there were a man within a man. And this inner soul has no emotions. It is unmoved by love or passion, by anger or hatred, by sorrow or grief, by hunger or by thirst. It watches warm arresses, it hears ardent words, it sees fierce blows, and listens to curses and lamentations with the same inscrutable and immutable calm. It can approve, it can condemn; but it neither rejoices nor bemoans. It is always conscious that the moment is nothing, eternally everything, that the whole alone has portent and importance. This inner self has a depth beyond plumbing; it has a strength unshakable; it has understanding beyond belief. It is not conscience, for it sets itself up as no arbiter of acts or deeds. It is simply a consciousness that that which is done is good or evil, kind or harsh, wise or foolish. This calm inner soul of souls might be called God in man."

A Matter of Opinion

In the register editorial of Saturday night ("Dominion Votes"), the statements, "The British Empire seems nearer dissolution today than before the war," and "The solidarity displayed during the war was deceptive," constitute such a misreading of the trend of events in the British Isles and overseas Dominions that it is not well to let them pass uncorrected.

The opposition to an imperial or federal parliament does not mean any move toward dissolution, but rather that it is safer to trust entirely to a common ideal and purpose, to a common interpretation of the eternal laws of justice and right, than to any legislative enactments that might only prove irritating and hampering. In other words, that the bond or league of British nations is stronger and more enduring without reservations than with reservations. When the terrific storm of 1914 burst upon the world so unexpectedly, and apparently from a clear sky, it was the solidarity and instant response of the British nations to the need of the hour that proved the world's salvation. This solidarity, this bond of unity will not be dissolved, but is a great foundation-stone in that larger League of Nations so ably urged and defended by our revered President, and will finally hold all races and nations in the bonds of peace and amity.

Woman's Union to Meet
The Third Section of the Woman's Union of the First Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with Miss Charlotte Dresser, 115 East Tenth street.

Fraternal Aid Union
A very enjoyable evening was passed by the Fraternal Aid Union Friday evening.

During the business session a class of candidates was introduced and initiated by the new officers. The work was beautifully executed, showing that the officers had spared no time to make their performance. At the close of the business meeting, a splendid program was given, the entertainment being in charge of a committee, with Mrs. Maud Peacock as chairman.

The entire evening was given over to the entertainment of the new members, who have been taken into the order since the first of the year, and was greatly enjoyed not only by the new members, but by the old as well.

Delicious refreshments were served, after which the younger members enjoyed themselves dancing, special music being furnished.

Booster Club Meets
The Fraternal Brotherhood Club held its regular monthly meeting last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Galbraith on West Fourth street.

After a short business session the remainder of the evening was spent in games and conversation. At a late hour refreshments were served by the hostess.

The members who are not attending these Booster Club meetings, are missing some most enjoyable evenings, which are welding stronger and stronger the links in the chain of fraternity.

Those present last evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester Slaback, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Deck, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Calkins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marsile, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Turner, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Harvey, Mrs. Harry Brookbank, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Jolly Two-In-One Meeting
A jolly time was enjoyed at the regular monthly meeting of the Two-In-One class of the First Methodist church, held at the home of Mrs. Frances Howell on East Pine street last evening.

St. Patrick's Day being so near at hand, the decorations throughout the house were done in shamrocks.

In addition to the business meeting, a social time was enjoyed, as is the usual custom, many amusing games being played. One of the games was in trying to pin a sprig of shamrock on the head of a large painted Irishman while blindfolded. This afforded a great deal of enjoyment.

Light refreshments were served late in the evening.

Those who had the pleasure of being present at this meeting were Messrs. and Mmes. Geo. J. Cocking, Robt. Garner, Al Burns, Hardin, S. B. Kaufman, Earl, J. B. Head, E. L. Warner, Kenneth Stowe, Rev. and Mrs. B. Y. Neal and Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Doty.

Monthly C. W. B. M. Meeting
The regular monthly meeting of the C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church will be held in the community house Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The leader will be Mrs. W. T. Mitchell. A splendid program has been arranged and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. The subject will be "The Healing of Tibet."

Intermediate P. T. A. to Meet

THE LIGHT

I see the last rays of the setting sun slowly guide
Against the soft blue sky;
Those shadows as they creep along yonder mountain side,
While whispering winds gently sigh.

Then slowly the evening passes —and on comes the night.
But ever beyond there's an everlasting light,
Though clouds obscure and wanderers fall.

Eternal night! So with the first rays of early morn
You'll see darkness flee away;
Soon bees will hum and birds sing their song;
Rejoice! There's born another day.

So in life those trials and sorrows will come,
And mountains must be crossed;
Alas! the light of this world so dim to some,
They plunge on in the night and are lost.

—Sam Simmons.

Miss Lucile Krause, daughter of F. C. She said that while she was incarcerated in the bastille she divided her chocolates with the other inmates, whom she referred to as "poor creatures." She said, "I'd hate to say how many times I crowded against those bars. Every jail-breaking scheme of the past three years of movies flashed upon my memory." Miss Krause served half a three-day sentence for speeding.

Legislative Action Is Needed to Rescue Paved Roads from Destruction

That some of the trucks hauling on Orange County roads exert a pressure of 1200 pounds to the inch width of tire, that roads are being smashed by traffic, that there must be legislative action governing loads if the roads now built are to be saved from destruction were points made in a paper read last night to the Monday Club by Nat H. Neff, engineer for the highway maintenance department for Orange County.

Neff's paper was entitled "Good Roads" and many angles of the subject were discussed. Neff's experience in roadbuilding and road-maintenance enabled him to present the subject in an authoritative and informative way, and the members of the Monday Club felt themselves fortunate in having him present a paper upon this subject in which every good citizen is interested.

Neff said that the advantages that are derived from good roads are both economic and social, and under the former head comes the increase in population which now directly from increased means of easy locomotion. As the population grows there is increased demand for better roads, and while it is not always correct to say good roads cause increased population, there is a circular action and reaction which brings this result.

Lessons Hauling Cost.
Neff also pointed out that a great advantage also comes from the lessened cost of hauling and that this factor indirectly increases the value of farms so situated as to use the good roads.

He said it had been found by comparison of prices in Los Angeles county for hauling on improved and unimproved roads respectively, that the saving in haulage per ton mile on three or four main roads out of Los Angeles have paid their original cost and maintenance about nine times during the past four years. This is in addition to indirect saving and advantages which it is impossible to estimate.

The experience of Los Angeles county as shown by figures compiled by the county road superintendent shows that whereas the cost of hauling on unimproved roads per ton mile is 25 cents that of hauling on improved roads is only 10 cents per ton mile, thus securing an operative income of 15 cents per ton mile on roads fitted for commercial hauling.

To estimate the advantage to passenger automobiles is not so easy, as the savings made up of saving in oil, gasoline and in wear, tear, and time. It is assumed that for automobiles it amounts to 2 cents per mile.

After a careful census had been taken on the through traffic of four Los Angeles roads with daily tonnage and number of vehicles computed it was found that on the Harbor Road the income for four years was 8½ times the total cost plus the

Immanuel Baptists Seeking Bids on Church Building

The trustees of the Immanuel Baptist church, which is to end its church existence soon, are expecting to make a sale next week of the church property at the corner of French and Sixth streets.

Permission to make the sale has been given by the superior court, and negotiations for its purchase have been taken up by at least two church organizations in Santa Ana. The First Methodists are considering the advisability of buying the property for Sunday school and Boy Scout purposes, and the Brethren congregation on East First is expecting to secure larger church quarters.

Two or three prospective buyers have looked at the property with a view to turning it into apartments. The property is 50 by 125 feet.

J. H. Scott, chairman of the trustees of the church, said that the trustees hope to complete a sale next week. The proceeds will go to mission work. When the church disbands, the individual members will go to other congregations as they see fit.

Menace to Roads
"In California," said Neff, "we have 1500 miles of light concrete base pavements built by the state and perhaps an equal mileage of similar pavement built or under construction by counties. In Orange county we have 150 miles of light concrete base pavement outside the state highway and cities. Beside these there are in the state hundreds of miles of gravel, water-bound macadam and asphaltic concrete pavements built during the last ten years which constitute good serviceable highways for the ordinary traffic they are called on to bear."

Neff further said that the U. S. government had found during the war that a five-ton truck was the maximum size that could be used to advantage and he gave figures to show that much damage came to the roads from trucks carrying much above this amount, for to the weight of the truck and its load must be added 25 per cent for the impact when running at a speed of twelve to fourteen miles an hour. If upon a five-ton truck an overload of fifty feet and an effort will be made to shut off the water at this depth to ascertain how much oil bearing sand there is at this point.

Tustin News

TUSTIN, March 9.—The meeting of the Tustin Farm Center Friday night was a short one on account of the Parent-Teachers entertainment for fathers which was held also at the school house.

The reports of several committees were received. According to motion, the president appointed three members to act with the county officers to take charge of meetings for the next six months. Announcement was made that Dean Hunt of the Agricultural Department of the University of California will speak next Wednesday evening at the Anaheim high school building. This address will be of the highest interest to farm bureau members. All who can go are invited to attend.

The Tustin Farm Center expects to participate in the big May Day celebration at Orange County Park. Wm. Belding spoke of the progress of the Mutual Telephone Co. and asked the people to be ready to respond to the call for funds to provide the test trial which is to come before the supreme court in the near future.

Fathers' Meeting.
The evening meeting which the Tustin Parent-Teachers Association had prepared for Washington's Birthday as an entertainment for the fathers and which had been twice postponed, was held Friday night in the Grammar school auditorium.

First on the program was a short business session of the P. T. A. Mr. Beswick spoke of Dr. Miller, who should have been with the recent Chautauqua in Tustin, but was unable to come. Dr. Miller will visit the school on next Thursday. Dr. Miller's business is to show the occupation or calling for which a boy or girl is best adapted.

The audience was then entertained by a little play, given by four ladies of the P. T. A. The play represented scenes in an old ladies' in the time of Martha Washington, was exceedingly amusing and elicited a storm of applause. James Willis Rice gave two beautiful violin numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Rice on the piano.

Everybody was then given a red hatchet, upon which was written a sentence, and told to go out in the big hall and find cherries to match, and this proved a lively and interesting search.

The whole party was then invited to the domestic science department in the basement, where were served coffee, sandwiches and a variety of delicious layer cake. The fathers seemed highly delighted with the entertainment given them.

Bereans Entertained.
The Tustin Presbyterian Berean Bible class was entertained last Thursday afternoon at the regular monthly social meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Hatfield on Laguna avenue. This was a rally of the class, as there were about twenty-three present.

The business of the meeting was the election of officers for the ensuing year. The officers chosen were Mrs. C. P. Marshall for president, Mrs. Pollard vice president, Mrs. Satterwhite secretary, Mrs. Whitney, treasurer. The officers were chosen by ballot. The election was conducted by Mrs. J. W. Dryer, the outgoing president.

An enjoyable social time followed. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. S. W. Stanley, served delicious fruit salad cake, coffee and confections. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary by holding a reception for their friends Saturday afternoon and evening.

Mr. Brown is a member of the Santa Ana Post G. A. R. and his wife is an enthusiastic worker in all the activities of the Women's Relief Corps. Mrs. Brown has been president of the Tustin W. C. T. U. for a number of years. Their many friends were delighted to be able to congratulate them and wish for them many happy returns of the day.

A stream of callers paid their respects during the beautiful afternoon and in the evening the Advent Christian church members gave a special demonstration.

In the afternoon several readings were given by Mrs. Kellogg of Santa Ana, and the callers were entertained by piano music from Dorothy Ladieu.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown received as a gift from the G. A. R. and Relief Corps a beautiful silver tea set, from the Advent Christian church a silver fruit dish, from the Tustin W. C. T. U. a gray lade, and from other friends a berry spoon. From friends who could not attend they received lovely flowers and little booklets.

In the evening a house full of friends made merry until a late hour. Vocal and instrumental music were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson of Santa Ana, Rev. M. E. Ladieu and daughter, Dorothy Ladieu. During the afternoon and evening the guests were invited in groups to the dining room where they were refreshed with coffee, sandwiches, beaten biscuit and cake.

Literature Section Meets.
The regular meeting of the Tustin Literary section was held last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. L. Leiby.

The afternoon was spent in a review of the works of Geo. Barr McCutcheon, Louis Jos. Vance and Jno. Fox, Jr., with special attention to the Biography of Jno. Fox by Thomas Nelson Page.

The hostess served dainty refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Mar. 9.—The executive committee of the Orange Co. Fair has decided that the annual event this year will be held as usual in Huntington Beach on Thurs., Fri., and Saturday, October 7, 8 and 9.

Plans were discussed for enlarging the fair on a county-wide basis. The grounds will be considerably enlarged. The auto clubs of this county will be asked to take over the management of the auto and tractor display. Advertising will be placed in the hands of experienced men and more funds will be provided for this purpose.

The county school superintendent will be asked to hold a teachers' institute again this year, and also take charge of a county-wide educational exhibit.

A states picnic to represent every state in the union will again be staged on a much larger plan. Committees will be appointed in the near future to push the work along the different lines.

The Outlook in Germany

By L. H. MURLIN, President Boston University, in the Christian Advocate.

(President Murlin, whose former residence in Berlin qualifies him to judge of present conditions in the German "Reich," has recently returned from a visit to the Central Powers, and offers this careful statement based upon his observations.—Editor Advocate.)

There are three parties seeking control of Germany, namely, the supporters of the present government, whom we shall call republicans; the monarchists, who seek to restore the Hohenzollern dynasty; the extreme socialists, who represent Bolshevism. When the newspapers report some supposed activity of "the Germans" or of "Germany," we should always interpret such news in the light of its source in one of these three parties.

The present German government represents sixty to seventy per cent of the population; it is as truly a republican government as the United States; it is opposed to Prussianism, is free from militarism, proposes a smaller standing army, relatively, than our secretary of war asks for the United States; it signed the armistice and is doing its best, under most trying circumstances, to meet the conditions imposed; it has never suggested evasion; it believes the armistice terms are impossible of fulfillment and earnestly hopes that the final conditions will be less exacting, but it has never suggested evasion or repudiation.

Consider, for a moment, the problem before this government: First, it is trying to establish a responsible democratic government among a people who have hitherto accepted government ready made for them, handed down to them, without any explanations or reasons; they have always been told what they must do and what they may not do; their only part was to accept and obey. To train such a people to active and responsible participation in government and to set in motion the machinery for its administration, is a task difficult enough to tax the wisdom and skill of the ablest and most experienced statesmen. Yet these leaders, who must train the people in these responsibilities, are enjoying, for the first time, the privileges of free government, and are exercising, for the first time, the functions of government.

This difficult and prodigious task, undertaken by an entirely inexperienced government, among people inexperienced in the science of statecraft, is carrying forward its new enterprise, under the most depressing economic conditions ever confronting a nation. Five years of war strain, under feeding and insufficient clothing; a crushing defeat; an enormous war debt; a still more burdensome war indemnity; the loss of millions of men in the prime of life; the return home of as many more men, crippled in body and broken in health; the flower of her adolescent life blighted by the immoralities of war time; eight hundred thousand women, children and old people having perished from lack of food; a birth rate twenty-eight per cent of the pre-war rate; an appalling mortality of motherhood, through lack of nourishment and unsanitary conditions in childbirth; the children who survive birth subnormal physically, intellectually, socially and morally; the school attendance reduced thirty-five per cent below that of the pre-war attendance, and will continue to decrease for the next five years to less than one-half, while those able to attend school are so reduced in physical and intellectual vigor that the quantity and quality of the work exacted is one-third its pre-war standard; but little coal for heating and lighting, and what is available is so costly as to be beyond all except large incomes; little coal for manufacturing, so that even if their workmen were inclined to work, their factories could run only one-third to one-half time; their railroad beds broken or worn out; most of their rolling stock in France and Belgium, that remaining being badly out of repair; their colonies taken from them, leaving them with little or no raw material; their shipping gone; their workmen and capitalists exhibiting the same restlessness and unreasonableness found everywhere else in the world; their profits just as conscienceless as those in the United States; eight hundred thousand of their men still prisoners in France and Belgium, clearing up the debris of battlefields; hundreds of thousands of able-bodied men refusing to work, availing themselves of the liberal administration of the non-employment wage, forced from the government by the extreme socialists, thus adding greatly to tax burdens; the equivalent of the income of four out of every six days' labor required to meet war debt, war indemnities and the current expenses of the government; a like proportion of all incomes of individuals and of all profits in business to be demanded; the German mark steadily declining to less than one-seventh its former value—and the trend still downward; add to this the high cost of essential food, clothing, light and heat, and the purchasing power of the mark is still further reduced—these are some of the hard and depressing economic conditions this new government must face at the very threshold of its existence—conditions that would baffle the skill and resources of the most stable, best organized and ablest government of the world.

These facts were a surprising revelation. I could take up much more space in details and illustrations. I have given only the bare outlines of the frightful conditions; they suggest but dimly the awful realities we behold. We were driven to the conclusion that Germany is in a far worse condition than most of her people realize, or will admit, and certainly far worse than the rest of the world believes. It is a crushed, humiliated, bewildered, confused, hesitant, broken Germany, bordering the verge of economic bankruptcy, nervous breakdown and moral collapse that one sees today. More humiliating and bitter to endure than her defeat is the consciousness that once where she lifted her proud head there are none to do her honor; she faces the scorn of the whole civilized world, not only for causing the war, the methods by which she conducted the war, but the yellow streak she showed by the way in which she ended the war on land and sea.

It is such a Germany that the present government has to deal with in seeking to conserve what is best in the German people, believing that out of all these miseries, humiliations and sorrows will come a new Germany, purified by fire, the fire of war, defeat and disaster; they believe there is too much good salvage in Germany to allow it to go into the scrap heap. But unless food, coal, clothing, credit, industry and commerce are made possible to her very soon, the present government will be overthrown and Bolshevism will take possession. It is a relief to know that the United States Food Administration has asked the Society of Friends to take over the problem of administering such relief as generous-minded Americans may be willing to offer. Prompt aid may save the country from Bolshevism.

There is the further circumstance that the third party, the monarchists, seek the overthrow of the present government, and look with perfect equanimity upon the possibility of Bolshevism. They argue that under Bolshevism social and economic conditions will speedily go from bad to worse. Then the people will reflect that under the kaiser they had food and clothing and were comparatively happy. They will long for the "good old times." Then will follow a revision from Bolshevism and republicanism to monarchism, and while they can hardly restore the kaiser, there is an active, subtle propaganda favoring the crown prince or his eldest son.

It is this monarchistic party that is doing all the sword-rattling and talking of a war of revenge, repudiating the treaty, lauding Hindenburg and Hindenburg and insisting that "our brave armies" were "never defeated in battle," and pointing out that "all the fighting was done on enemy soil"; it is this group, too, which proposes to disavow the treaty and to refuse payment of the indemnity. Neither such conduct nor such talk should be attributed to Germany as a whole, much less to the present government, which repudiates every distinctive characteristic of monarchists and Bolshevists alike. For it must be remembered that monarchism and Bolshevism are both autocracies; Lenin's democracy and insists upon dictation of the world by the proletariat—and at times dictation of the proletariat by one mind—at present his own. Even the czar, at his worst, was never so unreasoning and tyrannical an autocrat as Lenin, and his political philosophy, based upon Marx's communistic manifesto, far more radically interpreted than Marx himself ever interpreted it, draws about him all the low fellows of the baser sort—adventurers, thieves, murderers, exploiters, looters and hooligans. In urging support and encouragement of the present government in Germany I am not thinking of Germany so much as I am pleading for the Allies and for world democracy. We must deal either with monarchistic Germany, Bolshevist Germany or republican Germany. If either Bolshevism or monarchism triumphs, there is no hope of securing a fulfillment of the terms of the treaty nor of collecting the indemnity, unless the Allies occupy all of Germany with an army, placing it under military rule and conducting all its public affairs until the indemnity is collected. Such a course involves a thousand unwelcome tribulations. By stabilizing the present government, assisting it to organize its work, starting its industries and opening its channels of trade, we defeat the old autocracy of monarchism and the new autocracy of Bolshevism, make sure the terms of peace, preserve the possibility of collecting the indemnity, forever do away with Prussianism and militarism, definitely determine for Germany a republican government and organize the best life of that troubled people.

Some will argue that if this policy is pursued, Germany will come back in a hundred years and bring on another war, as she has always done these last thousand years. To which I reply that, if the policy herein suggested is followed there will be a new Germany arising out of the old, facing a new world, organized out of the old world. In that old world, as in that old Germany, autocracy and militarism and their ideals faced a like condition in all the countries round about. But the war and its present aftermath have changed all that; during this first armistice year twelve new republics have been organized in Europe out of its old autocracies—a most pregnant sentence, giving a record unprecedented in human history. If these new republics are established and helped forward in their undertaking, a republican Germany will face a republican world, and neither the German republic nor any of the other new republics can ever go back to the old order, in which militarism was a part of the fixed life of the nation and the principal method of settling national differences. We are at the crest of a wave which began when the Magna Charta was wrested from the unwilling and reluctant hands of King John; it is indeed "daybreak everywhere," but whether it will continue through the glorious sunlight of a perfect day as long as the life of the face depends on the sympathy and wise helpfulness of older democracies of the world and especially of our own United States of America, to whom these new sister republics of ours, with a fine and noble idealism hitherto unknown in their lives, look with longing hope and high expectation. May we be as eager, wise, helpful and self-sacrificing in the constructive problems of peace as we were in the destructive problems of war.

URGES BILLION REDUCTION IN U. S. TAXES

WASHINGTON, March 9.—An immediate billion-dollar reduction in Federal taxes was suggested in a statement issued here by William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury. The present tax burden is too great, he said, and is "having an injurious effect on business."

Mr. McAdoo proposed the collection of a tax to establish a sinking fund for retirement of the war debt, which was recommended by former Secretary Glass to begin with the fiscal year 1920, be postponed for two years, and that the deferred payments of European interest be funded until Europe is in position to pay its interest charges. "The financial policies of the nation as embodied in future Congressional legislation," said Mr. McAdoo, "should realize the utmost economy in expenditure, and might well fund in long-term bonds $1,000,000 per annum for two years of the amount now raised by taxation."

Postpone Sinking Fund
"Under the laws a tax to establish a 1 per cent. sinking fund to retire bonds now outstanding is to be collected beginning with the fiscal year 1920. This might well be postponed for at least two years and thus reduce the tax burden by $250,000,000 annually. There, too, is the debt which Europe owes us and which now amounts to about $10,000,000,000."

"By discontinuing purchase of Liberty Bonds for retirement under provisions of existing law, the treasury would be relieved of a large burden now reflected in the floating debt, and which otherwise will have to be made up by taxation. It would seem that reduction of our tax bill for the next two years in this manner would be accomplished, and that it would involve the issuance of additional bonds to extent of probably not more than $1,500,000,000."

"I trust that the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives will consider this question in its broad relations to our general economic welfare. The immediate burden of taxation is too great. It is having an injurious effect on business."

"It is a contributing factor of large proportions in the high cost of living. Its inevitable tendency is to stifle new enterprise and to throttle initiative. It is both unscientific and inequitable. In view of the approaching decline in our export trade with the inevitable reduction in the volume of business in the country, it will become doubly important to revise and to reduce taxation in order that business may not have to carry an unnecessary tax burden throughout this period of readjustment."

AGAIN PLANNING BUENOS AIRES' LID HIGHWAY TO RICHFIELD

Members of the board of trustees accompanied by County Engineer McBride and a delegation of business men from Orange, Richfield, Olive and Santa Ana are this afternoon inspecting the territory lying between Richfield and Orange with a view of taking steps toward the opening of a road and the erection of a bridge in that community to give the people of the Richfield district access to the southern end of the county.

The subject was brought up this morning at the meeting of the board which was attended by delegations from the above mentioned communities. Among those present were Dr. J. D. Thomas, Olive; John Morrison, A. H. Smith and Henry Grote of Orange; William Roddeck, Richfield, and F. P. Nickey, Santa Ana.

The need of the road and bridge was discussed at considerable length by various members of the delegation. It being pointed out that rich territory would be opened up to Orange and Santa Ana merchants by such an improvement. Members of the board are of the opinion the road is needed, but the condition of the county's finances will be a big factor when the matter comes up for final decision.

Members of the delegation are of the opinion that very little difficulty will be met in securing a right of way for the road. At one time most of the property necessary for such a right of way was signed up and presented to the board with a petition for the opening of the road signed by about 60 people in the Richfield district. The project was given up at that time, however, because of the let up in building operations which the war demanded.

MAN OUTSIDE S. A. TO SUCCEED IMAN

That the man who succeeds Jack Iman as under sheriff to Sheriff Jackson will be from some other part of Orange county other than Santa Ana was intimated today by Jackson, who is now considering several applications which have been made for the place.

Jackson declared that friends representing several men who are desirous of securing the place have approached him on the subject, but thus far he has not made up his mind as to whom the new under sheriff will be.

Jackson feels that because he and several other men in his office claim Santa Ana as their home that the outside territory should be given some consideration when it comes time to fill the vacancy.

Jackson would give no intimation as to whom he is considering for the place, nor would he give the names of men advanced to him by others.

There has been considerable let up recently in the work of the sheriff's office and Jackson feels that there is no need of immediate action in selecting Iman's successor. He says for that reason he is going to take considerable time in making his selection.

TELLS RENOVATION OF LEATHER CHAIRS

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—When polished leather seat and backs of chairs have become worn with use they can be renovated at home in the following way, according to a local furniture expert:

Dissolve 90 grams of yellow beeswax in 200 grams of turpentine in a double boiler, using just enough heat to melt the wax; then thoroughly dissolve, add little by little, stirring constantly, 10 grams of castile soap dissolved in 200 grams of water. Apply to the leather with a swab.

If the leather is rubbed or scratched, add to the above cream before it cools some suitable coloring matter, depending upon the color of the leather.

If the leather be torn, mend it first with a cement made by placing 50 grams of cold glue in 50 grams of cold water; let this stand for twenty-four hours; then dissolve by heating in a double boiler and add 1 gram of bichromate of potash and 5 grams of glycerine. This glue when dry and exposed to the light is insoluble and unaffected by humidity.

HAIRCUTS 60 CENTS NOW AT SACRAMENTO

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 9.—Barber shops in Sacramento will close at 6 o'clock hereafter, except on Saturday, and the price of a haircut will be sixty cents instead of fifty cents, under an agreement between the master barbers and the journeymen which E. H. Lyons, secretary of the local union said had been ratified in every shop but one.

In addition to the readjustment of hours the barbers were granted a wage increase of $2.50 a week, Lyons said.

IS CLAMPED DOWN

By LAWRENCE S. HAAS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BUENOS AIRES, Mar. 9.—The municipal authorities of Buenos Aires have started the new year by clamping the lid down on vice. A previously adopted city ordinance closing all resorts of ill-fame as tightly as a drum has been put into effect by the police, who declare that there is going to be no re-opening.

And the slowly-perishing "night-life" of Buenos Aires gave another gasp.

The popular North American conception of the Argentine capital as a city of gayety and license, patterned after the Paris idea and freer in some respects than New York, has become a misconception. This city today, as far as its after-midnight activity is concerned, is one of the quietest of its size in the world.

With the exception of a relatively small theatrical and dance hall district near the center, the town's streets are darkened, and the only noise after midnight is that made by flat-wheeled trolley cars or the whistles of the post-police policemen in their hourly "all's well" signals.

The former gayety of Buenos Aires could never be attributed to the Argentine people. The introduction of "night life" can be laid at the door of the foreign element here in their desire to transplant a bit of Paris on this side of the Atlantic. Five years ago the city was full of all sorts of questionable amusements, but this element in the life of Buenos Aires languished during the war and it will probably never return.

What slavers found an easy market and a clear road for their activities here a few years ago. Now their operations are at a standstill for not only is public opinion arrayed strongly against them, but the Argentine passport regulations are so stringent due to the anti-Red precautionary measures that have been adopted that this class of "traders" find it absolutely impossible to import their human wares.

Whether the present stringency will be lasting or the purveyors of vice will find a way to get police protection cannot be said, but it remains that visitors to Buenos Aires expecting to see the much vaunted "naughtiness" are greatly disappointed.

TELLS HOW FRENCH LUXURY TAX WORKS

PARIS, Mar. 9.—The Figaro tells the following true story of the working of the French luxury tax:

A man went to one of the big furniture dealers to buy a writing table. Choosing one of the least pretentious pieces, he asked the price. It was 800 francs, which seemed rather high. The shopman, however, added:

"We will add this little arm chair. It isn't dear. Only 50 francs."

"No. I don't want it. I have quite enough chairs."

"Excuse me," said the seller. "If you buy the desk alone I shall have to ask you to pay the luxury tax, which amounts to 50 francs. But if you take the chair as well I shall be able to put down your purchases as a suite—office furniture. For this the tax limit is 1,500 francs, and I do not have to charge you on a purchase of 850 francs. Thus if you take the chair you save 30 francs and have an extra piece into the bargain."

As a measure of economy the chair was bought.

SAXE, FANCIFUL ROME THRILLED VERSIFIER. TO BY HONORED

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—New York, both city and state, has an interest in completion of a monument near his birthplace at Highgate, Vt., just south of the Canadian line, to John Godfrey Saxe, the lightest-hearted poet of his day. The dedication of the memorial will take place next June.

New York's interest is that the poet passed the most productive period of his career in this state. He was Vermont's by the accident of birth, but belonged to the Empire State by virtue of his mature choice. Born at Highgate, he was graduated from Middlebury College, admitted to the bar at St. Albans, Vt., after four years' study at Lockport, N. Y.; was attorney general of Vermont for a term and unsuccessful candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket in 1850 and 1860.

His literary bent overcoming his interest in the law, he came to New York city, the literary center of the country, after his second rejection at the polls, and until 1872 gave himself to writing and lecturing. Then he became editor of the Albany Journal, a post he held for many years. He died at Albany in 1887.

Had Saxe lived in the present day he would undoubtedly have become a column conductor for a daily newspaper and amassed great wealth. As it was, although highly productive and with a graceful talent hardly equaled in his generation, he knew times when he worried about meeting his bills. Today he is remembered only by fragments, the best known of which perhaps is:

I do not like you, Dr. Fell;
The reason why I cannot tell,
And yet I know, and know full well,
I do not like you, Dr. Fell.

And here is a stanza from "The Superfluous Man" which suggests the Dobson-like lightness of his touch:

I long have been puzzled to guess,
And so I have frequently said,
What the reason could really be
That I never have happened to wed;

But now it is perfectly clear
I am under a natural ban—
The girls are already assigned
And I'm a superfluous man.

It was the last legislature of Vermont which decided to pay belated tribute to this Great Mountain poet. A commission consisting of one representative each from the house and senate and E. J. Chamberlain of Otis, representing relatives of Saxe, purchased a plot of ground at the intersection of the highways near the Saxe homestead in Highgate and placed there a boulder from the shore of nearby Lake Champlain. On this has been affixed a bronze tablet, the inscription on which reads:

"The State of Vermont dedicated this memorial to John Godfrey Saxe, poet, lawyer and journalist. A loyal and beloved son of Vermont. Born June 2, 1816. Died March 28, 1887."

The governor, members of the legislature and descendants of the poet will attend the dedication in June, that month having been selected as most likely to provide agreeable weather.

T. K. Bonita of Ama Springs, Mich., is sojourning in San Diego, and sends the "Roundabout" of the San Diego Union the following:

Sign on a farm house near National City:
"Bull dog for sale. Will eat anything. Very fond of old people."

Also an ad in my home paper in Alma Springs, Mich.:
"Mattress for sale by an old lady stuffed with feathers, leaving town, 1311 Pine street."

And this:
"Wanted—By a lady going abroad, one or two children to care for, and a good sailor."

ROME, Mar. 9.—Rome is being thrilled by one of the most mysterious murder cases it has known in many years.

Luigi Mesones, a painter and a diplomat's son, Peruvian by birth and Roman by adoption, man-about-town and gambler, told friends two years ago that his wife had been lost at sea. She went to Peru, he explained, to settle his late father's estate and her ship was sunk by a German submarine.

Friends believed the story but not so his wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Simonetti.

"How is it," they asked, "that Bice took such a trip without even saying goodby?"

"She was in a hurry," answered Mesones, who afterward disappeared.

Signor Simonetti is well known in Rome. He is an artist and art collector; his beautiful palace and gallery are much frequented by Americans visiting Rome.

He employed detectives to watch his son-in-law and try to trace his daughter; but sleuths could find no clue.

At the time Mesones announced his wife's death at sea, a woman who was said to have committed suicide was reported by the police, judging from papers found on the body, to be Maria Rotellini of Udine, war refugee. But nobody thought of visiting the Morgue, to see what Maria looked like; and the incident was forgotten.

Now, Signor Simonetti's sleuths say the supposed refugee was Mesones's wife, Signor Simonetti, his wife, brother and other relatives identified a picture taken by the Morgue officials when the body was brought in there two years ago, and "frozen in the archives till a few days ago, when a private sleuth, overhearing chance words in a low class cafe, unearthed it."

The police arrested Mesones at his home at Castelgondolfo, a little city near Rome, on the charge of complicity in his wife's murder. He denied the charge, saying he could prove she was drowned on her way to Peru, early in 1918.

He is well known in certain "smart" sections of Roman society and a friend of Grand Duke Cyril. He has not a good reputation and was connected with several scandals which hit esteemed Roman families. He abducted his wife, as Signor Simonetti objected to the marriage.

While the parents were seeking their sixteen-year-old daughter, Mesones wrote them that he could tell her whereabouts if Simonetti would sanction the match. His financial position was straightway improved, as the father-in-law gave him a generous allowance.

The police admit Mesones could not have killed the former Bice Simonetti by himself. At the time of his disappearance he was almost blind. The body was dressed in ragged clothes that Bice never wore, while living, and her style of hair-dressing had been changed, as the Morgue pictures prove. Alone, they affirm, a purblind man could not have wrought these changes or inflicted the fatal pistol wound on the left temple of his victim.

The mystery is complicated by the fact that when the supposed refugee's body was found on the banks of Tiber within a stone's throw of Prince Borghese's villa, the police traced a girl bearing the name of Maria Rotellini to various low class hotels. She disappeared from one of these on the evening of Jan. 8, 1918, to be found dead a few hours later.

Signor Simonetti declares Mesones had a woman accomplice who went from one low hotel to another, posing as the refugee, to wipe out all trace of Mesones' crime.

On the other hand, Mesones had nothing to gain by his wife's death because Simonetti ceased supplying money when it was announced.

NEW BLOW AT HIGH RENTS IS PLANNED

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Announcement that they will seek a writ of mandate in the State Supreme Court directing the State Railroad Commission to pass on high apartment and hotel rents here was made by officials of the San Francisco Tenants' Protective Association.

This step was determined on following a conference between legal representatives of the association and the commission.

Hugh Gordon, attorney for the commission, advised the association representative that a writ of mandate in the State Supreme Court might establish jurisdiction in the matter in the event the railroad commission held that it had no legal right to consider the case.

BANGOR, Me., Mar. 9.—The most savage winter since 1887 has the state of Maine buried deep down and frozen stiff, and most of it has hap- pened since the middle of January.

Only the oldest inhabitants and most daring liars can recall anything worse than the weather of the last five weeks, and there is no prophet anywhere who ventures to say how much longer the siege will continue.

It takes considerable winter to create comment in Maine, for extreme cold and deep snow are familiar incidents of life down here. Two or three feet of snow and zero temperature would be regarded as moderate visitations in Bangor and vicinity, while up in Aroostook county, the northern tip of the state, they would feel cheated unless the Arctic gales sent them a dozen or two days of 30 to 60 below; 62 below, at Caribou, is the record for this season.

Succession of snowfalls
Up to the middle of January the winter was about the average, with steady though not extreme cold, and not much snow. Then the weather works got busy, and from that day till now the inhabitants have realized what it means to go chasing after the North Pole. Half a dozen snow storms have piled one on another in the last five weeks, till the streets of cities and towns have been blocked with drifts of high as the signboards, while the country roads have been literally buried out of sight and beyond finding. It will be weeks before travel in the country becomes possible, while cities and towns are in a fair way to be bankrupted by the snow-removal bills.

In Bangor today the streets of the business section are three to four feet deep in snow, while in the residential sections the roadways are lined on either side by mountain ridges of thrown-up snow five to eight feet high so that persons walking on one side are invisible to those across the way. School girls and boys have been going about on snow shoes, as have the doctors making calls in the outlying sections. Men have been caught in drifts on their way home within the city limits, and saved from perishing only by relief parties on snowshoes. Few horses are able to make their way through the drifts, and motor cars are useless.

Harbors Blocked With Ice
In the rural regions cattle are in danger of starvation or of death by thirst, it being impossible to get grain to them while the wells are not only frozen but also buried under mountains of snow.

The harbors along the coast are blocked with ice, and the inhabitants of outlying islands are cut off entirely from the mainland. The government has sent the icebreaker Swan to raise the blockade, but it would require a hundred icebreakers to clear the frozen fringe of the sea from Portland to Grand Manan.

The singular thing about it all is that there has been no thaw whatever this winter—just steady, dry cold, so that the snow has not settled or shrunk in the least. Every flake that has fallen since November is here yet. Every one is wondering whether the snow mountains will dissolve gradually or all at once. If all at once—then truly Maine will again be a "wet" state.

WALES PRINCE MAY VISIT IN ANGEL CITY

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9.—Mayor M. P. Sweeney referred to the Chamber of Commerce the suggestion from Lieut. Col. Edward P. Bailey of the Long Beach Post of the "World War Veterans" that steps be taken to have the Prince of Wales visit Los Angeles when he comes to Southern California.

The mayor was informed that the heir to the British throne is due to arrive at San Diego on March 31 on his way to Australia.

LONDON DEBUTANTES THEATERN STRIKE

LONDON, Mar. 9.—The debutantes are the latest class to threaten a strike. They seem to have a real grievance in the practice followed by dance hostesses of requiring their girl guests to bring their own partners.

This practice, they say, was a war emergency measure adopted when young men were scarce and it was necessary to trust to one's guests to find them. But they are now no longer scarce, and still the hostesses place this burden, often an invidious one, on their girl guests. One result is that it is an obstacle to general mixing and change of partners. Often a girl dances either from preference or compulsion with one partner the whole evening. The same holds good of the selected young men, who owe his first allegiance to the girl who brought him, no matter what other preference he may have.

Then, in the many cases in which the fair one has a couple or more admirers between whom she is unable to make a choice, she is placed in a great difficulty in responding to a dance invitation of this kind. She may lose an admirer if she overlooks him, or, still worse, his attentions may be permanently diverted if he is invited to the same dance by another girl.

The hostesses reply that this scheme of making up dances was adopted at the suggestion of the girls who found a lack of dancing partners after the war broke out. It is much too convenient a way of making up a dance to be lightly surrendered by the hostesses.

WINS FINAL DECREE

COUPLE MARRIED FOR 73 YEARS CELEBRATE

MARIETTA, Pa., Mar. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Barr Spangler of Marietta, the oldest married couple in the state, have celebrated their seventy-third anniversary.

The former has just passed his ninety-seventh birthday anniversary, and Mrs. Spangler her ninety-third. They have passed all their lives in Marietta and have had three children, two of whom are living—Charles S. Spangler and Mrs. Simon Stigbee.

Despite his advanced age, Spangler is daily at his place of business, and only recently was re-elected president of the First National bank of Marietta. Both are enjoying good health, and are the oldest members of the First Methodist church and seldom miss a service. They attribute their longevity to rising early, taking plenty of good exercise, and not over-eating.

It is the enjoying and not merely the possessing that makes us happy.—Montaigne.

THE Doctor Says: "You Never See Aged Fat People"

The physician is telling these two patients, each of whom feels "more or less upset most of the time," that if they reduce their weight they will become healthier, more contented—and longer lived.

Overweightness imperils the health in many ways. The accumulations of adipose tissue, packed around the vital organs, cause serious disorders, one of the most dangerous being the liability to sudden HEART FAILURE. If you are corpulent, you know the strain upon your heart, particularly when compelled to undergo some unexpected activity. Your life is no stronger than your heart. Don't risk untimely death. Ask any physician what this means!

REDUCE WEIGHT HAPPILY!

Adiposity delays the mental as well as the physical processes. It impedes progress toward social, or professional, or business success. It is a foe to efficiency, symmetry and personal beauty.

BUMPER BEET CROP SEEN, HOLLY CONCERN TO RUN THREE PLANTS

S. A. CONSUMER HIT AS PRICE ON PRODUCE CLIMBS UP

Most Noticeable Increase Registered by "Spuds" Market Lists Show

Aviation continues to be one of the favorite sports in the wholesale produce market. This has been especially true during the last few days and the increases are now noticeably felt among retail dealers and consumers in Santa Ana. Increases have been general in the produce list in practically everything from apples to turnips.

The most noticeable increase has been in potatoes, which have jumped from $5 and $6 to $6.50 for Stockton and Burbank fancy and special brands, and russets from $5.50 and $5.60 to $6.50. Local lug boxes soared to $2.00 and $2.25 from $1.75 and $1.80.

Sharp increases have also occurred in beet, cauliflower, onion and rhubarb prices. Beets jumped from $4 and 50 cents per dozen bunches to 50 and 60 cents and the price in sack lots from $2.00 and $2.50 to $3.00 and $3.50. In cauliflower the price per dozen dropped slightly, but a considerable increase in the crate price was recorded, jumping from $2 and $2.50 to $2.25 and $2.80. A straight $1.00 increase in the price of best White Globe onions was made, jumping from $7.00 to $8.00. Rhubarb jumped from $1.25 and $2.25 per box to $2.00 and $2.25.

Butter Drops
According to yesterday's closing quotations on the Los Angeles market, butter dropped off 1/2 cent from 59 1/2 cents, while eggs in crate lots went to 36 cents from 35 cents. Sweet potatoes went from $1.40 and $1.65 per cwt. to $1.50 and $1.75. Lemons and oranges have also taken upward steps in the last few days and Los Angeles markets though the price in the east is reported to be going down. This is due, according to local dealers to the increase in imports. Fancy packed Valley lemons went from $2.00 and $2.50 to $3.50 and $4.75, and local lemons, loose, went from $1.50 and $2.00 per box to $2.00 and $2.75. Navel oranges are firm at from $3.75 and $5.25 per box, but local stock, packed, has jumped from $3.50 and $4.25 to $4.00 and $5.00.

In the poultry market, prices for hens, broilers and fryers show sharp increases running from two cents for hens to eight cents for broilers. Last week hens were selling for 35 cents. There are now 37 cents. Broilers jumped from 36 to 44 cents.

No Reason Known
Local retail produce dealers can offer no reason for the increases.

Green Caps Burned By Freshmen of Pomona College

Several students from here matriculated at Pomona College in Claremont one recent morning when 240 young people, mostly Freshmen, with entrance requirements cleared up, passed into full standing at that institution. The freshmen boys celebrated in the evening by burning their small green campus caps, which college tradition requires them to wear until matriculation, in a hastily-constructed bonfire.

Members of the first year class from Santa Ana are Misses Caroline Blake, Verdelle Breckenridge, Sallie Covington, Mabel Hulberg and Flora McFadden, and Frank Andrews, Cassius Paul, Orlyn Robertson, Arden Taylor, and Fred Wright.

There are about twenty-five Santa Anans attending Pomona College.

ELKS TO BALLOT ON BOOSTING REVENUES

Members of Santa Ana Lodge, No. 794, B. P. O. E., today looked forward to an important meeting to be held at the organization's clubrooms, beginning at 6:30 tonight.

A banquet is to precede an initiation of new candidates for membership and election of officers for the ensuing year.

Two resolutions, in which every member of the lodge is extremely interested, will come up for ballot tonight. One of these proposes raising the initiation fee from the present rate of $25, to $50. The other proposes that the by-laws be amended to require yearly dues of $18 instead of $12, as at present.

An announcement sent out to members advising them of tonight's meeting, said that there are very many local elks who are convinced that the time is not far distant when there will be a concerted demand from a majority of the members for an Elks' building far larger and more commodious than the present structure.

The decision of the lodge to purchase the vacant lot adjoining the Elks' building—a step taken with a view to future needs of the lodge in the way of a larger club-house, has resulted in a demand for larger revenues. It was believed today that the propositions to increase the initiation fees and annual dues would be carried in the voting to night.

STATE COLLEGE DEAN TO VISIT THIS COUNTY TOMORROW

U. C. Leader to View Orchards and Projects of the Farm Bureau

Thomas P. Hunt, dean of the College of Agriculture, University of California, is to spend tomorrow and Thursday in making an agricultural survey in Orange county, with particular reference to its drainage projects, those long established and those in prospect.

Dean Hunt is to deliver a public address at Anaheim High School tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock on "The Motive For Better Farming," declared to be one of the most vitally interesting addresses being delivered to farmers of the state. Growers from all over the county, as well as men and women engaged in business, are invited to attend the lecture.

Dean Hunt is to be taken on a tour of the county tomorrow by W. D. Johnston, president of the Orange County Farm Bureau, Farm Advisor H. E. Wahlberg and a committee of the Farm Bureau.

The purpose of this trip will be to give the college head an idea of some of the things that are being done in Orange county in the way of developing the land to the greatest usefulness.

Seeing the County
The journey will begin with a trip out on to the San Joaquin ranch, then over Lemon Heights to the Hewes ranch, through El Modena to Orange, where the Santiago Citrus packing house will be shown in operation. From Orange the party will go to Olive, across the Yorba bridge into the new oil district. The lemon groves of Yorba Linda and the Valencia orchards of Placentia will be given special attention. Dean Hunt is to be shown some of the experiments in citrus culture that are being carried out on the McCulloch ranch at Placentia.

At Buena Park and Cypress the proposals for drainage are to be studied. The University of California is deeply interested in the drainage question, as it now has under consideration some great projects for reclaiming alkali areas in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys. The university authorities recognize Orange county as among the pioneers in drainage, and for that reason Dean Hunt is going to investigate the drainage question here thoroughly.

After viewing the possibilities for betterment by drainage at Buena Park and Cypress, the dean is to be taken to Westminster, where many of the most interesting demonstrations were that wherein pupils and teachers were given eight difficult problems in mathematics to solve. Garber and two pupils, the Misses Helen Kubitz and Amelia Seidmore, using an adding machine, solved the problems in about 25 minutes each. The teachers, using ordinary methods of computation, required from thirty minutes to an hour to "work" the problems, and at the conclusion of the tests it was found that none of the teachers had arrived at the correct solutions.

Type to Music
Another interesting demonstration given was that showing how students are introduced to the mysteries of typewriting by means of music. A phonograph, playing march music, is used, to train the pupils in rhythm.

POLY'S STENOS REVEAL SPEED AS VISITORS SEE TESTS

Practical Demonstrations Given By Commercial Department

Practical demonstrations of what is being done by the commercial department of the high school in the way of training pupils for business life were given yesterday afternoon by students in charge of O. Garber, head of the bookkeeping division.

The demonstrations, which were given in room 215 of the commercial building of the high school group, were attended by many of the high school teachers, by Mayor Mitchell, by Superintendent of City Schools J. A. Cranston, by P. L. Andrews, secretary of the board of education, by A. B. Gardner, member of the board, by Adam Zaiser of the First National Bank, and a number of business men.

Evidence was given of the desire of those at the head of the commercial department at the high school to co-operate with business men in preparing young people for business life in the way the business men want them prepared.

Pupils Show Speed
Students of stenography showed how they start out to learn their craft. Advanced pupils were given dictation from news matter, and a number of them attained a speed of 87 words per minute, which is considered very satisfactory.

The pupils then transcribed their notes on typewriting machines. A visual demonstration of shorthand notes was given on the blackboard. Matter also was dictated into dictaphones, and later those attending the demonstrations were permitted to "listen" to the recorded dictations. The workings of the multigraph also were shown.

One of the most interesting demonstrations was that wherein pupils and teachers were given eight difficult problems in mathematics to solve. Garber and two pupils, the Misses Helen Kubitz and Amelia Seidmore, using an adding machine, solved the problems in about 25 minutes each. The teachers, using ordinary methods of computation, required from thirty minutes to an hour to "work" the problems, and at the conclusion of the tests it was found that none of the teachers had arrived at the correct solutions.

Girls Aid Winter Carnival Sports Program By Taking Ride On Roller

Eleven Stream Gauging Stations Installed, One Coming for the Santiago

Eleven stream gauging stations have just been completed on the mountain streams feeding the Santa Ana river.

Arrangements have been made for placing a station on Santiago creek for the purpose of measuring the flow of that stream. This station will probably be constructed during the coming summer.

Announcement of the completion of the eleven stations is made in a statement issued by W. A. Johnstone, Water Commissioner, the counties of San Dimas, a member of the State Water Commission.

Johnstone reviews the work that has been done by federal, state and county authorities in a co-operative study of the water supply problems of Southern California, to which work Orange County has contributed and is contributing $1,000 a year. Commissioner Johnstone's statement follows:

Eleven modern stream gauging stations have just been completed on the mountain streams feeding the Santa Ana River. This marks a long step in the progress of a scientific and thorough study of the water resources of the State and is be-

GORHAM, N. H., Mar. 9—Gorham was in the midst of the gaieties of a big winter carnival. Folks from miles around came to "take in the sights."

The time came to run off some of the winter sports. It was found that the course was very rough. To smooth it down a roller was called into service.

The roller wasn't quite heavy enough. The officials were at a loss—until a bevy of smiling, rosy-cheeked school girls climbed on to the contraption. Then the problem was solved, and, incidentally, the girls made merry while the roller was doing its work.

FAREWELL TOMORROW TO REV. F. G. DAVIES

Announcement was made today that the farewell reception which was to have been given Friday evening to Rev. F. G. Davies, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, will be held tomorrow evening. It is anticipated that practically all members of the congregation will attend the event in Dr. Davies' honor. The reception is to begin at 7:30. A short program, in charge of Mrs. Minnie Holmes, will be given. Music will be given by the Sunday school orchestra of the church.

SOUTH MAIN MILL IDLE IN 1919, TO OPERATE THIS YEAR

Coming Campaign May Show Record Output of Sweet Stuff In County

Because of the increase in the acreage planted to sugar beets this year and the fact that weather conditions thus far have been ideal for the raising of beets, it will probably be necessary for the three plants of the Holly Sugar Corporation located in Orange County to operate during the coming sugar campaign season in order to handle the crop.

This was the information given out today by M. W. Draper, manager of what is known as the Southern California plant of the Holly Corporation, on South Main street.

The two other factories operated by the concern in this county are the Santa Ana plant, located at Dyer station, and the Holly plant at Huntington Beach.

Draper declared that the increase in beet acreage this year over 1919 will be in the neighborhood of 25 per cent and that because of ideal growing conditions the crop this year will probably be one of the largest in the history of the county. Much of the acreage has already been planted and in a great many cases the young plants are already above ground.

Rains Great Help.
Draper said recent rains have been of great help to the crop and an excellent stand is expected in all localities. Draper said the increase in beet acreage is general throughout the beet growing section of Southern California and is not confined to this county.

The Southern California factory did not operate last year, the beets which were contracted for that mill being sliced at Huntington Beach and the Santa Ana factory. Considerable repair work was done at the plant just before the opening of the 1919 campaign and new machinery was also installed.

Start Work Soon.
Draper said today that work would probably start at the Southern California plant in about 30 days as much will have to be done toward getting the mill in shape to handle its share of the 1920 crop.

C. L. Killen, superintendent of the plant, who came to California from one of the eastern mills two years ago, will be in charge of the work. The repairs and improvements planned will necessitate the employment of about 75 men, it is said.

ically tapping the keys. The students are taught to tap the keys in time with each beat of the march tune. This is said to be the latest method of teaching typewriting and has been in vogue at the local high school for two or three years.

"I was sorry that there was not a greater attendance of business men at the demonstrations," said Adam Zaiser, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, today. "I was greatly impressed with the completeness of the equipment available, the modern methods used, and the congeniality and efficiency of the teachers."

"What struck me most of all was the desire on the part of the teachers to bring out and develop whatever natural tendencies the pupils might have for particular lines of work. In this respect teaching is far different from what it was when I went to school. When I saw what the pupils in the commercial classes are doing, and the success that they were making, it made me wish to be a young student again. Business men ought to take a greater interest in what is being done in the commercial department of the Santa Ana High School."

LIGHT - SAVING
DISCUSSED

Governor Stephens' indorsement of a daylight saving law for California is meeting with approval, disapproval and an "I don't care" attitude among business men and merchants of Santa Ana. The governor urges establishment of the plan to help relieve the burden occasioned by the water and power shortage, but those here who are opposed to the plan are unable to see where this condition can be relieved by turning the clock ahead.

Harvey Garber, local brick manufacturer, is against the proposition. "It causes too much confusion," he said. "If we must have something of this kind it should be made a national proposition. I would much rather set the clock ahead an hour the year round than to handle the thing the way it has been handled for the last two years. I am not in favor of it at all."

James C. Metzger, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is one of those who have taken an "I don't care" attitude. Metzger, speaking for others rather than for himself, said: "The business men seem to want it and the farmers do not. Personally, I don't care what they do about it. I don't remember now just what effect it had on my life, and therefore it could not have made much difference."

Roy Peterson, local shoe merchant, is for it. "It gives me an opportunity of getting away from the store early enough in the evening to enjoy some daylight amusement," he said.

W. B. Williams, cashier of the First National Bank, does not see the necessity for such a measure. "We are getting along very well under present conditions and I don't see the necessity of causing a lot of confusion by turning the clock ahead," said Williams. "The old method suits me absolutely, and I fail to see where turning the clock ahead can make much difference in the water and power shortage. If we don't use artificial light at night we use it in the morning."

fall on the mountain watershed and of the water discharged by the mountain streams on the plains and at salient points in the course of the larger streams or rivers. The collection of this data requires that it shall be gathered by expert engineers and observers so that when collected it will be regarded as dependable in every way, and to be so the records must be continuous and unbroken and extend over as long a period of years as possible. Most of the records now available are fragmentary and incomplete.

Under this study, maintained through the foresight of the supervisors of the three counties and the active co-operation of state and federal officers, there will be collected data that will be of the greatest value in the future development of Southern California.

Water is the very essence of life with us and the supply available must be conserved in every possible way and put to the fullest use if we are to extend the growth of this section to its greatest possibilities.

Irrigation, power, storage, spreading and flood control projects must be based upon such data and the longer the records are spread in time the more valuable they become. They must also cover all of the variations of seasons and cycles so that wet and dry periods may be anticipated and provisions made to meet such conditions when anticipated.

Must Have Storage.

We have arrived at the time when we must turn to mountain storage where possible and practicable and to underground storage in other situations. The underground supply of water held in the gravels of underlying basins has become an extremely important part of our water resources and the increasing draught upon these reserves makes it yearly more apparent that we must do all that is possible to get the flood waters into the upper detrital cones which exist at the outlets of the mountain streams and not let them rush off in flood times to the ocean, destroying valuable property in their progress. Such percolating waters travel underground very slowly and become an available supply for the rapidly increasing number of pumping plants now in operation during the summer months.

All spreading and other storage systems must be designed to meet the stress of maximum flood conditions and hydraulic engineers are entirely dependent upon rainfall and runoff data in making their plans and estimates. The same thing applies to flood control, highway and bridge construction as well as the protection of our coastal harbors from silt infiltration.

Extend Investigation.

It is proposed to extend these studies to include a thorough ground water survey and when this is done the records obtained will be unusually complete.

The study now under way on the Santa Ana is modeled after one that has been in effect in Los Angeles County for the past three years and much credit is due to the Los Angeles County board in joining in the initiation of a method that combines into one effort all the federal, state and county machinery usually employed in such work so that all useless duplication of effort is avoided and funds are made available to carry on the work in the most scientific and permanent way.

The stream gauging stations are built of solid re-enforced concrete and are expected to withstand any floods or storms that may ever occur. They are equipped with the latest type of self-recording instruments and will give an accurate gauging height record of the flow of the stream by hours, days and months.

Rainfall Gauges.

The rainfall gauges are of two types, the common U. S. Standard gauge used and furnished by the Weather Bureau and the new Marvin self-recording gauge which records the intensity of the rainfall as well as the quantity and tell when the rain fell and how rapid the precipitation. Six of these instruments are now installed between Wilson's Peak and Mount San Bernardino. Eighty-nine official gauging stations have been installed, mostly on the mountain watersheds, by the Weather Bureau under the direction of Dr. Ford A. Carpenter until recently meteorologist in charge of the Los Angeles office. These are inspected each year and daily records maintained and it is confidently expected that from the use of these instruments a far better understanding of the rainfall on the mountain watershed and the laws which control it will be learned than we have at present.

The greatest credit is due Capt. F. H. Fowler, District Engineer of the Forest Service, H. D. McGlashen, District Engineer of the U. S. G. S. and his assistant, F. C. Ebert, engineer for Southern California, Dr. Carpenter and the supervisors of the four counties for the excellent work done by them in making such co-operation possible and practicable.

Dr. Wood, the expert specialist in nerve, stomach, skin, blood, kidney, bladder and chronic diseases will be at Santa Ana on Thursday next, March 11th, and may be consulted at the Chalmers, 312 1/2 W. Fourth St., all day until 7 P. M. Dr. Wood does not treat infants and children; he is a specialist in the diseases of men and women only.

Sugar Beet Fields.

At Garden Grove the work that farmers are doing in sugar beet planting and thinning is to be shown and discussed. The committee desires that the dean get a good idea of the sugar beet industry so far as it is possible to do so at this time.

From Garden Grove the party will come to Santa Ana. Dean Hunt will be the guest at dinner at the home of W. D. Johnston. The address at Anaheim is to be given tomorrow evening.

On Thursday the dean is to be taken into the lowlands, where he will go over lands that have been subjected to drainage over a period of years. He will be accompanied by men who know exactly what the conditions were before drainage was undertaken. The entire morning is to be taken up in going over fields that have been reclaimed.

At 2 o'clock Dean Hunt is to attend the meeting of the directors of the Orange County Farm Bureau. Questions of consequence to the farming interests of the county will be discussed.

U. OF C. PLANS
IN LOS ANGELES

Able Faculty Is Drawn from
All Sections of the United States

Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, dean of the University of California's summer session in Los Angeles, announces that the University of California will, in 1920, hold its third summer session in Los Angeles, and that an unusually strong faculty will be drawn from all parts of the United States.

This summer the session will be held from June 21 to July 31 at the southern branch of the university, which until recently housed the Los Angeles State Normal school.

While at this time arrangements for the session have not been completed, yet Dean Deutsch announces that provision for twenty-five departments has been made. Much attention will be given to English, Journalism and Public Speaking. There will be strong departments in Spanish and French. In education there will be a department of eight, containing men and women of national reputations, drawn from all sections of the country. Philosophy, (with especial emphasis on Psychology), History, Economics, Political Science and Criminology will appear in the list. Among the sciences represented are Mathematics, Chemistry, Geography and Physics. Public Health and Physical Education will be emphasized, and there will be instruction in Music and Art. Other departments which will be represented are Home Economics and Commerce (including Accounting, Shorthand and Typewriting).

The faculty has been selected with great care. The University of California will furnish some of its strongest instructors and ablest scholars. These men will be drawn from several departments of the University, including the southern branch and the extension division in Los Angeles, as well as from the mother institution at Berkeley.

Of particular interest is the list of scholars to be brought to Los Angeles this summer from all sections of the country. In the list already made up, appear the names of fourteen from without the borders of California. Harvard University and Rice Institute, Texas, lead the list; Reed College in Portland, Oregon, represent another part of the nation. Five state universities will be drawn upon this summer—Oregon, Texas, Ohio, Iowa and Utah State College. John Hopkins University, Harris Teachers' College, St. Louis, Missouri, and Western Reserve University of Cleveland, O., will also send representatives.

The faculty will also be composed of men and women active in community service, including the director of the executive committee for the development of community councils in Greater New York, the state supervisor of secondary education of Wisconsin, the director of the health and development department of the Los Angeles city schools, the medical director of the

AND SOU. OREGON

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 9.—Senator James D. Phelan has received a great deal of information to establish the fact that there is an Oriental colony actively engaged in land deals on the California-Oregon border.

A well known Californian, possessing a reputation for veracity and knowledge of facts, has written Senator Phelan the following:

"Ten thousand acres of the richest marsh-land in the United States, situated along the Southern Pacific lines, eight miles southwest of Klamath Falls, has been sold to Japanese growers of California. Ten thousand additional acres are being negotiated for."

"The principal buyer is E. T. Arima, wealthy California Japanese, who says he will try to cultivate this great acreage and to settle upon it a great number of Japanese families, each of whom will be allotted a small plot."

"The influx of Orientals has already begun. In a short while a veritable Oriental colony will have its existence in Northern California and Southern Oregon. The owners are incorporated under the name of California Vegetable Growers' Association."

THREE TRUSTEES OF CITY TO BE CHOSEN

FULLERTON, Mar. 9.—Fullerton is getting deeply interested in its coming city election.

There are three trustees to be elected besides the city clerk and one treasurer. The terms of J. R. Carhart, Albert Sliton and Perry Woodward expire. Woodward has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election. He has held the office two terms and on account of the press of other business desires to retire.

Indications now are that there will be five and probably six candidates in the field for the office of trustee. It is also evident that two or more will contest for the offices of city clerk and city treasurer.

The entrance of Louis Blyback into the field at the eleventh hour as a candidate for trustee puts new interest in the campaign. He resides below the Santa Fe tracks.

juvenile court of Los Angeles, the supervisor of corrective physical training of the Los Angeles city schools and the supervisor of physical education in the public schools of Stockton.

The summer session has its business office at 417 Union League building, Second and Hill streets, Los Angeles, and Miss Helen A. Moore, representative of the session in Los Angeles, is in charge. The office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 to 4:30 p. m., except Saturday, when it is open from 9 a. m. to 12 m. only. The telephones are: 60072 and Pico 3621.

The bulletins of the session in Los Angeles and Berkeley will be issued about March 15, and copies will be sent on request. The preliminary dean's announcement has been issued and may be procured by those who apply to the office of the summer session in Los Angeles, or to the Dean, 105 California Hall, University of California, Berkeley.

Measure Your Oven Heat

Do you ever have "unlucky days" when you bake? Why should there be such a thing as a "lucky" or "unlucky" day in baking? You always use the same recipe. You always measure the ingredients carefully.

What then is the trouble? Is it not due to faulty oven temperature because of the lack of a heat measure?

Direct Action "LORAIN" Oven Heat Regulator enables you to measure the oven heat precisely. By simply setting a marked wheel you obtain any one of 44 different oven temperatures.

With this invention you always have the same temperature and your baking is always the same. This wonderful combination of Direct Action with regulator improves the baking, saves time and worry and cuts down your gas bills.

Futile Agitation by Wets Prohibition Irrevocable

(From the Fresno Republican)

It is nothing less than astonishing to note the belated activities of the "wets" in locking the door after the horse is stolen. Both parties in New York, and scattered political organizations elsewhere, as well as all sorts of non-political bodies over the country, have declared themselves vociferously against national prohibition and have pledged themselves to oppose any candidate favoring it. They demand all sorts of unconstitutional non-enforcement laws, and protest that the Eighteenth Amendment is an invasion of the "reserved rights of the states." Wherefore they demand that the states shall digest themselves of the most important of those reserved rights, the right to a voice in amending the Constitution, and shall surrender it instead to the concentrated vote of a few big cities which, if they are nearly unanimous on anything, could easily determine a nation-wide popular majority.

Speech being free, there can be no objection to these utterances. But why so late? The thing is done, now, and no amount of mere noise can undo it. There is only one way to undo it, and that is to induce two-thirds of the members of both houses of Congress to submit, and the legislatures of three-fourths of the states to ratify an amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment. One-third of either house of Congress or either house of one-fourth of the legislatures, can prevent any such action. And since a great many more than one-third of the congressmen represent districts which are fixedly dry, and since a great many more than one-fourth of the states are determinedly dry, in law and in public sentiment, the thing simply can not be done, no matter how many "wets" may be elected by good politics, in wet or partly wet localities. A small minority of the people of the United States, properly distributed, now have the power to keep the United States dry forever. The majority, to be sure, are also on the same side. But even if agitation were to win over the majority of the people, or if politics were to assure the majority of the lawmakers, the case would be equally hopeless. The veto would still lie with thirteen states, and every one knows that there are thirteen states resolved to exercise it. This power having been conferred on them by forty-five states, it can be taken away only by thirty-six states. And these thirty-six can not be got.

Why, then, so late? Evidently pure psychology. One does not fight against the unthinkable. Prohibition being, to the "wets," unthinkable, they did not think it, even when most of the other people in the United States were thinking it. They could not think it, even when it was enacted law. The thing remained unthinkable until they actually went to the accustomed place and could not get a drink. Even then, though only too tangible, it was still unthinkable. It simply isn't. There ain't no such animal. So they are fighting in the old way, as if it were a proposed menace, when it is an accomplished and irrevocable fact. And they don't know yet what it is all about.

Most futile of all is the agitation for non-enforcement laws to nullify the Constitution. The Constitution says no intoxicating liquors shall be sold. So they advocate laws permitting them to be sold. Some of the southern states tried that after the war, with slavery. The laws, of course, were promptly set aside. So would these be. The thing is finished. All persons able to receive information through their intellects know this. The rest are going through the slow and more painful process of learning it through their integuments. Naturally, they howl.

UP-STATE NEWS

A 110-acre tract in West Sacramento has been decided upon as the site for the main plant of the Virden Packing Company, a $1,500,000 establishment. The site gives the company a three-quarter-mile river frontage and direct access to three railway lines. The capacity production of the plant as planned will make it the biggest establishment engaged in the handling of meats, fruits and vegetables on the Pacific Coast.

Jacob Goldman, a Sacramento pawnbroker, is a sad, sorry man. He took two dogs as security for a $2 loan made to a sheepherder. Then he discovered that under the law he is required to keep all pawned goods for six months pending the return of the owner. The dogs have a great appetite, says Goldman, and the cost of feeding 'em for six months will make him a loser on the transaction by a big margin.

Pacific Coast headquarters for the U. S. Bureau of Entomology were opened in Sacramento last week. The bureau concentrates its attention on the study of insect pests that infect growing crops. Work in California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Arizona and New Mexico will be directed from the Sacramento headquarters.

The Sacramento river is soon to be known as the Nile—but only long enough for the making of an "Anthony and Cleopatra" movie by a Los Angeles film company. The scenes produced along the Sacramento will be used to represent pictures on the Nile.

A road district comprising Sacramento, Yuba and Sutter counties is being proposed for the purpose of connecting up the 60,000-acre Sutter Basin tract with main highways of the Sacramento Valley.

Stockton will have Pacific Coast League baseball for the first time this season, arrangements having been made to stage the games ordinarily set for Sunday mornings in Sacramento, at Stockton. To get Stockton off to a good start, a big baseball auto excursion will go from Sacramento to that city the first Sunday, returning to Sacramento for the afternoon game.

BEAUTIFUL WAR WIDOWS BRING ITALY SHOCK

ROME, Mar. 8.—Never have extravagant clothes been more noticeable in the Holy City than now. People with fixed incomes, who can not afford to keep pace with mad Dame Fashion, are shocked; the Pope issues protests, Bishops and priests thunder from the pulpits against scandalous under-dressing; sacristans have strict orders not to admit indecently clad women into the churches. But objections fall on deaf ears.

In "smart" ballrooms, hotel lounges, restaurants and at the opera, feminine dress has been reduced to such degree that two shoulder chains of gold, silver, platinum or steel and a wisp of a belt form the bodice of a down-to-date woman. She is eighteen or eighty; the skirt vies with the bodice, reaching above the knees, and with a strip of gauze hanging at the side or back, called a "train."

The new rich are not the only followers of this mode; women with handies to their names and family histories which date back ten centuries have caught the fever of exaggerated clothes, and the evening "gown" mostly worn in Rome now consists mainly of bare shoulders, bare back and a daintily gartered knee.

The craze has spread to the women of the proletariat. They wear silk stockings, costly furs on very much exposed necks and high shoes which accentuate the above-knee skirt. The most assiduous attendants at strike meetings, where neo-Bolshevik shriek for Soviets, are female trolley car drivers and postwomen, who wear the most expensive stockings and shoes, display much jewelry and nails brilliant with costly enamel.

Social workers are in despair. They say the increase in vice among the girls and young women can be dated from the universal fashion of silk stockings, high shoes and fur trimmed overgarments. No girl worker's weekly pay envelope can meet such expense.

Certain war widows, all young and many beautiful, are causing a great scandal in Italy, where there is deep reverence for the sacredness of family ties. The War Pensions Act provides that war widows lose their pensions when they remarry. "War liaisons," as they are called, are most frequent in poor districts, whether in cities or the country, and have caused a drop in the marriage of young girls who have not the advantages of a dead husband and the consequent pension.

Another cause of discontent besides the moral one is the privilege accorded to war widows, who cannot be evicted by landlords on any pretext whatever.

"My idea of nothing at all," says the Roundabout in the San Diego Union, "is the man who goes around bragging that he hasn't registered this year and doesn't expect to vote." And I think it's a pretty good idea. Don't you?

EX-MINISTER TO CHINA WARNS OF JAPAN

NEW YORK, Mar. 8.—Paul S. Reinsch, former American minister to China, will declare in the current issue of the Magazine Asia, that Japan employed its participation in the allied Siberian expedition to further its own ends in that region.

He will warn that if Japan adopts an imperialistic policy in Eastern Siberia "such ambitions could lead her only to the end where Germany's military power ultimately found itself, confronted by the solid opposition of the civilized world."

Referring to Siberian expedition, Reinsch will say: "A certain amount of friction arose concerning the attitude to be taken toward local populations. The adherents of the Kolchak regime virtually demanded that the foreign forces should be employed for the active support of that government. The more reactionary elements were disappointed by the strict policy of non-intervention maintained by the American government. Everything opposed to the authorities who courted foreign favor was denominated 'Bolshevik,' no distinctions were drawn. 'Bolshevik hunting' was eagerly pursued, particularly by the Cossack generals. In this they often had the support and co-operation of Japanese authorities. The American troops, on the other hand, confined their actions strictly to the protection of the railway."

"The United States, by participating in the Siberian action for selfish purposes under the stress of war, has won a permanent right to be consulted and to speak in Siberian affairs as far as they affect foreign interests. 'Should Japan adopt the militarist and imperialist alternative to the extent of using the present crisis for the purpose of gaining control of the eastern part of the trans-Siberian and of the North Manchurian railways, this would only reveal a policy dangerous to the peace of the world but it would specifically be a direct attack on the policy of equal opportunity in which America is vitally interested. Should Japan further embark on a policy of exercising political control within other countries through ownership of the means of transportation and other methods, such ambitions could lead her only to the end where Germany's military power ultimately found itself—confronted by the solid opposition of the civilized world.'"

LONG ILLNESS FATAL TO ORANGE WOMAN

As the result of an illness extending over several weeks, Mrs. Chas. F. Ramsey, of Orange, wife of the owner of the Colonial Theater in that city, died Monday night at 8 o'clock. Death was due to influenza and inflammatory rheumatism. Mrs. Ramsey's condition became critical about two weeks ago. She leaves a widower and two daughters.

ANCIENT ROME IS BECOMING MODERNIZED

ROME, March 13.—Rome changes fast; it is getting modernized. Though its citizens who now hang on to antiquated street cars by their eyelashes may have to wait ten years for a comfortable subway, the fact remains—daily life in this old city is rapidly getting to be as prosaic as New York's.

The war killed old customs—too many to mention, and peace has failed to do anything except put a stone on their graves. Gone is the old noisy Befana (Epiphany) toy fair, when children got their "Christmas" presents. This year they had them at Romans predict that stockings will actually be hung up by coming Roman children if things go on like this.

Gone, too, is the Carnival, with races, masques, confetti and noisy mirth. The Feast of St. John, on June 24, when every decent citizen ate snails and garlic and sang Roman ditties outside of St. John's Church, is no more. Any many other feasts and fairs and customs which delighted citizens as well as tourists have been swept away.

Even Aragno is Doomed. But Romans, whether Italian or American, no matter where they happened to be born, consoled themselves with the thought that Aragno was left. Aragno is the biggest cafe in this city—the club, debating room and rendezvous where you look for anybody you happen to want. No sane man seeks a long-lost brother on the telephone or by means of the local "Who's Who." He goes to Aragno—and finds him there.

At Aragno are deputies, senators, artists, journalists, authors, actors, explorers and war profiteers, locally known as "sharks." Its vast rooms, with their dingy walls and huge mirrors, are not more animated than the sidewalk and road outside, which are Rome's modern Forum. The most insolent chauffeur dare not run down man, woman or child outside Aragno. It is sacred ground. In Aragno's public opinion pronounces sentence; when Aragno condemns a government bill, a strike or a play these are doomed to speedy death.

Every American tourist visits Aragno as he does the Capitol, St. Peter's and the Catacombs; every provincial who visits neither of these antiquities goes to Aragno. If he did not he would lose all prestige in his home town. For Aragno is a national institution, like the Liberty Statue or the Metropolitan section of the Sunday World.

Some Will Have to Go to Work. But Aragno's days are numbered; in a short time it will be swept away, to go to limbo with the Befana, the Carnival and other delightful things. The Italian Credit bank has bought the palace and means to turn the famous resort into a banking office, a place where men deal in checks and paper money. The news of this enormity has struck the city like a thunderbolt; protests are loud. Aragno lovers talk of making the government intervene to save the old place. But the bank is

FICKEN MEN IN GRAPPLE WITH FULLERTON

Determined to leave nothing unfast in the way of rooting, a considerable delegation of baseball fans from the Santa Ana High School this afternoon accompanied the Poly team to Fullerton, where a game was to be played with the high school team of that city.

Howard Cock and Bronson Buxton were to be put in as the battery for the Santa Anas by Coach C. R. Ficken.

Local fans had the game "doped" to go to Santa Ana, although it was conceded victory would require a hard tussle on the part of the Fickenites.

Tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 3:30, the Freshmen and Sophomores of the Santa Ana and Orange high schools are to clash in a field and track meet on the Polytechnic field. This meet originally was scheduled to be run off Thursday afternoon.

Efforts were being made this forenoon by Coach Marvin ("Spud") Morrison, head of the Poly field and track squad, to arrange for a three-cornered affair to be run off here Saturday afternoon between Santa Ana, Fullerton and Whittier. Fullerton was agreeable, it was stated, and it remained only for Whittier to join hands. All three schools are members of the Orange League.

The League championship will be decided at Huntington Beach on March 27.

POLITICIANS SILENT ON PROHIBITION AS ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

CHICAGO, Mar. 9.—Prohibition, as a presidential campaign issue, was conspicuous here today by the careful way in which politicians avoided discussing it.

James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and now a candidate for president on the Democratic ticket, declined to make any exclusive statement.

"I don't think it will be an issue in the election, however," he said.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the National Republican Committee, was as reticent.

At the committee's headquarters here, it was said that very few complaints are being received against prohibition.

"If elected, Major General Wood will enforce the law," was as far as his supporters would commit him.

Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois was in New York today and his friends professed to know little about prohibition as a political issue.

hard-hearted and won't give in. Aragno must go, and goodness only knows what is going to happen to the crowds who spend the best part of their lives there. Some actually say they will be forced to work.

Wild Animal Circus Here Tomorrow, Wednesday

Barnes Show With Fifty Two Cars Expected Here About Daybreak

Tomorrow is circus day, and the small boy will be in his own, when the Al. G. Barnes Big Four Ring Wild Animal Circus rolls into town. It is due to arrive here at daybreak, traveling in two sections, making 52 cars, according to Thos. Francis Heney, representative of the show, who is in the city today making final arrangements for the big show and the parade.

Practically the entire performance by this show is given by animals, 1200 in number.

Animals of almost every known species, wild and semi-wild, and domestic performers will be seen.

Leaping about in a huge steel arena in the center of a mammoth water-proof canvas, a group of twenty royal Bengal tigers, said to be the finest specimens ever brought from India, will be seen in skilled acrobatic acts, under the command of a beautiful young lady. This young lady is Miss Mabel Stark.

Miss Stark is the wonder of the show world. This season it is claimed her skill and daring in handling of wild beasts has gained for her a seat among the headliners. Harry X. Clark and corps of clerks will be on hand to see that the kiddies will be well taken care of.

Camels in actual vaulting acts, zebras in see-saw features, kangaroos in boxing bouts, tigers and bears in wrestling roles, pigs and ostriches in racing and driving acts will furnish thrills.

Elephants, dogs, donkeys and hundreds of ponies and horses in skilled circus tricks make new and novel features.

There will be a two-mile long street parade at 10:30 a. m. Doors to the big show open at 1 and 7 p. m. Big show performance starts at 2 and 8 p. m.

GERMAN AMENDS FOR ATTACK ON FRENCH OFFICERS DEMANDED

BERLIN, Mar. 9.—General Nollett, head of the French Mission here, today visited Herman Mueller, German foreign minister, and formally demanded that the government apologize for the actions of a group of Germans, who Saturday night attacked two French officers in the restaurant of the Hotel Adlon.

Prince Joachim Albrecht, cousin of the former kaiser and leader of Germans who beat the Frenchmen because they failed to stand when the restaurant orchestra played "Deutschland Uber Alles," must be punished for his part in the affair, Nollett said.

Mueller expressed the government's regrets at the entire incident and promised punishment for all the attacking Germans. The government will offer a formal apology to the French government, Mueller said.

Nollett also informed the German foreign minister that Belgium and Italy will expect reparation for the recent attack upon Belgian, British and the Italian soldiers at Prentslau, in which he said several Allied troops were injured.

Joachim was taken to the foreign office yesterday. He said his memory of the fight in the Adlon restaurant was hazy, but denied that he threw anything at the French officers. Newspapers asserted that the prince was intoxicated.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET OPENING SHOWS FIRM

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—The stock market opened firm today. Most of the leading issues continued their upward trend or held their gains of yesterday except Crucible, which yielded two points to 225 and Southern Pacific, which was off 1/4 at 99.

Rubber opened at 106 1/2, up 1/2; Atchafson, 84 1/2, up 1/4; Reading 77 1/2, up 1/4; Tobacco Products 65 1/2, up 3/4; International Paper, 81, up 1/4; Republic 85 1/2, up 3/4; American Car and Foundry 137 1/2, up 1/4; U. # CARPENTIER TO 280 LOTS SOLD BE QUIZZED BY 'BUGS' IN AUCTION AT BEACH CITY

PARIS, Mar. 9.—Announcement that Georges Carpentier will retire from the ring after his fight with Jack Dempsey for the world's championship was the first public statement made by Mme. Carpentier following their marriage here today.

"I abhor boxing and I can't understand women who enjoy such spectacles," the bride said. "I couldn't bear to see anyone hit Georges and I'll be glad when he quits the ring. I am going to America with Georges on a honeymoon trip, but I will not attend the fight."

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK Mar. 9.—"No compromise is going to be a handy expression for Georges Carpentier."

With a French shrug of his French shoulders, a blank stare in his scarless face and the attitude of a lost sheep, the European heavyweight champion will have a good defense against the mob that goes down to the dock this month to "get him."

Most of those who rush the gates and get by the customs officials for a real closeup of Georges and his bride will want to know when, where and how he is going to fight Jack Dempsey. The film men will be asking him if he knows how to putty his nose, pencil his eyebrows, oil his locks, etc. Jack Curley will be there to learn if he knows enough Yanks' language to tell his vaudeville audiences a few stories. Then there will be just the hangers-on with the Bromide line of interview shots—"Whadde ye thing of America?" "Howdy like married life?" "D'you think you'll win?"

All the business men who want the champion in on a get-rich-quick scheme will be singing in chorus, "how much?"

Dan Moran, Paddy Mullins and others of serious men, who live by steering some of America's braver away from the snares and pitfalls of the ring, will be in the crowd.

Maybe Georges can't "parley vous" American, but he won't lost anything by it.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Mar. 9.—In the auction of lots owned by the Huntington Beach Company last Saturday, 280 lots were sold at prices varying from $50 to $775. Only two lots were sold at $775, they being on the ocean front.

While the lots were sold at low figures, the company figures that the city will benefit by the building of new houses by those who bought.

Nearly every city in Southern California is represented among the buyers.

The auction was a success so far as the number of people present and the number of lots sold are concerned. The sale was conducted in the Tent City auditorium by Barry & Austin of Los Angeles.

The sale brought the company close to $75,000. Many splendid bargains were picked up by strangers and home people. Several outside concerns were present with representatives, and it is reported that a number of new dwelling houses will be erected immediately. A large apartment house is a possibility.

The sale lasted about six hours, making an average record of fifty sales per hour, with an average price of over $200 per lot. It is stated that the advertising of this sale cost not less than $10,000. It has resulted in a splendid feeling of co-operation on the part of the real estate men of this city and a hope for greater progress in development this year.

For Sale: Furniture for 3-room house. Must be sold at once. Phone 415-W, 792-R or 23 (phone office) or call at 714 South Main. Will be at 637 Riverine, where furniture can be seen, from 10:00 to 2:30.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE BEING DISCUSSED

ANAHEIM, Mar. 9.—A mass meeting of the committees of the Central, Cypress, Savannah and Magnolia schools was held on Friday evening at Magnolia school for the purpose of discussing the consolidation of the three schools, three of which have very poor buildings, into one big union grammar school, to be located on the boulevard at a place which has not as yet been definitely decided.

Dr. Deming was chairman of the united committees of the schools and County Superintendent of Schools Mitchell addressed the gathering, going into the assessments of each district, pupils and expenditures. It was brought out in his conversation that the special tax now levied is 30 cents and a union school would not materially increase expenditures of the taxpayers.

It was agreed to call another general mass meeting Friday evening March 12th, at 7:30 sharp at Central school for the purpose of placing the new union school project before every man and woman in the four districts, and with this in view a special invitation is extended to every one to attend this meeting.

With King's testimony went a mass of correspondence. Among telegrams showing Newberry was in close touch with the campaign, was one from the senator suggesting the famous dry land battleship film.

JO-SAN, THE SUICIDE LADY OF KOBE.

By ELAINE MCCORMICK.

High up on a hill overlooking a harbor where great ocean liners nose in from the Pacific, lives the Suicide Lady of Kobe. Her real name is Mrs. Jo, or Jo-San, as she is respectfully called by the Japanese and foreigners who know her. It was only during the past year that Jo-San became the Suicide Lady. Her husband was a Christian pastor. For sixteen years after his death, Jo-San worked as a Bible woman among her people, opening her home to those who were in distress and her heart to all whose lives she touched.

Her evolution into the Suicide Lady concerns a certain railroad crossing at Suma and a bad Japanese tendency to cut the skeins of life instead of trying to untangle them. Suma became a popular suicide resort. Men and women came from many parts of Japan to end their lives by jumping into the sea, or by throwing themselves under the wheels of passing trains. Police stationed at the railroad crossing managed to prevent some of the suicides, but the number of deaths remained large.

It was when police measures failed that Jo-San had her inspiration. One day all Suma was startled to see a large sign-board at the railroad crossing and another near the water, bearing the words: "Would-Be Suicides, Stop a Moment! If for any reason you feel you must take your life, please call on me and talk it over."

This announcement was followed by Jo-San's name and address. In just four months, 160 for peace and disillusioned after many years of service to Buddha, women and girls turned back from death to accept Jo-San's invitation. Gelsa girls in pitifully gay kimonos and young women from excellent families stumbled side by side up the hilltop path which leads to Jo-San's.

One of the first surprises was the fact that the majority of the women came from well-to-do homes. One of them was the daughter of a famous Tokyo educator, who had married against the wishes of her family and who was too proud to let them know that she regretted money. Disappointed in her quest toward the Mecca of Suicides, Jo-San's signboard carried its message of hope to her and so it was that the woman who had sought peace for five years in the holy places of Buddha, found it at last in the gospel of Jesus.

Loss of health or occupation, strained family relations, and intemperate husbands started the large majority of the women on their journey to Suma. One young woman had entered a house of ill-repute, in order to pay the expenses of her husband, who was studying at an American university. Though the life was more than she could endure, she had no reproaches whatever for the husband who put her in it. She was his wife, and therefore bound to make his welfare her first concern.

Under the name of the Women's Welfare Association, Christian workers in Kobe give what support they can to the Suicide Lady. But the house on the hill-top is no longer large enough for all who have turned back from Suma; and as Jo-San's work is undenominational, no one board has assumed responsibility. Therefore the inter-church World Movement survey committee for Kobe is asking $2,000 for a new house, so that those who come to Jo-San may be sure of shelter during the first trying days of readjustment.

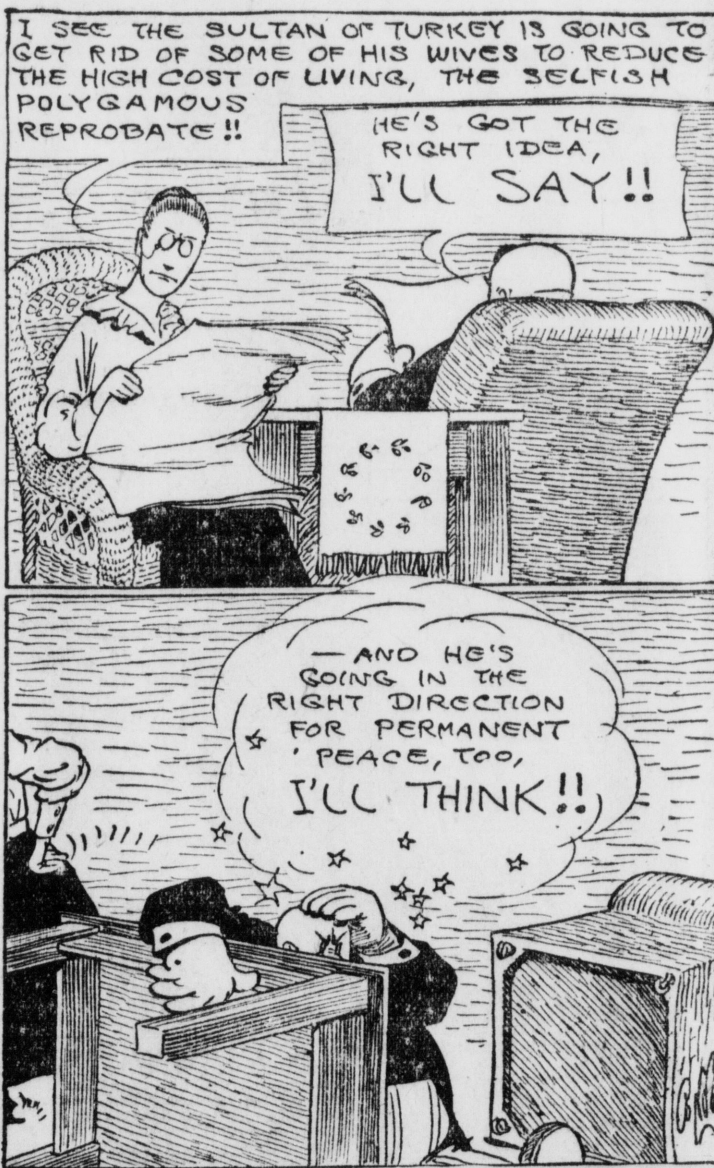

Meanwhile Jo-San's fame has spread abroad throughout Japan, and, day by day, up the steep path go weary factory girls and disappointed wives, unhappy geishas and tired old women—all seeking as their last hope in life the Suicide Lady of Kobe.

Outbursts of Everett True

THRIFT GARDENS ARE URGED TO BEAT H. C. L.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9.—The following has been issued by the Department of Agriculture:

"One way of reducing the cost of living is open to every man, woman and child who can get the use of an idle plot of ground. That way lies through the planting and cultivation of a home garden—a Thrift Garden. The war gardens played their part in the great mobilization of resources in war time—Thrift Gardens now have their own big job in helping households to feed themselves.

"The reasons for Thrift Gardens are many and various. The same reasons that existed last year and the year before are still present. Thrift Gardens will produce food where nothing otherwise would be produced; they will reduce family food bills; they will return abundantly in proportion to the time and effort devoted to them. But added to these reasons is another one peculiar to this year.

"Reports to the Department of Agriculture indicate that the plantings by commercial vegetable gardeners will be materially reduced this year, because the commercial gardeners see no way of obtaining enough labor to conduct their usual operations. The commercial gardeners claim that they have paid high wages in endeavors to keep up production, but now have reached the point where the returns will not justify the continuance of this expense. At least, that is the report reaching the Department of Agriculture from seed merchants, whose operations at this season are regarded as a good indication of what conditions will be a month or two from now.

"If the reduction of commercial gardening becomes a fact, the obvious result will be fewer vegetables and higher prices. The logical remedy lies partly in home gardens. This is a remedy, moreover, that will work no harm even if the commercial acreage should be up to normal, as any surplus of fresh vegetables may be saved by canning, drying, and other means of conservation and the surplus kept so that it will be useful next fall and winter."

EFFORT TO SECURE MORE FERTILIZER

A determined effort is being made to increase the available supply of organic material for use in fertilizing the citrus groves of Southern California. In this connection the Fruit Growers Supply Company is offering Melilotus alba seed to any one who will plant it on land now unused, either irrigated or unirrigated, in order to demonstrate whether or not it is practicable to grow this crop for fertilizing purposes.

The orchard management division of the Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside has suggested that there are considerable tracts of land along the Santa Ana river from the San Bernardino mountains clear to the sea, as well as along the San Gabriel and other rivers that are admirably adapted to the growth of this crop during the spring and summer months.

Any owners of river bottom land who are willing to try the growth of this crop are asked to confer el-ther with Mr. C. S. Milliken of the Fruit Growers Supply Company, Consolidated Realty Building, Los Angeles; the Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside; or Farm Advisor Wahlberg, Santa Ana.

FATHER OF 31, MAN WEDS THIRD TIME

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss., Mar. 9.—John R. Taylor, who furnished more man power to the army in the war than any other man in the United States, has married the third time.

Mr. Taylor is not yet sixty years old. When a young man he married and there were born to the union sixteen sons and daughters. Six of the sons had grown to manhood at the outbreak of the war. They enlisted.

Mrs. Taylor died and Mr. Taylor married Mrs. Thornston, a widow with five children, which brought the Taylor household to twenty-seven sons and daughters.

Several months ago Mr. Taylor's second wife died. He married a Mrs. Brown of Magnolia, Miss., a widow with four children, which brings the total number to thirty-one now under his fatherly care.

Some of the children have married and have sons and daughters of their own, so Mr. Taylor's sons and daughters, stepchildren and grandchildren number more than a hundred.

SHUN OUIJA IN LENT, IS WARNING

POMONA, Mar. 9.—The ouija board devotees should at least abstain from such doings during Lent, was the dictum to his parishioners of the Rev. Father J. J. Sheehy, priest of St. Joseph's Catholic church of this city. Father Sheehy declared that, although his church banned all dabbling in spiritism and similar occult attempts to pry into the hereafter, he did not deem the nefarious ouija board worthy of ecclesiastical ban.

The ouija board, according to the local priest, is harmless unless misguided individuals are foolish enough to believe in it. He did not think that any of his parishioners had been deluded into pinning their faith on a piece of board with letters and figures on it.

Father Sheehy's remarks were called forth by the telegraphic report from New York City that table tipplings, ouija board demonstrations and other spiritualistic seances are forbidden to Catholics, according to the pronouncement of the Rt. Rev. James McGean of the Church of St. Peter in that city. The latter had supported the denunciation of these attempts to peer through the veil by the Rev. Alexis Gensen in a recent sermon in the same church, in which he classed spiritism and devil worship in the same category.

GERMAN CIVILIANS POLICE U. S. ZONES

COBLENZ, Germany, Mar. 8.—Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, commanding the United States forces in Germany, has authorized the organization of special police reserves among the German civilians of many of the towns and villages in the American occupied area on the Rhine. These reserves are to constitute a volunteer force for maintenance of order, will be under the direction of the local burgomasters and police officials, and are to be called upon only in emergency.

The reserves are authorized with a strength not to exceed ten for each active policeman in the town, or not to exceed 100 altogether in any town. The strength in towns where the units are being formed will average from twenty-five to forty men. German citizens volunteering for this duty will serve without pay, unless for expenses when actually training or drilling, nor will they wear uniforms. They can be called upon for duty only within their own town. No common organization will be set up.

PLANNING A POTASH PLANT, FULLERTON

FULLERTON, Mar. 9.—Plans are under way for the erection of a potash plant in Fullerton as a distributing plant for all Southern California of this important fertilizer. W. H. Goss, an uncle of Dwight Hartman, who has been here for several weeks past, has organized a company for the erection of the plant and the rock will be shipped from a potash mine in Nevada which is owned by Mr. Goss. Efforts are now being made to secure a tract of ground adjacent to the Santa Fe tracks for the erection of the plant where machinery will be installed for grinding the rock. It will give employment to a large number of men and promises to be a very important addition to the industrial development of the city. Mr. Goss left Saturday for the Nevada mine to make arrangements for getting out the rock.

Many Widows

are now working to support themselves because their husbands thought that they could get rich quickly by speculation. Where one is lucky enough to win by speculation, many lose their capital. Success in a speculative venture has often been the financial ruin of a man. He is then never satisfied to accumulate slowly but surely, and takes chances which eventually lead to heavy losses. The speculative habit is usually formed in early life when men are not conservative. If successful in speculation, such men take chances later in life, and if they lose it is often too late for them to recoup their losses. Every man wants to protect his family. He can do so by investing his surplus funds in high-grade securities through a conservative investment house. We cannot help you get rich quickly by foretelling the future ups and downs of the stock market. We can help you to invest your surplus funds safely so that you can be assured of a regular income for yourself and family.

SIERRA CLUB'S GOING TO HIKE UP TRABUCO

Thirty or forty members of the Sierra Club, the greatest hiking club in America, are going to climb Trabuco Peak on May 16.

J. H. Scott of Santa Ana, county probation officer, who is an enthusiastic mountain climber, has been appointed leader for the hike, and he has already begun making preliminary arrangements for the event.

"We are going by truck as far up Trabuco canyon as we can go with a truck," said Scott today. "That will be on Saturday, May 15."

By that time the new road that the government and county are building up the Trabuco canyon will be finished, and we may find it most convenient to camp at the new public camping grounds. We will spend the night in camp and will get an early start on the morning of May 16 for our climb to the top of the peak.

"On the return from the peak, we will follow the ridge toward Old Saddleback until we strike the trail going down the Holy Jim ridge. We will follow that down into the Trabuco, hit camp and come on home the same night."

This will be the first organized hike to the top of Trabuco Peak. With the opening of the public camp grounds in the Trabuco there is little question but what hikes to the top of Trabuco will increase in popularity.

Trabuco lies about three miles, on an air line, a bit south of due east from Santiago Peak, which is the highest peak in the Santa Ana mountain range. Trabuco Peak has an elevation of 4578 feet, and Santiago Peak has an elevation of 5680.

ARTILLERY SCHOOL AT FORT SILL OPEN

The War Department announces that the school of Enlisted Specialists at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, is now running and expects to graduate 1,200 men a year from the various mechanical branches which it covers.

The general plan of instruction calls for one period of instruction on Saturdays, devoted to out-of-door military instruction and physical exercises, one period in the morning for recitation or lectures, and one for practical work; one period in the afternoon for quiz or lecture and morning. In all courses an average of twenty per cent is theoretical and eighty per cent practical instruction. In this school the following courses are being taught in periods that run from fifteen to forty-seven weeks each. A student may select one or any combination of subjects he wishes to follow and upon completion will be given a "Certificate of Proficiency" which will mean that he is a master of the work he has studied.

The Battery Mechanics School, Carpenters School, Painters' School and Motor School are in the Mechanical Section. In this, the Motor School is possibly the most attractive and includes instruction in the theory of gas engines and motor cars, with shop practice on chassis, motors, carburetors, ignition, starting and lighting systems, storage batteries and tire repair. The course lasts twenty-two weeks and is complete in every detail.

The School of Saddlery, Horse-shoers and Stable Sergeants includes veterinary work and the care and handling of horses.

The Non-Commissioned Staff School and Clerks' School include stenography, topography, drafting, photography, telephone and radio operation, gunnery, orientation and all kinds of clerical work necessary in a military organization.

The Field Artillery is now open to young men for one or three year enlistments, regardless of former military experience. Here is a chance to learn a trade, earn some money, and go back to civil life with a chance to make good. Further information may be obtained from the local army recruiting office.

MINISTER SUED FOR $50,000 IN STOLEN LOVE ACTION SCORES

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 9.—Appearance of the two women in the case on the witness stand in the Smeltzer-Poucher alienation of affection case had done much to strengthen the defense of the Rev. John F. Poucher, it was believed today.

Mrs. Irma Smeltzer, wife of William G. Smeltzer, theatrical man, first testified for Poucher. Then Mrs. Poucher left her seat by the side of Mrs. Smeltzer and testified to a complete alibi for her husband. The Rev. Poucher is accused in a $50,000 suit for damages of having had improper relations with Mrs. Smeltzer and of having lived with her a man and wife for a week in an Oakland hotel.

Mrs. Smeltzer and Mrs. Poucher whispered together and appeared to be good friends. Poucher until recently was pastor of the Central Methodist church. He was a chaplain in the army during the war.

Mrs. Smeltzer entered a complete denial of her husband's allegations and attacked him as a man who had continually harassed her. The defense is expected to close today. The case may go to the jury tomorrow.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatment which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.—Adv.

SNAKES SENT INTO HOUSE BY FLOODS

BREVATOR, Mo., Mar. 8.—Persons in homes along the Culver river lowlands, near here, recently were enabled to get on speaking acquaintance through which they passed made them reach the conclusion that they had all of that kind they desired for the remainder of their lives. It was during an overflow of the Culver that the snakes made their appearance, invading many of the homes.

Snakes of every possible description were included in the migration and no home for a distance of several miles was exempt. The reptiles were bold in taking possession of the houses. It became necessary to place sentinels to guard every opening in the house, including the doors and windows.

One family with many youngsters rather enjoyed battling with the reptiles until one day a big water moccasin crawled over the body of a sleeping young woman. Her brother, ten, on guard, raised his gun and fired, wounding the snake, which swam weakly from the house, this being one of the homes entirely surrounded by water.

The young girl, awakened by the shot, crouched in fear until the young hero explained how he had come to her rescue. She was in a pleasant dream when awakened. Later in the day the family telephoned for help and friends came in boats and took them away.

USE TRACTOR IN ADIRONDACK LOGGING

MALONE, N. Y., Mar. 8.—For a century the lumbermen have been at work on the Adirondack forests, but up to the present have been hampered by the difficulty of drawing the felled trees to the mills or to distant streams large enough to float the logs to a market. As a result the felling has been confined to winter months when snow enough has fallen to make sledding practicable with horses or oxen. Even then there have been difficulties, and with too little or too heavy snows the lumbermen have found their work brought to a pause. Moreover, the loads of the timber so drawn have always been limited under the most favorable circumstances.

Independent of Weather
The tractor has now surmounted these difficulties, for neither snow or lack of now, neither summer nor winter matters to the tractor; the heavy and rough roads of the mountains are nothing to its creeping, crawling feet.

The lumberman was quick to learn the lesson of the war and today there are machines in the various lumber camps of this country drawing lines of sleds laden with great trees, the hoarse bark of their motors resounding through the woods as they make their way to the skidways.

The danger to the mountains from this new development in lumbering

Shoe Treatments Are Toned Down To Sedateness

They've simplified your selection in men's shoes for spring. A profusion of novelty such as we saw a season or so ago in vari-colored tops and two-toned effects is conspicuous only by its absence. Whatever novelty is noted in this direction is seen in a few models of kid shoes that show black lowers with tan or dark brown uppers, but for the most part, one tone shoes are the order of the day and of these tans lead by a big percentage.

These tan shoes are shown in many colors of the brown shade, ranging almost from saffron, to a dark chocolate. The most popular tones, however, are the coco-browns, mahogany, cordovan, russet and Havana shades.

In the black shoes, the gun metal finish leads and next to these the glossier kid and vici finishes.

Narrow English toes and medium ball shaped toes are more favored among young men than the broad toe effects that the demanded by older men who prefer to sacrifice some of the style element to secure more of comfort.

Wing tips are decidedly fashionable.

The real distinctive departure of the season which started to assert itself to some slight degree the end of the winter, is the "Brogue" style. This is a heavier appearing shoe than has been worn for spring in some time, but its heaviness in appearance is more an impression than a fact.

This shoe is a full modelled last with considerable fancy detailing acquired by ornamentation of perforations on toe, vamp and counters.

The styles in oxfords follow the same general styles as prescribed for the high shoes.

Spats in tan, gray, fawn, brown and buck shades will be worn more this spring than in recent seasons.

may be calculated when one compares the few cords which teams are able to draw with the thirty cords at a trip which one forty-horsepower tractor is drawing daily in the sphere of operations of the Sherman Lumber Company in the Kildare region. Similar motors are at work on other jobs in this country.

Entirely Successful
Thus far their use has been an experiment, but so successful is it that the Sherman Company will add at once another tractor to aid the seventy-five heavy horse teams also at work. And if the tractor continues satisfactory, it will not be long before the chug of the motor will be heard wherever lumbering is now done with teams.

The machine has caterpillar traction and steers with a front sled. It is hauling about thirty cords to a trip, using three sets of sleds. Another sled will be added. The first sled is loaded partly on the rear to weigh down the machine and secure traction. The log road over which the hauls are made is an ordinary Adirondack logging road, somewhat more crooked than the average, but fairly level. There are several grades to descend with the load, but none to climb. Nothing has been done to the out to prepare it especially for tractor operation.

All Santa Ana Invites You to Visit the Stores and View the Displays of Spring's Choicest Fashionable Creations

in Santa Ana

With the return of spring, the glad season of the year, and particularly this spring with its rich promise of warm sunshine and abundance of flowers, coupled with the relief from anxiety suffered during the war, and the late return of the heroes from abroad, there is in Santa Ana an undercurrent of happy expectancy in the very air that urges the formulating of plans for what promises to be the gayest period America has enjoyed in many years.

Naturally, and rightly, the feminine mind turns to the question of clothes, this being a subject never too far removed from the trend of thought with the "fair sex," even under ordinary circumstances, and the joyful plans for summer raiment begin.

Relieved of the self-imposed duty of bringing forth military effects in all their severity, Dame Fashion has been busily engaged in creating styles more in keeping with the peace of a pleasure-loving people, with the result that, owing to restraint, the dear lady has discovered the market with styles of no set design but with models in which the very atmosphere of spring is expressed.

Other than an occasional hint of the mannish note in the tailored suit, and a demure plainness in many of the one-piece street dresses, everything goes to frills and a burst of color. Among the most popular materials for early spring afternoon dresses, taffetas and satins undoubtedly hold first place. Blue, in many shades, is by far the most popular color for early spring suits and holds an important place among the dress materials, but there will be a rainbow of colors for wear later in the season, among which jade green will shine as a favorite.

Tendency to Fullness.
The dresses this year have a decided tendency toward fullness over the hips that is very becoming to the youthful figure and is much prettier than the bustle silhouette of a season or so ago. The local shops are showing a number of these as well as dresses with the "umbrella" hip which is fashion's latest conceit. While the latter is decidedly odd, it conforms to the latest decree of Parisian artists and will, therefore, undoubtedly be a favorite with the younger set. All dresses are short, about ten or twelve inches from the floor being the average length, excepting for the matron of fuller figure, the skirt for her being what is termed of "ankle" length.

Sport Costumes Captivating.
It is said that sport costumes this year will far outshine anything shown in the past, and this news is particularly gratifying to those living in Southern California, as this climate is more conducive to the wearing of this type of apparel than any other in the United States, aside from the fashionable beach resorts of the East and Florida, for which places the fashion centers in New York have designed these chic and unusually clever costumes exclusively until recent years, when Southern California began to make such heavy demands. The sport costume is by far the most popular creation for summer wear in Santa Ana. These costumes this year will show many charming variations that the Santa Ana storekeepers promise will be decidedly captivating.

Modish Styles in Hats.
As a woman's hair has been termed her crowning glory, the hat that covers it should be chosen with the utmost care and provide an equally beautiful frame for the face. The modish styles shown in the local shops this year live up to all that is expected of them, giving a wide range of shapes, from the close-fitting turban to the wide-brimmed hat for more formal year and the popular sport hat.

Fabric hats with a facing of straw, or straw with a facing of fabric are very popular for early spring. These are particularly good in colors, and are made of tulle, satin, horsehair cloth and batavia cloth, and will be worn late into the summer, being especially adapted to complete the sport costume. Transparent hats of larger proportions for dressy occasions are charmingly fashioned of horsehair braid in many colors, smaller hats also being featured in this material.

Some Droop, Some Flare.
Although most of the hats still show a tendency to droop, especially on the sides, and completely cover the hair, many of the models to be shown later in the season will undoubtedly follow the dictates of Paris by a wide upward flare on one side, or side back, and a droop on the other. On the flare side, the hair is brought into prominence and this will, no doubt, lead to a more elaborate coiffure than has been the rule for the last few years. The "eyebrow" hat (so called because it flares from the face and is worn just covering the eyebrows) will continue in favor. Chin chin sailors are somewhat narrower of brim this season and slightly harrowed behind.

Of course, flowers will hold an important place in the springtime trimmings, for what would spring be without them? Many of the flower trims will feature blossoms of different shades, this being dependent upon the hat itself, but a novel note is introduced this year by banking flowers of the same color, graduated

SANTA ANA LEADS IN STYLES THIS SEASON AS IN FORMER YEARS

Local Shops, in Wide Array, Show What's Spring's
Best in Dress.

Admirably situated in the geographic center of "Nature's Prolific Wonderland" and served by enterprising merchants whose constant effort is to give the best and stout in service and goods at the right price, Santa Ana has been and will continue to be the trading center of Orange county.

That this city is the Style Center of this commonwealth as well, is shown by a visit to the local shops during this Spring Fashion Week, or even a "window-shopping" expedition about town.

One of the spring fashion features is the extensive showing of goods for sport wear, the like of which has never been seen here before. And with the California weather in vogue here, and golf, motoring, and outdoor jaunts ever calling, it may be safely said that "sport goods," which is another name for outdoor styles, will "take" here most extensively.

Wide Leeway for Men.
Of especial interest to men is the fact, developed this week as the newest in wearables go on sale, that he has a wider range of choice as to suits than ever before, and he can wear almost any of the models and "be in style."

There are the old stand-by colors, grays, blues, browns, and greens, and they're made up to suit any fancy. Checks are also good, and stripes we have always with us. Mr. Man can go into any men's store here and pick out his favorite color, made up in shape and trimming to his very own taste. He can have his coat with belt or without (most of 'em are without, but there are some attractive sport models with.) He can have it single or double breasted, and with one, two or three buttons. The stylish models are high waisted, with high, step vent, and with the usual conservative models for the staid business man.

Pockets are all styles and all shapes. Some coats have patch pockets, some plain flap pockets, and some slash pockets. Some models, in order to please everybody, even go so far as to have a combination, with patch pocket above and novelty slash pockets below. A feature of many spring models is the small cash pocket, just above the lower right hand pocket. The coats are long, with 31 and 32 inch lengths prevailing.

Shirts are Plain White.
Plain white is the prevailing style in shirts this year, 'tis said in local style circles. This is attributed to two things, the use of regulation white in some branches of the service, and also to the present lack, in some cases, of satisfactory dyes. The plain white shirt and the plain black tie is to be a prevailing combination of the season.

The newest ties are knitted or crocheted, especially for use with silk shirts, but black ties are going to be worn with shirts of madras or poplin as well.

Plain and fancy vests are coming back in a variety of colors to suit the wearer's taste.

The hat tendency for men this season is toward smaller models, but local dealers are well supplied with the broader models which have always been popular in the West.

Men's shoes, as usual, come in all sorts of plain and two-tone effects and here, as in all other kinds of apparel, mere man can choose his outfit with the greatest of individuality.

Really Smart Is New Detachable Lining in Frock

By MARGARET RHOE.
(Written for the United Press.)

The man who designed the detachable cuff.

For this day and age didn't detach enough.

So some clever genius has just finished singing

The patent for dresses' detachable lining.

NEW YORK, March 9.—You may wear a detached air this Spring but to be really smart you must wear a detached lining to your frock as well.

Not smart in the chic sense of the word of course but downright clever for though one of these new detachable linings won't add much in a stylish way to your gown, as a first aid to sanitation, hygiene and time conservation they have no equal.

Just imagine the delight and relief, when the lining of your perfectly good new frock has become a bit soiled to detach it deftly and airily from its moorings and nonchalantly toss it to the hand maiden who presides over your weekly wash board and industriously rubs her way through your entire wardrobe. Then when she has had her way with it and it returns to you a bit worn but pure you fasten it quickly in place inside your gown and presto all is as good as new.

Surely everyone but the dry cleaners are due to hail these detachable linings with joy and rapture and attach themselves with great dispatch to a lining that will thus detach.

Made of heavy washable silk they can be obtained cut to any measure and can be adapted to any type of dress. Just for good measure they

A FASHION REVIEW OF SPRING MODES

by Dorothy Durant

Man would never admit it—but the woman of today will say for herself that she is no longer the slave of one mode. No more do the tall, and short, the stout and slender figure have to conform to one mode, the edict of a group of designers. This is a day of a many sided mode. Not one but many are the silhouettes for Spring and emphasis is laid on variety, in silhouette, in design and in trimming, and in all the vastly important details, variety is the outstanding feature, and few costumes are content with a single material or even a single color. The American woman, like the Parisienne has come to consult her type more and more and admits no one mode to be the criterion of her tastes. Her one desire in planning her costume is to express her own individuality in a chic manner. Chic, after all, is merely being simple in an artful way, an enticingly different way. The French designers who create it quite dazzle you by their seeming lack of complexity. Does it not seem that the mind of a child is forever entering into the smartest of the imports?

Individuality is the keynote of the season, and will go all the way from grandmother's hoops to straight-line frocks. Of course, almost all sleeves are short in varying lengths and skirts have a slim silhouette in spite of the fact that some of them are circular. The length is rather determined by the individual taste. The more conservative are wearing their about shoe top length while the extreme throws sensibility to the winds and flaunts hers at nine, ten or even farther from the ground.

Crisp rustles of Spring are heard in new taffeta which is holding its place as the fabric most in demand for the afternoon or the more informal street dress. Vieing with taffeta, however, are the gleaming satins, transparent marquisettes and the soft and clinging chiffons and georgettes. A taking afternoon model is one of black taffeta, having skirt fullness and a bodice that might easily be suspected of being a basque. This bodice is semi-fitted and trimmed with embroidery in green and rose silk, while the bindings are in narrow black velvet ribbon, thus giving the much desired effect of quaintness so much in vogue at the moment. The skirt is made with a draped over tunic that is decidedly full. This, too, is bound with velvet and the fullness is shirred in under an uneven and short peplum, that is really a part of the bodice, flaring beneath a narrow belt of taffeta.

A little dresser are the frocks of Canton Crepe and meteor for which there is a great demand at the present time.

Charming in their simplicity are the lighter frocks of chiffon and Georgette in many odd combinations of color. A jade green chiffon has a harem skirt heavily beaded—the color deepened in the tucked side panels. A dainty gown of yellow chiffon is used with net and has a narrow ribbon sash of old blue. Orchid Georgette is beaded in squares and the skirt gains its effect of buffancy by plaited ruffles on the sides from the waist to the Turkish hem. The printed chiffons have unusual color effects brought out by ribbon belts.

The wool frock which takes turn about with the spring tailleur is daintily simple in design, though it may be richly embroidered, or delightfully trimmed with ribbon or plaitings of the material used in a number of different ways. These street costumes so charming in their simplicity are characterized by youthfulness and variety. An interesting feature of a blue tricot dress is the clever lines to be found in the yoke of the skirt. Above the wide panel of the back, the blouse fastens on the shoulders with steel balls. Below the skirt is plaited to the yoke on the sides. A suede girdle wraps twice around the waist, then dangles freely in balls and tassels. A charming contrast in color is made with the piping of gray crepe de chine.

For the spring tailleur, fashion favors a suit with a short or a bell shaped coat with the extreme length running to the finger tips. Also the Eton fever with the spring fever comes on us every year. This season, however, the recurrent malady seems more virulent to form. In the longer coated models the designers have attempted to ignore the belt but it has persisted despite the efforts to make the unbelted coat the mode of the spring. Besides the tailored suit, novelties in combinations of material are fascinating and different. One of this type has a coat of duvety, in a soft, dark shade of brown, stitched in a mauve silk, and mauve colored thistle-dew or silk ratine makes the skirt a pleasing contrast.

But what are the fair prophecies of smiling summer skies? It is the wise woman who looks that far ahead and plans her summer frocks airy and light in color and texture. A wonderfully new and complete assortment of cotton fabrics are gaily suggestive of sunny days. But even in the bewitching collection of sheerness and color, one charming material stands out from the others because of its individuality and because of the old-time quaintness of its design, for it is unmistakably reminiscent of olden days. This English sateen is a fabric as soft and pliable as chamusee and its patterns are taken from rare old prints. Closely following the English sateens in newness and charm are flowered organdies, dotted Swiss, checked voiles and ratine in new designs in a brilliant assortment of plain colors. The popular English prints retain their popularity this Spring, and the same designs will be displayed in a new fabric, a soft, silky muslin, called tropical silk. One of the loveliest of these has a design of prim little forget-me-nots in blues and greens, and a suspicion of mauve, outlined in black and printed very closely together.

Plaids have come back. In velours blouse is one to covet to wear with a suit or a simple organdy skirt. In the bright colored sport skirts for summer wear, besides the usual tailored models there are a number of the more unusual kind in silks. One of these is a box plaited pongee which gives freedom for movement without destroying the desired straight silhouette and then also those in accordion plaited crepe de chine in white and in fancy sports material as Kumsi-Kumsa, Fan-Ta-Si and Tricolletes.

As for the cape, it would be a serious error to imagine that its smartness is in the least impaired, for no one has tired of it, and new versions are constantly being seen both for street and for evening wear.

cepted definition. They now are known as "bust confiners" and are transparent, lacy bits; many of them without backs, and practically all without straps.

For all the sheerness, they are a practical addition to any dainty wardrobe for they combine with their beauty a confining perfection in fit and elasticity.

Never before have designers attempted such elaborate models. There are evening garments made entirely of real lace, and fine imitations; there are any variety of broadened silks that combine the colors of the rainbow.

The strap over the shoulder is becoming passe.

However, it is employed on some garments, and then it is a very narrow silk cord while others employ a very narrow elastic in the top of the brassiere to make it cling.

If a woman is the eldest unmarried woman of the family she may have simply "Miss Jones" on her cards, otherwise she should have her full name.

The cockade of ribbon is a popular trimming for the newest millinery.

NEW BRASSIERE IS A "BUST CONFINER"

GINGHAMS IN NEW STYLES

Ginghams are the new-rich of the dress fabrics. Once on a time there were two patterns of gingham. There was the gingham in a large check, and there was the gingham in the small check.

Once upon this same time, too, gingham appeared in perhaps three colors. There was red gingham and blue gingham and black gingham, and this was the complete story of gingham.

Now, gingham have advanced in the society of fabrics until there is not a material on the market which appears in so great a variety of colors and patterns. There are the pastel colorings of lavender and pink and delicate blue, and gay greens and combinations of rainbow shades. Colors once thought impossible of combination now appear boldly in gingham patterns, such as green, oranges and blue, or tan, red and black, or pink, Nile green and brown.

Apron Gingham Thing of Past Gone, too, are the gingham in their conventional check patterns, which once were made dress-up enough for kitchen aprons by elaborate cross stitch patterns. If these are still to be found, they are on an obscure shelf at the rear of the shop, and the clerk, asked for apron gingham, will look puzzled and say: "It seems to me we had a piece of that."

Now gingham demand at least one of the display windows of the store. Here they are draped into imitation of the latest designs of Paris frocks. The patterns are no longer conventional. Here are irregular checks, wide stripes, narrow stripes, and combinations of all three. It is said that the gingham designers command the highest salaries of all of the fabric designers.

As to designs, there are three stages in the history of the advance of gingham from the kitchen apron to the frock of the present day. The second period was that of the neat house dress trimmed with a simple braid.

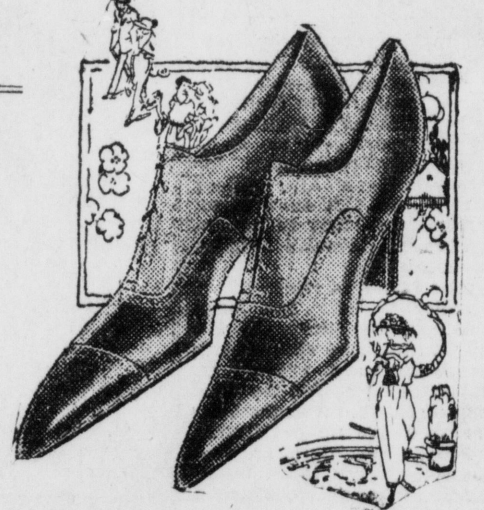

Now They're All Dolled Up. But this trim, starched house dress is a very humble forerunner of the gingham dress of today. Made by the same design, trimmed in the same way, worn upon the same occasion as its formerly patrician silk neighbor, how is the gingham to be distinguished from the dress fabrics which have always moved in the best society?

Dinner dances and afternoon affairs are graced by the gingham dress, which rubs elbows—if, indeed, it has sleeves at all—with the taffetas and the satins. It is ruffled and puffed like the taffeta party frock, with extended hips like the Parisian models of the silk dresses.

When Narcissus bulbs are grown in the house they should be started in a dark place.

Boudoir Fantasies

By Dorothy Durant

What young woman person could resist the lovely lingerie, and the other million and one dainty boudoir novelties shown here this spring in the shop? You, who are planning for that one big event of a lifetime, that necessitates the complete trousseau, how beautifully simple the creator of lovely things has made your task! One glimpse is quite enough to convince you that this season was made a delightfully unusual one for you. Whether the "big event" is planned for tomorrow or for a time far distant, with the extensive selection before you, your problem fast begins to dwindle and before you realize it has been solved, and all is in readiness for the moment. In all garments the exceptionally fine quality of the fabrics, dainty laces and hemstitched motifs contribute to their charm. The wisest shops are paying special attention to the bride. They leave her nothing to wish for after choosing her bridal sets, so exquisitely dainty and so complete in every way.

To the average feminine mind perhaps the silk lingerie in the delicate shades will be always the most interesting. The elaborately trimmed silk undergarments have given way to the desire for the more tailored ideas, which are made to fit the figure as though to special measurement. In the more tailored designs are pussy willow either trimmed with real Irish lace or in sets in unusual patterns of flat lace, and the Japanese satin, very new, very soft and very washable, feather stitched and made entirely by hand. This satin is lighter than the domestic variety, but has been found of excellent wearing quality. For the more frivolous taste, georgette crepe is favored. There is a particular fairylike airiness in the blue georgette chemise, one of a three piece set, hemstitched, and simply but strikingly trimmed with French bow-knots of two toned American Beauty and purple moire ribbon.

Even the more conservative stop to gasp at the displays of black and henna colored georgette underthings. Those with fastidious tastes will add immediately at least one piece of this fascinating new lingerie in their spring wardrobes. One set specially proves that black and daintiness can be synonymous. Every stitch is made by hand with silver thread. Black Valenciennes lace is combined with black georgette between which are rows of net puffs. Two toned rose and lavender moire ribbon is run in and out through the garments and caught delightfully with wee French flowers. Another unusual note in color is henna. A bridal set in that shade is particularly lovely and consists of chemise, night robe and negligee. The chemise and night robe are simply made by hand with a silver thread stitch, the only trimming being a grape design in henna velvet applique. The foundation of the negligee is velvet brocade on silver cloth, over which is a coat effect of georgette and on this steel beads are worked in elaborate design. The fish tail is beaded with a long steel beaded tassel.

There are many who prefer the Philippine hand-made lingerie, the new handkerchief linen underthings or the innumerable dainty cotton materials. The patient fingers of the Oriental needle-woman alone can produce the sheer loveliness of the Philippine hand-made lingerie. They have chosen the finest nainsook, and using this foundation have wrought designs representing the traditions of generations, in the most delicately embroidered garments. What clever use the experienced needle-woman would have for handkerchief linen! The tailored styles are

CHIFFON HAT FEATURED

FOR SUMMER TIME WEAR

This year designers are favoring chiffons and tulles with brims drooping to shade the eyes. Low over the eyes, and flaring slightly higher in the back, the hat is trimmed only with a band of blue grosgrain ribbon of medium width at the base of the crown, and one upstanding conventional blue flower at the side of the front. The crown is shirred in upon cords at intervals.

SPRING STYLES IN JEWELRY DIFFERENT

Spring styles in jewelry are described as quite different from those shown last year. Bead necklaces continue to be good and jade is the leading color for the new season. Last spring red was the color.

There is a touch of the Oriental in all necklaces. One manufacturer in New York displays a line of necklaces in both round and odd shaped beads, complete sets, consisting of beads, bar pins and bracelets, in which the same design appears, are being shown.

Some of the necklaces are beads and links, while others are made entirely of the beads.

Bracelets are once more becoming favorites, owing to the short sleeves to be worn this spring. A vogue for wearing two or three bracelets on each arm is promised. Earrings will not be worn so much this spring, according to New York.

There must be a change in the style of the coiffure before much interest will be taken in earrings. Those that are being shown are mostly the long Egyptian designs, some of which seem almost like weights, because a large French pearl or fancy jade ball hangs on a slender sterling chain.

This style is arranged for those who wish to follow the fashion in hair dress and at the same time wear earrings that will not be concealed from view.

The new hair dress styles are responsible for considerable interest in combs. One of the newest types on the market is a tuck comb, which hardly exceeds the size of a large hair pin and is used to hold in stray locks.

RAISING SILK WORMS

Silk worms are to the farmer's wife of Japan what the chicken is to the women of American farms. The Japanese women raise the worms and feed them, and reel their silk to help the high cost of living. This extra worm is a real drudgery at least twice a year—during the feeding time for the worms. During each other in seeing which can look the most like what has been com-

DRESSES BY OTHER NAMES. Coats, suits and blouses vie with each other in seeing which can look the most like what has been commonly accepted as dresses. Some coats fasten to the neck, suits have the Eaton tendency, and some new blouses are made so long that they can be worn instead of dresses.

NAVY PREDOMINATES.

Early showers of spring suits in windows have a tentative air. Navy predominates, and a suit is seen here on moderate lines, and another on Eaton lines, and still others with hip-length coats and somewhat unusual cut of sleeve, collar and coat closing.

MAKING OF CRETONNE SPREAD IS DESCRIBED

A bedspread made from white with a cretonne touch is very good in a bedroom which is prepared with plain paper. Use a plain white spread or white muslin the size to fit the bed. Cut from cretonne a bunch of flowers and baste one in each corner, with a larger one for the center. Sew to the spread and finish the raw edges with a fine featherstitch, or with a long and short buttonhole stitch.

This idea can also be carried out for scarfs to fit the dressing table and bureau. Make scarfs of linen to fit the top and finish them with a scallop of feather stitch or long and short buttonhole stitch. Cut out the flowers and applique to the edges of each scarf. Bunches of the same flowers can be added to the corners of the white curtains with good effect.

CORSETED, YES, BUT NOT CONSPICUOUSLY

Out of this season's bewildering dictates of Fashion, one thought stands clear—you must appear natural.

Uncorseted? No! Emphatically, No! Certainly frocks and suits never more definitely demanded the foundation of a clever corset. When Paris says you should look "uncorseted," Paris means you should wear a corset so deftly designed to be a part of yourself that it merely accents the natural beauty of your figure and the most critical observer will not be able to trace your charm to its subtle support.

FLANNEL TROUSERS TO BE $20 NEXT SEASON

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—To speak of flannel is to talk in terms of the prosperous leisure class.

One dealer in both custom and ready made garments issues this statement: "Our lowest price for a pair of flannel trousers next summer will be $20."

While flannel is high and scarce, the situation will not be acute, for the demand is pretty well confined to out-of-door men who can afford to gratify their whims, and retailers declare that only stores catering to this sort of trade feel the necessity of buying in large quantities.

Fashion's Decree Is That Woman Shall Appear Natural

It is the corset style that best expresses your own personality by accenting every natural beauty of your figure.

Natural beauty!

Never has Fashion dictated so generously.

Just be natural.

Buy the corset that will give you comfort; the corset that will give you poise and perfect body proportions without a moment's feeling of restraint; the corset that will accent your every natural charm.

The season's slogan in Fashion is, "Be Natural."

An unusual trimming for a nightgown or chemise is a loop of ribbon passed through two large embroidered eyelets.

Manly Models Are Prominent In Boys Wear

There is less difference between boys' suit models and young men's models, than in previous seasons. This is due to the fact that the young men's models have become more youthful and in the effort to put spirit into the garments, the designers have encroached upon many of the style details that in the past were characteristic of boys' suits.

Yoke backs, panels, knife pleats, and novelty pockets are shown with equal prominence in both boys' and young men's styles and now that young men have for the time been discarded the belted coats, we see less of them in the boys' models.

Another meeting point between the boys' and young men's styles is in the fact that boys' models are more manly. The lad of today, with his physical training, athletic propensities, and even military practices, in school, in developing more premar-turally the athletic figure. Accordingly, alert designers are making their models more chesty, the waist lines more accentuated and the shoulders more erect. Hence, what you see in young men's models are pretty apt to find their replicas in the boys' styles.

School boys have never been much addicted to top coats or even raincoats, but the leather coats have sounded a new note in styling and the lighter weights in these will be worn considerably this spring both by school boys and girls.

In the little fellows' styles, the ages from 2½ to 8 years, much in the way of novelty modeling, is introduced. Both in the wool suits and the wash suits the military influence is being eclipsed by other models. Officers' styles and aviator models are not shown with any prominence.

The middy models alone remain, and these are more of the French and depositaries throughout the country from cashing any bonds or securities or handling any deposits made by Arnstein under that name or any of a dozen or more aliases, including McCormick, Agres, Baroch, Cohen and Brice. Arnstein is the husband of Fannie Brice, one of the principals in "Midnight Frolic," now playing on the New Amsterdam Theater roof.

The couple lived at No. 1 West 83rd street under the name of Arnold, where the wife also used her stage name, Fannie Brice. When a reporter called there, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Arnold was at home, but their young child had been left in the care of a nurse. The maid said Mr. Arnold had been out of town some time and that Mrs. Arnold left the house later and had not returned.

Miss Brice was due to report at the New Amsterdam Roof for a rehearsal of the new "Nine O'Clock Revue," soon to be produced, but failed to appear. Throughout the afternoon the management tried to reach her, but received no answer to telephone calls to her apartment. She played in the Zeigfeld "Midnight Frolic" one night as usual, and was due to report for the following night's performance at a quarter to midnight.

Broadway found much interest in the affair, and was greatly struck by the dramatic feature of the comedienne's devotion to her husband. According to Broadway gossip, she is so attached to him that she would stick to him through thick and thin, and has always in the past stuck up for him regardless of consequences. She has been questioned by the district attorney and the police.

Arnstein was seen on Broadway less than two weeks prior to the return of the indictment against him. He attended a performance of the "Midnight Frolic" to see his wife's "turn," and was also seen walking on Broadway, near 42d street.

The district attorney's staff knows Arnstein was once a member of the Gondorf gang of wire tappers, and his recent exploits have caused officials to conclude that members of this old outfit have merely shifted the scene of their operations to the financial district and changed their methods of swindling.

It was learned that Arnstein has served time here for "wire tapping." June 17, 1915, he was convicted by a jury before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions, and June 28 was given a sentence of two years and ten months to three years. He served at least the minimum.

Deposit Box Empty

Chief Assistant District Attorney Talley said he had found at a local bank an empty safe deposit box in which, it is said, Arnstein had a large sum of money. Mr. Talley also discovered a bank account he thinks is Arnstein's under another name.

Although the indictment charges Arnstein with criminally receiving only $42,000, the authorities have reason to believe he has disposed of at least $1,500,000 of stolen securities in this and other cities. He is believed to have been actively associated with David W. Sullivan, a broker under indictment, as well as with the Gluck and Bunora brothers and others.

Assistant District Attorney Murphy, who presented the evidence that resulted in his indictment, said he would ask that Arnstein be held in not less than $250,000 bail if he is caught.

COYOTE PELTS IN DEMAND.

PAWNEE ROCK, Kan., Mar. 9.—Due to the high prices being paid for coyote pelts, in addition to the beneficiaries derived from lessening the marauders population, hunting of coyotes has developed into a popular pastime in this vicinity this season.

As the pelts sell for from $8 to $12 each and the State pays a bounty of $1.25 for each scalp, one "kill" a day nets a good profit to the hunter.

even come provided with an extra pair of sleeves. They certainly seem to be a mighty good thing to get next to or at least to get next to you.

Yet another detachable note promises to enter into our Spring fashionable scheme of things and that is the return of the Alexandria curl, as they call it in London, or the old Janice Meredith curl as we knew it here, in days of yore. It is that one corkscrewed tress that is allowed to dangle intriguingly over one shoulder from a loosely pompadoured coiffure. Ten to one it is as detachable as the aforementioned linings but to be firmly attached to the scalp does not bar it from the mode. It is a question whether the American girl will take very kindly to this form of hairdress for here we go in rather for the smart and original type of coiffure than the romantic and curls are relegated to the realms of the films and reels and looked upon as the exclusive prerogative of the movie queen.

Even if we don't fall for the coy Alexandria curl this Spring many queer things are due to go to our heads in the form of oilcloth hats in every hue and shape, hats woven of ribbons, raffia, heavy string and cord and even of the succulent soda water straw. These latter creations are bound to be quite tasty.

RAFFIA USED IN TRIMMING

Raffia is a favored trimming for both hats and dresses. It is used in a variety of unique ways. Patent leather is also used to trim dresses, and sometimes is combined with raffia.

GO TO HISTORY TO GET STYLES OF TODAY

Three Distinct Tendencies Are Seen in the Season's Offerings

The new styles are old styles. And the newer the styles, the older it is. In other words, a fashionable assemblage of women today will be a sort of panorama or pageant of the dress of women of many centuries.

The fashion arbiters long ago gave up the idea of actually creating styles. Instead, they search in the history of the past, and choose here and there a style suggestion, which then becomes the style of today. Two or three of these suggestions gleaned from the pages of the past furnish the basis upon which are built the styles for a whole season.

For instance, in the present season there are what the style-makers term three style tendencies. One of these was chosen from the Louis Fifteenth period in France, and is to be recognized by the hip draperies, the ruffles, the short sleeves, and the bodice waist. Then, by a big geographical jump, the style-makers went to the Balkans, and from those countries originated the long, clinging chemise frocks. A third style tendency is seen in the jaunty jackets of Morocco, reminiscent of the days of pirates.

Again and again these style tening from the faintest tint into the deepest hue, giving an effect that is altogether charming.

Now as to Shoes.

Shoes with the long vamp will continue to be worn, but will share their favor with the short vamp with rounded toe. The latter will be featured with one strap, tying high over the instep, as is the fashion now prevailing in Paris. Either style is correct, so it is possible to gratify the taste and comfort of admirers of both this spring. Of course, low-heeled sport shoes in white never quite lose their favor, as the past few seasons have demonstrated.

Some of the newest arrivals in hosiery are altogether startling and, therefore, bid fair to become extremely popular. In these, the vogue for lace is revived in an exaggerated form, the openings being equal in size to the openings in bobbinet. Black seems to hold first place, excepting, of course, when the shoes are colored or white.

Organdy in colors bids fair to be more popular again for frilly vests, collars and cuffs for the tailored suit.

The world's record of sugar plantations contains 13,000 acres, has thirty miles of railway and employs 1500 people.

Tendencies will be repeated in garments for women. Suits and dresses will be modeled on one of these three general types. But, with a high regard for historical accuracy, there will be combinations of the different types. A straight-line frock may have an unexpected ruffle, unlike the dress from which it was copied. In this sense only, the styles of today are new.

'MIDNIGHT FROLIC' GIRL'S MATE SOUGHT IN BIG THEFT

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—A general alarm was sent out recently for Nicholas Arnstein, known also as Arnold, Cohen and by other aliases, who was believed to be the chief receiver and distributor and "master mind" of the gang of financial district thieves who stole $1,500,000 or more within a few months.

Arnstein, who is sought on an indictment charging him with receiving stolen property, was thought to have fled to Cuba, London or Paris, and cables were sent to officials in those places to apprehend him, if possible. Mexico also was wired.

Detectives Mindheim, Mayer and Brown had expected to arrest Arnstein at Huntington, L. I., but it was believed he fled the country when he indicted in connection with the same theft that led to the indictment of the Bunora brothers, Irving and Joseph Gluck and "Big Bill" Furey. Each of these men was held under $100,000 bail for trial.

Arnstein has been arrested in London, Paris and Monte Carlo, and more recently has been posing as a broker in this city, according to information received by the district attorney. It was known that he frequently visited Furey at the Argonne Hotel, but an official of the district attorney's office said later Arnstein was not then under indictment.

Joseph Gluck is responsible for the information of Arnstein's connection with the $5,000,000 bond theft gang. Furey refused to divulge anything of a connection with Arnstein, but the younger men arrested at the same time have furnished details.

NOT FOR GAMES BUT MORE FOR LEISURE

The tendency to specialize the various costumes in a fashionable wardrobe at present is due in part to the character of materials from art looms of the designers. Silks, for instance, designated as "sports" kinds have inspired ideas for dresses and suits for resort wear that are not intended for strenuous outdoor games, but rather for dressy daytime hotel and country club uses.

Among smart models for resort wear are combinations of linen and voile, or Georgette crepe. Linen and net are combined also in pastel colors, and in the stronger sports colors to some extent. The possibility of getting fine linens, which have been scarce on account of the war, promises a stronger vogue of that fabric for dainty hand-made gowns.

These will vie with simply made dresses of crepe de Chine. There is some lessening in the use of hand embroidery both for woolen dresses and those of silk or expensive cottons. It is difficult now in Paris to get any amount of hand work done at moderate cost, hence the lessening of it. Cotton crepe is made up in smart dresses that have modish fullness, and there are embroidered net dresses and wonderfully dainty models of pastel organdie with frills or tucks.

Lace gowns of semi-formal evening character are notable factors in the resort outfits. Chantilly in ecru and black, is used for elaborate dinner dresses, while in combinations with satin and metal tissues, some of the most charming formal gowns for late winter and spring functions have been designed.

Three piece sports costumes have attracted attention. Such a pretty combination of a one-piece dress of blue fiber satin with a bloused coat of white knit angora that seems indispensable to the outfit has been exported for Southland wear. Novelty tricolletes, some with tinsel threads woven with fine fibers are ultra smart for both town and resort wear. They are made up in straight line effects with some embroidery, or combined with plain material.

Fluffs and Frills In Spring Attire; Fluting'n Ruching

By MARGARET ROHE
(Written for the United Press)
NEW YORK, Mar. 8.—Much fuss and feathers, fluffs and frills will deck our garm this spring in trimmings truly feminine we'll not o'erlook a thing. The tiny ribbon ruching and the fluting soft of silk, the puffings and the scalloppings and the bandings of that ilk will edge the many flounces and the pannier and puff that set about the hip line till its quite bouffant enough.

A most attractive model, a baby blue in tinge, is trimmed in rows and rows of narrow silken fringe. The fringe, uncut, has silken loops and its cerulean, too, but once within its dainty folds no maiden could be blue. Of taffeta this frock is built, fringed panniers at each side, a fitted bodice, elbow sleeves and neck low, square and wide.

The fitted bodice is the thing. Its really come to stay whether its with or sans the stay it's welcomed either way. Some high necked are some cut so low that they are all cut up. The high ones fit snugly the throat then flare your chin to cup. The low cut ones affect the square or else the oval line and wear a bit of hand made lace of texture superfine.

The slip on blouse is also good in any stuff that at all has an Oriental touch, a bit of Chinese shawl or gold and silken tricolette or Batiks, hectic tinted. These blouses rather stunted, the hips in manner rather stunted. The knitted silks with metal threads are perhaps used the most to make these striking garments and you'll see of them a host, worn usually with pleated skirts of chiffon or Georgette, in fact, replete with pleats we'll be which will deplete, you bet, your bank roll to indulge in. There's expensive quite and yet if you don't own a pleated skirt you can't be in our set.

A rival of the pleated skirt is one all flounced galore with Spanish lace in fulsome grace of flounces three or more but these aren't worn with separate waists their bodice is the same of lace or else of chiffon unless they do maintain a chic artistic contrast with velvet bodice and low cut neck and makes you look a sight akin to some old painting by Spain's Valesquez great specialty if a Spanish comb is perched atop your pate.

And then the veils—oh all females this spring will own a score, Salome's paltry seven would not do any more. The larger and more flowing these lace squares can be the more appealing they become to each and every one. Of Spanish lace they cover hats of large and floppy brim or else around wee turban shapes they're gathered taut and trim to drip and flutter down behind and shimmy in the breeze. Some only to the waist attain while some reach to the knees. Come take the veil they never fail one's beauty to enhance and on bright eyes behing a veil Love always takes a chance.

THE SILK SHIRT EVERYWHERE POPULAR

The silk shirt!

What the silk stocking has become to a woman, the silk shirt has become to a man. None is properly dressed of the "smart" young men nowadays unless he wears a silk shirt. So great has become the demand for silk shirts—and silk stockings—testified clothing dealers in the hearing here, that all the product of millions of silk worms is going to the backs of men, and to the nether extremities of women, where this same product used to go to much more needed and useful purposes.

In the East there has been a demand for silk shirts such as history never before knew. It is said that the cause of the increase in the demand, Men who never before were able to afford silk shirts are buying them recklessly now.

Whatever may be said about the silk shirt, the fact remains that right now it is a very popular garment among men.

FIND ROCK BILLION YEARS OLD
BLOOMINGTON, IND., Mar. 9.—There are rocks and rocks! Indiana University students see Monroe county limestone in great quantities, but rock-calloused as they are, they have taken a special interest just now in a rock that make Monroe county variety youngsters in comparison. The specimen has just been received by the Department of Geology from the Smithsonian Institute. Geologists here say that it is fairly old—a billion and a half years, approximately.

FREAK LEMON TREE
FRESNO, Cal., Mar. 9.—A horticultural freak of more than usual interest has been discovered in Fresno county in a lemon tree whose fruit average 22 inches in circumference and is nine inches in length. The fruit is a cross between a lemon and a grapefruit, having the flavor of the latter. The extreme size of the fruit detracts from the commercial value. The tree is thirty years of age and has more than 1,000 of the enormous lemons hanging from its massive limbs.

A snail, crawling without a pause, would occupy fourteen days five hours to travel a mile.

STOCKS EXPAND EACH SEASON RAPIDLY

Santa Ana stores have grown a lot in the last year. They have expanded in many ways, and are today better able to take care of the wants of customers than ever before.

There has been an increased area of buyers turned toward Santa Ana. Hundreds of people have learned that there is no need of going to Los Angeles to get the very latest and the very best in goods. There is money gained in buying in Santa Ana.

There is a pronounced atmosphere of being up-to-date in the stores of Santa Ana. People feel that the clerks and the store proprietors know just what they are talking about when they are talking about styles and materials.

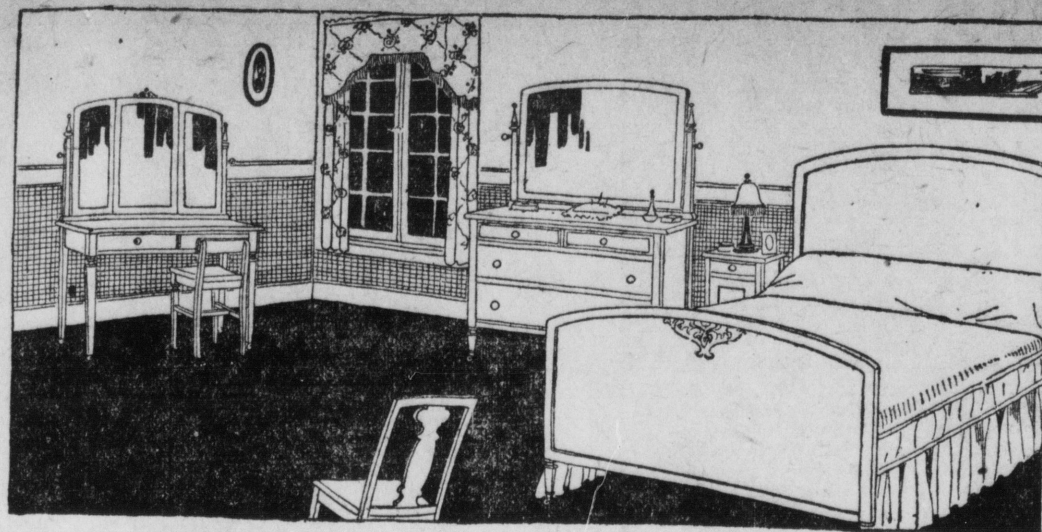

And what is more, they do know. The expansion of stocks has been along the direction of meeting the demands of the people who trade in Santa Ana stores. Santa Ana merchants watch the needs of the Santa Ana trade with extreme care.

Every reasonable consideration is given to the season's styles, and all along the line from one end of the business section to the other there is a conscious effort to make prices right, to give the customer satisfaction so that he or she can have no possible reason for wanting to go to any other city for buying.

MARRIES THREE GENERATIONS

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—The Rev. John H. Prescott of Sayville, L. I., the greatest marrying parson on Long Island, for fifty years at St. Ann's Episcopal church here, who has had an electric bell hung at his house for the benefit of midnight couples, completed recently the marrying of three generations of one family. He joined Miss Ethel E. Munkelwitz and John C. Kolemman in the historic St. Ann's chapel. The first of the family to be married by him were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Munkelwitz; then her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Munkelwitz. Mr. Prescott said with animation that he was good for another generation.

A singular feature to be seen in Japan on New Year's Day is a grass rope running from house to house, with symbolical decorations. It is believed to ward off evil spirits during the year.

Low Shoes for Every Woman and for Every Man So Fashion Dictates

LOW Shoes are not only decidedly the thing for now and summer wear but their exceeding popularity is sure to carry them into next Fall and Winter as the most correct and popular Footwear.

The East is low shoe mad and if they adopt low shoes under existing weather conditions isn't it reasonable to assume that California women will even more readily take to low shoe wearing?

Smart Styles for Ladies

Elegance enhanced by neatness and trimness are the most obvious characteristics.

There is a dainty charm in modeling but nothing frail or fragile about them. Their Fashion attractions are built upon a foundation of durability and comfort-giving shapeliness.

New Effects for Men

We know you will like the selection of shoes for Spring that we have to offer.

Special importance has been given to durability and comfort features. These two primary features are blended with a noticeable element of smart style.

FOOTWEAR of the SEASON

by Dorothy Durant

Everyone is agitated about shoes. The question is whether milady is to wear the new stubby toed French shoe, or to hold faithfully to her slender aristocratic American last. The French last in a subtle modification is finally proving a formidable rival of the long narrow shoe. No longer can it be said abroad of the American woman that "By her shoes you shall know her." The woman always seeking something new and different in dress is fascinated with this small, stubby toed persistent and likeable foreigner, but the one with staid conservative tastes will hold steadfast to her long vamp pointed toe temperament.

For those American feet to which the strictly French last is unbecoming, are adaptations that gracefully concede a point for slenger length. Such are a charming pair of beige suede slippers with the most delightful sort of open work, placed so as to call attention to an aristocratic instep, and another pair of dull leather oxfords with the high heel militaire. Besides these are an interesting pair of satin or suede pumps with long pointed toes and a decidedly feminine tie across the instep. The oxford for walking and sports wear has assumed a more sensible air and is not so long and pointed as heretofore. Its lines are more rounding at the toe, conforming more to the natural lines of the foot. For summer there are shown many attractive models in white kid, buckskin and canvas. Many of them have that becoming variation, the opera or baby French heel, making the summer pump or oxford unusually smart.

Some of these independent affairs are quite regardless of any distinction between afternoon and evening. For instance, a black satin and brocade slipper, adorned with a bow ranges widely in color and even appears in gold and silver. The most gorgeously studded rhinestone and steel cut buckles festively decorate many of the evening slippers.

With such buckles, a blue and silver combination goes skipping about under the brilliant lights with all the assurance which belongs only to something very new.

Stockings have proved to be another disturbing feature of late. There was a time when one caught only a glimpse, and a very unsatisfying one at that, of a conservative boot in company with conservatively matched stockings. But now one has not far to look for a generous expanse of transparent stocking. Typically French are colored hose that do not match black shoes, in beige, gray or elephant color. In all shades, too, are the various kinds of lace stockings, some elaborate in design, and others with only the narrow lace stripes. These are used for evenings also, and so are others, elaborately embroidered. Very tempting is a silver gray stocking with inserts of silver lace, giving the wearer a decidedly gay and festive feeling and assuring perfect contentment.

That's probably the reason that the plump patient don't understand why with every five pounds loss they gain a year of age, why with every ounce off there's a wrinkle on. For the favorite motto of the reducing doctor is "A little thyroid makes 'em thin quick." So the answer to this get-thin-quick method is spelled thyroid with a capital T and when the patients have reduced sufficiently to fit the Spring styles they are also reduced to a fit state for a sanitarium.

Alas, it is a hopeless and sad verity that there is no easy short cut to slender lines. Only by a Spartan foregoing of all gastronomic delights and a dogged persistence at exercise may you jostle off a superfluous pound or two.

EGYPTIAN TENDENCY.
"Egyptian" tendencies are marked among them being the drops and dangles which hang from small hats in loops or simulated earrings.

Santa Ana

SAW STYLES IN FRANCE FULLY YEAR AGO

Any observant member of the American Expeditionary Forces in France who came from Santa Ana can tell you why styles in women's dress originate in Paris even though he never got to Paris. If he cannot tell you why, he will admit it is so.

For Fashion's present call in America for the short skirt is but a reflection of what the members of the American Army saw on the streets of even the smallest villages of France a year ago.

And, so far as the skirt is concerned, your soldier friend probably will tell you there are good reasons for French women wearing them, and he may spring the old wheeze, "there are two good reasons."

But whether the style be short skirt or long skirt, or high neck or low neck, or big sleeve or tight sleeve, and whether or not the dressmakers and the clothes makers and the fabric manufacturers are in league with the "Pace setters of Paris," this much is true—every French woman dresses to the best advantage with the means at her disposal. Whether she be six or sixty, a French woman always seems well dressed.

Natural Faculty of Adorning.
It is another expression of the art that is inherent in all French people. When "Marguerite," the pretty bar maid, takes off the simple white apron which she had worn during her work, an apron which was as attractive on her as a satin gown on an Empress, and puts on her hat, one observes she has the natural faculty of adorning herself. That is a natural faculty with every woman, it may be argued, and to tell an American woman she does not dress to the best advantage is to offer her an insult.

Nevertheless, "Peacock Alley," the name by which returning soldiers knew the lobbies of the fashionable New York hotels, offers many instances of good taste, and "Marguerite" might trip into the tea room with a tray and display more real style than the women who stepped from "Peacock Alley."

One might stand in the promenade of a Paris theater and come to the conclusion that the "cocotte" sets the Paris styles. But the Frenchman will point out that you have reached a hasty conclusion and show you this decision came because the "cocotte" exaggerates the prevailing styles and forces attention.

Paris sets the style only because Paris is the center of all French life. And if the shopkeeper's daughter of Nogent-le-Rotru can dress to advantage imagine to what greater degree can her leisured sister in Paris create stylish gowns.

French Lace Shops a Marvel.
The lace and lingerie shops of the French villages were the marvel of American women who served with the Expeditionary Forces. Here they went into spells of ecstasy over the "head bags" then so common in style as to be carried by the shop girls. Four months after a very "ordinary" head bag was the cynosure of all eyes in "Peacock Alley."

Style is art. One may argue that there is nothing stylish now in the gowns that were the "rage" ten years ago. It is only so because Paris has found new expressions of art in style.

SPICER & CO.'S NEW HOME BLUE PRINT

On account of its importance to the progress of the town the people of Santa Ana have been speculating a good bit as to the appearance which the new home of Charles Spicer & Co. will make at the corner of Sycamore and Fourth Streets. Blue prints are now being made and a formal announcement with an accompanying drawing will be presented in a few days. The building will be erected on the corner now occupied by Lutz, the tailor, and the Miles Shoe Company. It will be of the most modern construction and an architectural credit to Santa Ana according to the plans.

Mr. Spicer said today that all modern store equipment will be installed. It is the idea to facilitate the handling of the rapidly growing business to the greatest possible comfort and convenience of the patrons.

The Spicer store is at present an extremely busy place, but in the new home many new departments and several entirely new lines of merchandise will be added. The plans call for a floor space about four times as great as the present store has. Those familiar with the Spicer store at present know that a store four times as large will be an institution of great importance to the town.

The almost remarkable progress of the Spicer store has been fully justified by hard work and correct merchandising methods. The Charles Spicer Co. succeeded the old Bishop store, one of the oldest and most favorably known stores of the early days of Santa Ana, and through its honest and proper business principles and the consistent advertising which has always been a policy of the store it has gradually won the confidence and co-operation of the people of Santa Ana and Orange County. It is continuing to rapidly forge its way to the foremost rank of mercantile concerns in this section of Southern California.

Also a Successful Rancher.

Mr. Charles Spicer is not only a successful merchant but is also a prosperous rancher. When interviewed by a reporter today he made it plain that he spent his earlier days on a farm somewhere back in the eastern country. This is what he said:

"With our minds still alert to our labors and our hearts still strong in our faith we have set our hands to the plow again today, firm in the determination not to turn back until the end of the furrow is reached. We cannot loiter by the way while there is work to do each day and make as great progress as the labor of the day demands. It is our ambition and life work each day to establish this store a little more firmly in the public confidence and we are keenly alert to accomplish our purpose by every means that is justified by honor."

Mr. Oldfield, the publicity man for the Spicer Company, whose ads are read every day in the Register, also fell into a philosophical mood when approached by the Register man, quoting the wise old proverb which runs something like this:

"Nine storied terraces rise by gradual accumulation of bricks."

That sounded well to the reporter and then Mr. Oldfield explained that he referred to the growth of the business and not to the erection of the new store home.

"So it is with this business," he said. "We are gradually building, believing that the final result is always more important than the first cost. This store lives and labors, plans and performs, conceives and achieves. Its inspiring ideals are embodied chiefly in the giving of materials that are absolutely dependable together with a perfect store service for the price we receive."

"Nothing is ever lowered in price in this store to boost the sale of some other thing at the expense of a customer's satisfaction after the sale is made."

"We look beyond the transaction of today and view the results that the transaction will bring about in the future. No task is irksome here. We like to show merchandise whether the customer intends to buy or not. We try to show everyone who enters our store the most courteous treatment and every consideration for their comfort and pleasure. In our new home we will be much better able to extend these little comforts to our friends and for that reason as much as any other we are anxious for the day when we can be established in our new quarters. We want people to feel at home in our store. We believe they do and we shall do everything in our power to make it plain that their friendship and confidence is appreciated."

It was given out today that the work on the new building will begin just as quickly as a few more details in the plans can be taken care of.

SPRING GIRL

Things that are seen and to be seen this season are described

NEW YORK, March 9.—To be shiny at the seams seems to be the correct caper for Spring attire. In fact not only seams ashine will be seen but your costume in toto from the top of your oilcloth hat to the toe of your patent leather pump must gleam with a high light polish.

Hats that are not of oilcloth have their straw surfaces brilliantly lacquered or are of glazed satin or of grass cloth with a luster finish. Glazed satin ribbons are used for trimmings. Indeed the chapeau that isn't glossy isn't flossy.

For suits and frocks glazed satins, shiny taffetas and other fabrics that have been treated with a peculiar lacquer process are the ones the designers have taken a shine to for their Spring time offerings. These glazed and lacquered materials are by no means stiff or cumbersome but light and supple as they are lustrous and shimmering.

Many of the smartest little taffeta, serge and tricotone models show lavish trimming of oilcloth in the form of bandings, patch pockets, appliqued designs and buttons. Fascinating accessories of the shiny black oilcloth embroidered and stitched in gay hued yarns come in sets of hand bags, belt and hat to match for the maid addicted to sport attire.

Combinations of red and blue are very good this season and many is the serge dress that is resplendent with bands of bright red leather or gold and red that subtly suggests the military uniforms of our very best little circus bands. Probably this is why this vivid red and gold embellishment is applied mostly as a banding, yes?

All sorts of glittering jewelry adds to the general shininess of midday's Spring get up. Bakers' dozens of bracelets which are glistening bands of brilliant adorn each arm, dangling earrings, a jeweled chain and several stunning rings besides the inevitable pinky without which in some unusual and bizarre form no little finger would dare crook itself swanlike above the chic teacup.

The dazzle of cut-steel buckles add blinding gleams from the high-polished expanse of short vamped colonial pumps of patent kid, finger nails shimmer with the extra high rosy polish of the last word in manicures, eyes rival star-shine, scarlet lips gleam with the sheen of the latest in hectic lip rouge. Indeed extreme shininess is a feature of the model Spring maid save for one feature, and that's a shiny nose.

READY FOR CONQUEST
A fluffy ostrich feather fan, chosen to match the gayest tint in the colorings of her jewelry and costumes, is a coquettish addition to the whole. With a white serge skirt, plaited numerously, the modern young woman is ready for all of the conquests that Cleopatra, the movie queen and the Spanish dancer failed to make.

Mrs. H. Burton Voter of Farmington, Me., recently found there a Phi Beta Kappa key, which the owner, a graduate of Wesleyan, says he lost in a city of Central New York more than ten years ago.

The Younger Generation
And its Spring Frocks
By Marjorie Houe Dixon

One wonders why they say "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," as if the young man were the only one who felt thusly. There is with it an implication that he turns to thoughts of clothes, too. Be that as it may, the young woman's fancy usually turns in the same direction, whether she be at the ripe old age of four years or has acquired the stately dignity of ten.

And to fit her every mood and tense the spring fashions are offering her new costumes for every occasion—for play, for school, for parties, and all times between. Some prefer to express simplicity, others, individuality, and still others are only interested in that which is practical.

For the attention of the latter, are extremely smart new ideas in sailor blouses, with their crisp pleated skirts, for the school girl. An attractive dress in a tailored effect is a white blouse costume with a tucked front and a frill of pleats on its collar and cuffs. Its skirt is a dark plaid serge in pleats with a flat girdle of the same material.

For her younger sisters who are still having difficulty with the problem of walking, there are all kinds of pretty rompers, percale, gingham and chambray, with white pique for state occasions.

Where one especially wishes to express individuality, there are jersey and Jap crepe smocks. These lend themselves to hand embroidery in colors, and are widely varied in decoration. In fact this season shows hand embroidery on crash, poplin and even on dotted swiss dresses.

If you are a "sub-deb" you will be much interested in a flesh tinted voile smock, with embroidered sleeves, sashed with moire ribbon. Its little high neck is open and tied with cord. What shows of the skirt is mainly an embroidered panel.

So much depends on the function you are about to attend when it comes to selecting a costume these days. A really appropriate toilette for the Young Ladies' Annual Spring Jump Rope and Skipping Contest is a serge school dress, covered by a practical and yet quaintly decorated pinafore showing a pink goose and a black cat rampant. On the other hand if you want to feel correct at the semi-weekly tea party of your Kewpie Dolls, you will naturally wear a lace and net pinafore especially if it has a bunch of cherries on one shoulder and is tied with black velvet ribbons.

Gingham dresses are popular for year round wear. The combination of plaid and plain materials continues with variations in their use. For the miss from four to six years a happy thought for spring is a belted dress with a pleated frill for collar and cuffs. The yoke and sleeves are white with the skirt of gingham. Its narrow belt is run through the front of the skirt and neatly buttoned in the back. This young lady may enjoy wearing a sand colored coat of taffeta over it and a close fitting hat with a turned up brim.

For the younger set, turned up brims are the very thing, preferably ribbon hats faced with hemp in sports colors. For dress-up affairs, a shade hat of gorgette and straw with piquet ribbon loops is correct. A poke bonnet shape charmingly frames a youthful face, and is made of grosgrain ribbon and trimmed with woolen balls. Where a floppy brimmed hat is becoming, rough straw with a big bow atop, and facing of gorgette fulfills a promise of Spring.

For party dresses and graduation there are charming frocks of organdy, net, lace and chiffon. Wide lace flouncing makes up in pretty styles, ruffles and sashes continue to be popular, the fluffier, the smarter the costume is. A sub-deb will enjoy a little printed voile, with organdy collar and cuffs and a velvet ribbon sash.

Among the markedly unusual combinations was a challis smock with a scalloped hem worn over taffeta bloomers, this for a four-year-old. For an older sister, a lavender chambray school frock had its pockets and cuffs button-holed with khaki yarn and, oddest of all, a knitted khaki belt to match.

BEADS GALORE ARE ON THE LIST NOW

Is the modern young woman going to stop with a few jeweled adornments of ear and hair?

Why, any Pute Indian mahala might be content at this degree of jewelry. Instead, she adds a long chain of bright red and yellow beads, hanging below her waist. The Pute Indian would sell her soul to the evil spirits for the possession of this chain of beads, but there is no chance for the barter with the evil spirits, for the modern young woman is going to keep the baubles.

"WAVE THE HAIR," IS MOST RECENT DECREE

Very low coiffures, and very high ones—puffs, waves, curls—everything that is most becoming, that is the hairdressers' version for Spring. And, Presto! we are waved and puffed.

"No matter whether the hair is simply or elaborately arranged," it says the hairdressing authority, "it must be in waves. The soft marcel is the favored form of elaborating on plain locks, because it looks more like the hand of nature. Curls probably will be in later.

"It's a little hard to coax the American woman to wear curls, though the hairdressers are trying to convince her that their attractiveness is well worth the trouble she takes with them."

SPELLING OF WORD BRINGS DISCUSSION

Let's have an old-fashioned spelling bee!

The first word is the name of the wax that is extracted from petroleum. How do you spell it? Is it "p-a-r-a-f-f-i-n" or "p-a-r-a-f-f-i-n-e" wax?

"This question has caused not a little discussion since the manufacture and sale of 'Ventura' paraffin-base motor oil began several years ago," says Charley Huddleston of the Home Oil Supply Company of Santa Ana, wholesale and retail distributors of the famous "Ventura" oil.

"The Ventura Refining Company, manufacturers of the oil, have always spelled it 'Paraffin,' omitting the final 'e,' for the reason that this form is sanctioned by the best authorities. The use of the final 'e' is not incorrect, but the form 'paraffin' is given the preference both by Webster's International Dictionary and the Standard Dictionary.

"For years the trend of the times has been toward simplified spelling which accounts for the adoption of the shorter form. Nevertheless, many oil men still cling to the older spelling, and some of our competitors even have hinted that our spelling is incorrect or that our wax is a different kind of wax because of the spelling.

"However, the discussion does no harm for, as a matter of fact, the Ventura crude oil yields a very high-grade paraffin wax which finds a ready sale. Recently the Ventura Refining Company exported 250 tons to the European market which is just opening up."

Harem Skirts Prove Very Popular in Season's Styles

The harem skirt is popular in dresses this Spring. A skirt in chinchilla cloth and crepe de chine shows a panel front and back of the white crepe de chine, which hangs perfectly straight, while the sides, also of the crepe, are shirred to hang rather full and are caught in just below the knee with a deep band of the chinchilla satin. The effect is a slight harem drape at the side, without any pronounced fullness.

In Georgette of a deep rose, more fullness is introduced with good success, for a full skirt is shirred on the waist band and a heading allowed to stand above the top for about two inches. At the bottom of the skirt, a wide band of Kumsi-Kumsa holds in the fullness.

LABOR-SAVING DEVICE

One great labor-saving device is the electric sewing machine. It is compact, ready to work tirelessly, but speedily, and thus aim another blow at the high cost of living. Jobs of sewing that formerly took days are matters of a few hours in homes where there is an electric sewing machine.

Santa Ana's Stores
Are Style Center
For Orange County

Santa Ana stores have easily become the style center for Orange county. The stores have gone to great trouble and expense to get the very latest in fashions and goods, and in going to that trouble and expense year after year they have deservedly come to be looked upon as the style center for the county.

And when that is said it is very true indeed that no city of Southern California, be it larger or smaller than Santa Ana, can give more truthful portrayal of styles and materials than are found in Santa Ana windows and in Santa Ana show cases and on Santa Ana shelves today.

Styles and materials are most fully up to the season's most enticing and exclusive offerings. And the best thing about it is that Santa Ana merchants are absolutely on the square with their customers.

Santa Ana merchants are not in the habit of shelving off to customers goods of last year's styles with the statement that they are this year's newest goods.

The customer who comes to Santa Ana from far points of the county is going to be able to depend on what she is told in the Santa Ana stores.

Things That Are Seen and to Be Seen this Season Are Described

The mongrel nature of the dress of today is no better illustrated than in the matter of forms of decoration. For instance, Chinese embroidery was chosen by the style-makers as one of the favorites of today. A gown copied after one worn by a court lady of the period of Louis Fifteenth may have in adornment the golden dragon design of a Chinese mandarin. A strange company, that!

Here is a Balkan peasant blouse costume, with gleaming embroideries such as Cleopatra used to charm her court with, and the whole costume surmounted by a tricorn hat of the Louis Fifteenth period. Thus do the style-makers strive to give novelty by strange historical combinations to styles as old as history.

Why is it so? Tracing the origin of the styles of today is a simple matter, once they are chosen. But what is always a mystery to the layman—rather, the laywoman—is, why these particular designs are selected. Different mo-

HATS are handsomer than ever

by I. J. Robinson

What would Spring mean without, he one most important Spring bonnet? Those who have not shopped early had best make immediate plans for a hunt or two through the shops, before the final selection is made. For it will need great discrimination to make a choice from the fascinating array of riotous color.

Of course, one always says, "I want only a bit of a toque, or something large and floppy—just willy striking and unusual." But whoever stops to think, when saying this, how much more time is spent in dressing one's head than in choosing a becoming frock or selecting shoes. Hats seem to be somewhat human, do they not? The average woman starts in her search determined to find among the shops that one dashing little hat—hat seems somehow a part of her. However, her task will be far easier this season, for there are innumerable artistically made hats, unusual becoming, having just that touch of something which makes them altogether individual and desirable.

Perhaps the most striking note of the season is shown in the mysterious influence of the East. It seems that all the charm and mystery of Egypt has been embodied in the millinery and this is evidenced by a drooping at the sides of small hats. This droop is accentuated by an ornament, a flower, a feather, placed so that it hangs downward a bit and gives the effect of an ornament, such as is worn in the Egyptian head-dress. The new type of hat is worn decidedly low on the forehead far down over the ears, showing very little of the hair, this making an attractive frame for the face. Such a hat is enticing in its simplicity.

Apparently all sorts of things are used for trimmings these days. For instance, a little imported model called the "Sphinx" is trimmed with three wee celluloid mummies of the palest blue. Then what could be more unique than a Spanish comb as a head ornament? The shape on which it is used is quite small and soft in its Spanish effect, made of aenna color draped maline, with a oil brim, the underside of which has an inch fringe of imitation tortoise shell spangles made into a band, and at the side is the replica of a Spanish comb made of the same sequins. Since the shape is small and fits snugly, it gives the effect of a comb being stuck through the hair.

Many of the shapes are again inclined to the off face effect, large floppy models, but mostly the traped turbans, which are made up in the metal cloths, sometimes feather trimmed, and the charming toques in waxed cloth, lightly draped and embroidered with motifs of Chinese designs, and, placed at the side, hanging a little over the edge of the toque is a bit of a cockade of waxed cloth, finished off by an end with the border cut in fringe.

What is it in the air about this time of year that brings forth visions of summer and with those, other visions of gaily colored sports clothes, with the dashing little sport hat to set off the effect? This season there is much done with the brilliant shades of duvetyne for the soft jaunty sports hats, especially in all-over embroideries of floss green and the flame and Chinese red colorings. These are treated in all-over embroideries of floss held by cold threads or worked in the metallic thread. And for contrast, some charming models of mouflon braid and angora in the softest of pastel shades are extensively shown. The soft felts are also lovely, shown in the exquisite lighter shades, pale, mauve, turquoise, lemon and old rose. They are very fascinating in their trimming of brightly colored straw, the straw facing the brim, with black being used in contrast on many of the colored felts, or delightful novelties of cellophane made in ears of corn, egplantine, tiny roses or other flowers. Another unusual trimming for these models is raffia in the smartest sort of embroideries.

It is interesting to know that all sorts of hatpins are again being used, especially the long stick effects of jet and the arrow pin of the past season, which has not lost its prestige. Always connected with these are the new French veils—for what wonders can be done with an attractive pin stuck at just the right angle and a wonderfully chic veil.

The new blue and tete de negre are perhaps the most favored shades and the chin length embroidered and dotted veils continue to take precedence over the somewhat newer floating lace effect. In the face veils the note of the season is chenille, not in the geometrically arranged dot only, but also in dots in scrollwork designs and irregular patterns. Other veils combine two colors of embroidery, such as white stitching on black, and all patterns are all-over in effect. An enticing French veil is quite long and shallow, describing a partial semicircle, which is deeper in the center going down to the ends. This is worn so that it falls just below the mouth, with the ends drawn up on each side of the brim of the hat in a little rosette, and the ends left before.

tives animate the arbiters of fashion. Sometimes a style is selected simply because it is bizarre and different from what women have worn for many years. Sometimes it is in the attempt to imitate a style which has proved successful in preceding seasons, but with a bit of novelty.

Then, too, the needs of women of varying types must be considered. One may imagine a high council of style-makers deliberating somewhat after this manner: "Now we have something for the fat women to wear. What shall we make the thin women wear?"

Styles Change Rapidly The task of forming the styles for a season becomes harder and harder each season, as women become more and more exacting in this period of frequent changes of fashion. Once upon a time, in the good old days of our grandmothers, a bride chose perhaps half a dozen gowns for her trousseau, and these she expected to wear for many years. Now the bride is lucky if her trousseau is not out of fashion before she returns from her honeymoon. The women blame the style-makers for forcing the frequent changes of fashions, and the style-makers say it is due to the women's demands for something new.

Each season originates a number of colors in women's dress. Peacock, Vesuvius, flame, citron, are newcomers with the styles of Spring. But these names are merely an effort to give an old friend a new name.

DRESSES IN MANY COLORS Afternoon dresses are shown in every imaginable color though for the present time navy blue, black and various shades of tan and brown hold sway. There are tricolored dresses with the long Balkan blouse, softly draped or plain skirts; there are tateas, navy and black and a lighter shade of blue in any number, and there are Georgettes, too.

Corsage bouquets made of fine or gandy in delicate colors are artistic bits of vanity.

GIANT STORES OF PULPWOOD IN ALASKA

SEWARD, Mar. 9.—The reported shortage of newsprint paper has aroused interest among Alaskans, who are anxious to relieve the situation by supplying the country with wood pulp, and hoping that a number of the big publishers will get together and decide to manufacture their own paper and do it in Alaska.

There is only one difficulty in the way, and it could easily be removed if Congress were persuaded to force an inquiry into the causes why Alaska's resources are under lock and key. A superficial investigation would disclose illimitable forests in Alaska, known to be virtually worthless for any other purpose than pulp, the opening of which for useful purposes would end a considerable number of bureaucratic sinecures.

Aside from that calamity no conceivable harm could result, but on the contrary immense benefits to everybody else. Indeed, there is no objection from any source to relieving the pulp needs of the country save from the jobholders only. Citizens of the States not familiar with bureaucratic administration in Alaska would be apt to regard the removal of a few score Government jobholders as an easy matter where great public interests would otherwise be sacrificed. The gentlemen in the States who might think that would be in error.

Three Great Forests The only way to loosen the grip of an Alaskan bureaucrat is to transfer him to a better paying job or pension him off. And this latter presents no serious difficulties in a business way. Enough good, merchantable, available pulp timber rots every year in the Tongass and Chugach forest reservations to pay their pensions and leave a big profit besides. In the Tongass Reservation alone there is more than 60,000,000,000 feet of timber, good for nothing else than pulp, going to waste. The only conceivable purpose it now serves is a demonstration of the rapidity with which nature's chemical laboratory can transform first-class pulp timber into vegetable mould.

The same thing could be said of the Chugach Reservation, except that the quantity is not quite so large. Most of this reserved timber is spruce and hemlock, a little of it yellow cedar, cottonwood, lodgepole pine, and a few other woods of negligible amount. During the war a great hue and cry was made about the availability of Alaska spruce down the coast for aircraft manufacture, and the old typewriter on which this is written passed some of it along, partially through falling for the bunk and partially on the theory that it might injure war activities by questioning the probable fate at that time. A great reservation was made, the purpose of which will soon be forgotten by the bureau making it precisely as the original purpose, for nine reservations out of ten in Alaska have already been forgotten. Experience proved it to be worthless for aircraft, as limbs grow almost from the ground up, forming innumerable knots and rendering the timber useless for anything more pretentious than a hog pen or chicken run. In other words, the suppositions aircraft spruce turned out to be precisely the character of spruce that occurs all up and down the coast and which nobody uses excepting for fuel or the roughest class of lumber.

Exactly Suitable for Pulp The hemlock in these great forests for piling, usedshrduoetainunnuhr reservations has proved valuable for piling, used chiefly in making fish traps; but the report in an official publication that it makes excellent railroad ties is true only in the sense that it cuts easily. Within a mile of where this is written ties that were placed three summers ago are already rotting and many of them have already had to be replaced.

But that this timber is exactly suitable for pulp is as certain as anything can be. Practical paper manufacturers who have visited the territory and examined it carefully vouch for it, and at least two concerns would long since have established paper making plants in Alaska had it not been for the bureaucratic restrictions placed upon such industries. Previously only a five-year lease could be had in forest reservations. More recently the bureaucrats have consented to allow a kind of renewable form of lease, but will make no concessions in regard to water powers that any sensible business man would consider.

Under existing regulations the business would be subject to the whim or caprice of bureaucratic officials, both as to the tenure and the method of conducting it, and of course no business concern would invite almost inevitable failure by attempting manufacture under such conditions. The wood for the pulp, streams to float the timber to mill door in summer and to make unequaled sled roads in winter and hydro-electric power are here in illimitable quantities.

The country needs the product and Alaska certainly needs the industry. Enough pressure on Congress to force an inquiry into the cause of Alaska's industrial distress and the paper shortage problem would soon be on the way to solution.

There is much talk about the upward tilt of hats, but some of the best of the new ones show just as strong an inclination as ever to dip down. # Men's Spring Wear

Announcing a Display of the Season's Best Effects

SPRING IS HERE. Spring with all her glorious beauty and exquisite charm. The time of the year when nature in her wonderful way dresses herself the loveliest. The birds mate, the trees bud, the flowers blossom and nature is contented in her happiness. So man under nature's enchanting spell turns to new things—things that are bright and cheery and different. And he calls it Fashion. And this Spring, it seems that man has copied nature in all her grace and cleverness of coloring and design—because in men's wear we find beautiful new shades of soft greys and greens and new tones of browns and blues—while in mixtures we discover wonderful mottled effects of harmony as if nature instead of man had done the work.

The general effect of the new Spring suits is one of ease, freedom and refinement—the lines following the natural curves of the body with the high waistline and vent being the features. The cable roll at the shoulder and the bell shape sleeve will be much in vogue. However, the smart dresser will have several details left to his own fancy—the pockets straight or slant, with or without flaps or patch pockets will be proper. Belt all around, half belt or French plait will be found on sport models. Trousers cut straight with cuff or plain.

Many conservative men are wearing the younger models, getting away from the staid 3-button sack. How ever, for the man who wishes the staple styles he will find many equally good fabrics from which to make his selection. We feature "Society Brand" and "Michaels-Sterns" clothes. You'll find them wherever "Good Clothes" are worn. In the matter of Shirts the good dresser will find any amount to his liking. Style calls for whites first—in oxford cloths, poplins, pongees, crepes and jerseys. In colors a great variety of fancy striped madras, fibres and silks—also solid colors.

Spring Furnishing

Spring and Summer in California is silk shirt time—it is then that we lay aside our vests until Autumn. We want you to know that we feature a big line of the newest and best in silks and fibres.

The knitted or chocheted tie is the favored neckwear for Spring and Summer. Black is most popular, but fancy colors run a close second in many effects. We are showing many solid and novelty colors in open end scarfs.

New Showing of Men's Hats

The real nobby hats for the young and older man alike this Spring are different. A smaller shape with a curled brim and bound edge. While different they are stylish and will be worn extensively. New shades of grey, green, olive, carbon and brown are the popular colors. The older and broader shape will still be much in demand.

We feature Stetson and Schoble Hats.

In caps there is a very wide range of variety and choice in colors and styles. The pleated back will be very much in vogue.

What's New In Boys' Clothing

The style of the youngster's clothing will follow that of his older brother very much, in fabrics and designs. Most of them come with belt all around in double breasted models, slash pockets, etc. The styles are manly but still retain the boyish features that you mothers like to see so well. The makers are taking more pains in the designing and building of boys' clothes and the result is—better fitting clothes.

Of course, for the little chaps, wash suits of pretty patterns and clever styles will be greatest in demand from now on. We have them in a number of different styles and materials with guaranteed colors.

In headwear the thing for the older boy is a cap and they're here in medium and large shapes to suit his age and size. Any amount of them in boyish styles and colors. The Rah Rah hats of Milan and split straws will be worn by the little fellows—they are both becoming and serviceable.

California Climate Aids In Styles of Sport Silk

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA and its climatic conditions played a large part in the origination of America's famous sport silks, Kumsi-Kumsa, Fantasi, khaki-kool, sport Tussah, and all the other famously named silks that have set Europe to raving.

It was the ideal weather of California and Florida that inspired American designers to turn out these new creations.

When one realizes that five years ago America held no place at all in the manufacture of silks, one begins to understand the rapid strides and advances that have been made. At the beginning of the war, when imports stopped, women were forced all of a sudden to buy American silks. It was not an unusual happening to have silk turn all the colors of a peacock once it was exposed to the sun; nor for it to wear into holes in the most unholly places.

These little characteristics, added to the fact that prices even exceeded those of the wonderful imported stuffs to which we had been accustomed, created somewhat of a disturbance here.

Now Outclasses Others.
But in the short space of four years all this has been changed. American designers, and many Frenchmen who came over when this work was temporarily stopped in Paris, looked about for inspiration for something entirely new that would not smack of the previous years' failures in fancy silks. They were successful, and now that their ingenious minds have started working, there is no telling where they will end. Even now, it is said, American silks outclass any ever printed and woven at any time in any country. And we have just barely started. The manufacturers see rosy vistas ahead. California now claims its share of the credit.

PARIS STILL EXPLOITS NOVELTY IN LINGERIE

While there is a reversion to dainty "tubable" underwear of linen and batiste, Paris still exploits novelty lingerie in terms of color, transparent crepes and laces, caught in meshes of gold or silver threads. If one wants to follow the new thought of the Parisienne, she will select a complete set of underwear in the color of a dress with which it is to be worn. Therefore studies in scarlet, Georgette with applied grape and leaf motifs in velvet outlined and veined with silver thread become interesting to the follower of fads.

WAISTLINES MORE SNUG LATE WORD IN CORSETS

The details of the return to "normal" lines may be catalogued as a "more snugly fitted waistline, with stout models designed with a lower bust line, and slender models that elevate the bust line."

It has been held by corset connoisseurs that the low bustled corset is not as comfortable as models having medium high bust, and some claim they are not as healthful. Many of these have rubber inserts at bust, others are built with stays that come directly underneath the bust, with resultant friction that is decidedly unpleasant. The shortage of some of the fancy materials, such as silks and satins, has caused the bulk of the corset output to be in the plainer materials.

BUYERS THINK PRICES OF FURS WILL GO UP

Buyers evidently are anticipating a big increase in fur prices, for it is reported that even at this time when so few manufacturers have anything as yet made up for spring, let alone garments, buyers are asking for furs of all kinds. This is expected to have the effect of hurrying the manufacturers to show their lines as early as possible, although few of the large houses will be ready for at least another fortnight.

One of the largest Eastern manufacturers, specializing only in high grade merchandise, told of having made up a long Hudson seal coat, wondering if any buyers would pay the price. To his amazement, it was sold immediately, and although the garment has only been on the rack for a few days, many orders have been placed on this number.

These coats are bought for immediate delivery by retailers who are finding the women, anticipating the big jump in prices, are placing orders for wraps to be delivered

NEGLIGEE AND REST ROBE ARE FACTORS

Fascinating negligees and rest robes are an all important factor in the fashionable wardrobe today. In elegance, and beauty of materials, and charm of coloring, they might easily be mistaken for evening gowns. The difference is only in construction after all. Chiffon velvet is combined with soft silk or lace in some models which have borders of costly fur. By just a little adroit adjustment, the artist couturiers of Paris have produced wonderfully artistic tea gowns which are donned for the tea hour and the home dinner. These latest garments have been given the hyphenated name, "tea-dinner gown." Brocade satins or velvet with some combining material like Georgette or voile for flowing sleeves, or combination of Chantilly lace with soft shimmering satin are favored in the distinctive models. One boasts of a velvet cape adjunct in the black only with a soft velvet sash tied on one side of the front. Another accompaniment of a very attractive gown is a tulle capelet with daintily tinted artificial grapes at the neck band.

SERVICEABLE PANTALETES
Silk pantalettes to wear instead of petticoats are made up in all good dark shades for day time wear. Sometimes these pantalettes are made of silk jersey instead of taffeta. They are ruffled about the ankles, and are quite adequate to take the place of a petticoat. At the same time they are not so bulky, and in windy weather are far more serviceable.

A striking use of contrasting color on a dress which has a side-fastening to the blouse is in a wide lapel terminating in a sash end.

GOWNS FOR EVENING WEAR ARE GORGEOUS

Evening gowns are intensely fascinating by reason of their variety and most beautiful textures. Brocades of strong colors with quantities of metal cloth and rich velvets, vie with others of lace and tulle, with ostrich feather trimming or sparkling beads and jewels. Trains are used extensively, seeming rather to elongate telling lines. In draped skirts than to be a mere cumbersome adjunct. The fishtail and narrow panel trains or sashes are allowed to disappear in a trailing end with flowers or feathers artfully nestled in the point. Occasionally a satin or velvet train is lined with shimmering cloth of gold or silver. Gold lace made up with cloth of gold and trimmed with sable fur, suggests one of the many combinations of material elegance and artistic charm. Some designers, notably Madeleine and Medeleine, whose evening gowns have attracted special interest, are making the skirts of evening dresses longer, and almost reaching the ankles. Some such models have their skirts closely held in by draping at the bottom.

Many evening gowns of brocades or velvet having the very low cut effect are filled in with flesh color tulle or chiffon. Bodices are scant affairs at the most, and often serve like the "calyx" of a flower from which the skirt blossoms forth.

A pretty gift for the winter invalid is a growing primrose plant in a pot wrapped in crepe paper the color of the blossoms.

WARM POLITICS IN MEXICAN ELECTION

CITY OF MEXICO, Mar. 9.—With the new year witnessing a definite alignment of candidates for the presidential election in July, the fact that personality rules politics in Mexico becomes more apparent than ever. Just as politics is personal, so are policies personal, and the American who seeks for a division here on party lines, over such an issue as the tariff, or the peace treaty, seeks in vain.

Mexican voters, when they go to the polls to select President Carranza's successor, will make their choice from among the following men, according to the situation today:

General Alvaro Obregon, General Pablo Gonzalez and Ignacio Bonillas—two outstanding military figures and a civilian, the latter a graduate of an American college.

Bonillas, Mexico's present ambassador to Washington, is expected to return home any day to formally launch his campaign. The other two candidates have had their boom under way, in a heated fashion, for several weeks. They have opened campaign headquarters in Mexico City, have started newspaper organs, conducted speaking tours, staged celebrations and entertainments—even carried their propaganda to the American institution of the lapel button on the "Jones for President" order.

Mexico is in the midst of a presidential year and Mexico, you may be sure, is aware of the fact. For fervency of campaigning, the United States has little to show the republic on the south.

But there's a radical difference in the Anglo-Saxon and Latin methods of conducting political campaigns—herein lies the distinction between party politics and personal politics. Scarcely any analogy can be drawn between the platforms which are now being aired in the "States" and the claims of the men who would be First Chief of Mexico. There are, it is true, formal organizations which are backing the Mexican candidates, but it is the individual, not the party, who will be elected or defeated.

At first glance, the neutral observer is apt to come to the conclusion that the Mexican bases his right to election on an attitude which might be summarized in the words, "I'm the best man; therefore I should be elected." Closer study, however, reveals a declaration of principles, generally put forward in the form of a manifesto.

Bonillas has yet to give the people his full declaration. It is generally understood, however, that he will lay emphasis on his civilian character, capitalizing the assertion of his sympathizers that Mexico is tired of military men, that the revolution is past and that the "man on horseback" should give way to a civilian administrator. The supporters of Bonillas declare, also, that his knowledge of the American people and the fact that he is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, should augur well for a solution of Mexico's difficulties with the United States.

Of more interest, however, is the contest between the two army men, Obregon and Gonzalez. A keen military rivalry exists between the two candidates and they both have good military records.

Obregon, operating in the North, is credited with the defeat of Villa in behalf of Carranza's constitutional government. Gonzalez, southern commander under Carranza, gained prominence through his destruction of the Zapata forces and the pacification of the state of Morelos.

Obregon tells the people he is leader of the Liberal Party. He has endorsed the revolutionary constitution of 1917 and today advocates a number of principles which are considered liberal in tendency. The president of Mexico, he believes, should have less power and more responsibility. He believes, too, that the army should be reduced and favors "absolute separation of the military command from the administrative power."

In an interview with the United Press, Obregon emphasized that one of the best and surest methods of rehabilitating Mexico is through the rebuilding of her agricultural resources. To achieve this aim, he would establish modern agricultural schools and experimental stations, import modern implements, and adjust cereal production in different communities to coincide with consumption, thus eliminating waste in some districts and a scarcity of foodstuffs in others.

Gonzalez, who has enunciated his principles in more complete fashion than Obregon, suggests, as one process toward more amicable relations with the United States, that a Mexican commission be named to study American affairs and co-operate with a similar body to be appointed in the United States. He urges that efforts be made to pacify the country "by conciliatory as well as military means." Other of his recommendations include the reduction of the army, with the formation of a civil guard for the prosecution of banditry, the establishment of a separate department of education, the passage of a civil service law, the reorganization of the nation's financial system, the promotion of farm loans and the development of a merchant marine.

That is the alignment in Mexico today. There is still a possibility, of course, that other candidates may enter the field, but at the present time none is mentioned with any certainty.

SARATOGA'S LIGHT ECONOMY REVEALED

A "Great White Way" the early hours of the evening and a more economical yet adequate illumination from midnight until morning, supplied by a single lighting system, is the unique idea to be carried out at Saratoga, N. Y., this summer.

This plan, designed by W. D. A. Ryan, one of the world's best known illumination engineers and head of the General Electric laboratories, calls for a duo-flux unit—that is, a globe containing two incandescent lamps, one of a 1,000 candle power and the other 250 candle power. A small relay box is in the base of each pole. The man at the power station short circuits the current, causing but a flicker in the illumination, and the circuit changes in the relay boxes from 1,000 candle power to 250 candle power or vice versa. The circuit can be changed in this way as often as desired.

Saratoga, a village of but 15,000, is a famed summer resort four months of the year and needs the bright lights part of the time during this period, but not at all the other eight months. A "great white way" would be too expensive to operate the year around and the General Electric plan promises to solve the problem. It is the first of the kind ever attempted in this country.

DOG PROTECTS DEAD MASTER TWO DAYS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Mar. 9.—How a shepherd dog stood guard over its master's body for two days and three nights to protect it from prowling animals and birds of prey has been revealed here by Humane Officer J. W. Canning.

Ermos F. Williams, son of J. H. Williams of Phoenix, died July 31 last while herding goats and sheep in the mountains, about fifty-six miles north of here. He fell over as though from heart disease, his father heard afterward.

A Mexican herder called "Lady," the shepherd dog to the body and said, "Stay with him." The Mexican walked toward Phoenix until he met an American, who telephoned the news of the death to the youth's father.

J. H. Williams started from Phoenix at once. Because of hard rains and washouts he had difficulty in getting into the mountain fastness where the flocks pastured. Finally he reached the spot where the body lay, the dog still on guard. It growled viciously as he approached, he said, but as soon as it saw he meant no harm it licked his hand. The dog was worn out by its long thirst, but when he tried to drag it to a place to drink it resisted fiercely and ran back to the man's body. There it stayed until neighbors had been summoned from miles away to take the body to Phoenix. Then it consented to be turned over to the head shepherd of the Williams flocks who had instructions to see that it received always the best of care.

MUST SHOVEL SNOW OR WORK SANS PAY

NEW YORK, Mar. 9.—To Joseph Donath, eighteen, of No. 423 East 137th Street, was given by Magistrate Sweetser in the Morrisania court his choice of shoveling snow at $5 a day or going "where he would work without getting paid."

The boy was accused by his mother of refusing to work, remaining out all night in pool rooms and abusing her.

He was dressed in the height of fashion. He told Magistrate Sweetser that he couldn't get a job paying more than $12 or $15 a week, and as that was insufficient he stayed in pool rooms until they closed at midnight, then strolled down Broadway until 1:30 a. m., and spent the remainder of the night in some hotel.

"If you did a little real work it might be good for you even though it took the shine off those polished finger nails of yours," the Magistrate said. "If you really want to work, here is a card for you to take to Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner Brown, who will give you at least $5 a day. If your mother comes back and tells me you haven't gone to work, I'll send you where you'll work without getting paid."

A young man answering to the description of Donath called at the office of the Street Cleaning Department in the Bronx later in the day and asked for a job as foreman or checker. Upon being told that only the Deputy Commissioner, who was out, hired foremen or checkers, the young man left, ignoring the hint of those present that there were plenty of snow shoveling jobs to be had.

Spring and Making Your House a Home

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

Spring, with its awakening of the flowers, seems to demand quite a wholesale renewing everywhere. One's thoughts not only turn to new hats for Easter, but toward Spring housecleaning and what is smart for the porch to wear in the coming season. The careful housewife plans the wardrobe for the house with the same thought of Spring flowers that she gives to her millinery.

Especially attractive for sun parlors and breakfast rooms are the painted wooden sets. They seem so joyous in color and generally befitting sunshine. One set I saw recently was a lovely soft green. It included a tea cart, a drop-leaf table, so convenient to put away at one side where it will occupy a little space, chairs to match, of course, and best of all a charming china closet wherein to display behind its small panes, a quaint merry teaset of cottage china. Whoever painted this set of furniture wisely forebore to spoil it with profuse decoration, leaving that to appear in appropriate hangings.

In fact, one could talk for hours on the subject of fabrics alone. They are so fascinating and varied in color, design and quality. There are printed linens and cottons, for drapes and upholstery, oh, a thousand uses. And glazed chintz and poplin, too, and if one cares to spend that much, taffeta is correct for some rooms, one's boudoir, for instance. They remind one of hoopskirt days, those fluffy, looped up and muchly ruffled curtains of taffeta with the day bed or "chaise longue" wearing the same ruffled material.

Printed linen has its own admirers and is pleasantly used to cover chair seats and backs for reed furniture. It seems to me a porch would somehow feel a new self-respect with a fresh set of reed furniture for its spring decoration. The array of pieces offered for selection is almost bewildering. There are tables of every size and for every use, there are large and small chairs, and even settees, those rather conservative members, have taken on new curves. I was especially pleased with a small reed table whose top of wood was a half moon shape. It could be so generally and unobtrusively useful. It could stand by the arm of a big cosy restful old chair, convenient for magazines for the languid reader, or snuggle up to the wall with only a vase of flowers to hold. A pair of these, one at either end of a long settee, are especially graceful for a formal treatment. Then there are reed desks, too, and rockers and oval tables and not-to-be-forgotten ferneries, everything, in fact, to make the old porch feel generally up to the spring.

Where one is possessed of a few lovely old Colonial things, with these as a basis one can construct quite successfully a Colonial dining-room. For instance, an old clock, a relic of our grandfather days, and some quaint old blue plates and some candlesticks—perhaps. Windsor chairs are the first necessity—these set about a gate legged table make a center for the room. Hook rugs are correct but very expensive. Rag rugs are equally appropriate and much more reasonable. The general effect of quaintness and age must be carefully watched lest modern things intrude, and spoil it.

The stores are showing sets of furniture for bedrooms, ranging from oak, walnut and mahogany to white sets in the painted woods. Colored painted bedroom furniture is new

ODD TAILORING IDEA EMBODIED IN NEW MODE

One of the attractive suits that illustrate the coming mode is shown herewith. It has a narrow skirt, hoisted a little at the back to give it the dragged-in appearance that opens over a vest of tached to the vest is a high muffled collar with ends crossing each other for $25.

Movies Have a Part in Establishment of Styles

SOME women study the fashion magazines to learn what are to be the new styles. Some spend their leisure hours before the display windows of the shops. But others see the movie heroine through live reels of emotions in trailing georgette negligees and backless evening gowns. Then they know several months in advance of any other fashion agency what stylish women are to wear during the next season.

Thus the stars of the movies help to introduce and to popularize new styles. It can't be stated positively that Elsie Ferguson is responsible for the silk negligees which in gauzy clouds of orchid and rose have flitted the shop windows during the last season. But it is certain she was thus attired in several popular films during last year, and that there was a good sale of these garments thereafter.

Sport Styles Popular. The shops are advertising that sport styles, which it was believed were a fad of a few months, are here again in greater numbers. Isn't it very possible that Marguerite Clark, who spent a movie summer as a farmerette in short skirts and sweaters and middie hats, has helped to fix the style?

Instances are known in which garments worn by a movie actor have created a demand for clothing made in the same fashion.

"Have you a pair of pumps like those worn by Marguerite Clark in her last film?" the movie-struck girl will ask the shoe clerk. If he cannot furnish what she wants he reports to the manufacturer, and within a few months a shoe of similar design to that worn by the star is adorning the feet of many a young girl in towns throughout the United States.

REAL "HAREM HEM" ON THIS NEW TOWNBLOUSE

Here is Elsie Janis in a Townblouse of cartridge silk, the refined army silk which is causing such a commotion among designers. The blouse is flesh color with collar and tight band cuffs of a deeper tone, and the particular feature is that the blouse has a "harem" hem. It turns under precisely in the manner of the Turkish skirts and then, in addition, has little let-in pockets lost in the folds at either side just below the French belt.

BAG AND BEAUTY BOX COLORFUL AND DAINTY

Dainty and colorful accessories, particularly in the line of fancy handbags and vanity cases, will vie closely for Milady's greatest favor with dresses and cloaks and all other pretty things the season has to offer during 1920.

Admiring and appreciative femininity for the entire year may run the gamut of fashion display, but nowhere are they apt to find that designers and makers of accessories have lagged a step behind the dress-makers and milliners. But, like Alice in Wonderland, fashion followers will be amazed, if not a little bewildered, by the variety and assortment.

There was a time when one handbag sufficed Milady for all occasions, but now one may be had for almost every event. In fact, they may be secured to match almost any dress or costume.

Brown Will Be Popular. This season's offering consists of many colors, including black, different shades of brown and navy blue. Brown in particular is in high favor. Silk bags for Spring and Summer predominate in the more exclusive models in the pouch bag.

Beautifully wrought frames of metal, many of the finer models being set with jewels, are unusually distinctive and among the season's most attractive models.

The more conservative, or covered frames, both with chain handles or fabric of the same material as the bag, also claim the favor of Dame Fashion.

Practically any shape of silk bag can be considered good form for street wear this season. It is noticeable also that the striking colors to be seen in dress fashions, especially the smart sport models, are reflected in the fabric bags. This is particularly true in the tapestry and brocade materials.

The vanity, or beauty boxes so popular last Fall, are to be in even greater favor this Spring and Summer. Unusually odd shapes have been added to last year's assortment, although the tendency toward square and oblong patterns in patent and vachette leathers. These, with their vanity fittings, dealers say, are really a bag for practical use.

In the silken bags on display is noted the tendency in many models to work in, in a limited way, designs of beads, but the Spring season differs from the Fall in that all over-beaded designs have given away to part beads.

Also, there is a noticeable tendency to return to the staple shapes in leather bags for street wear, and these are being shown by the leading shops in great array.

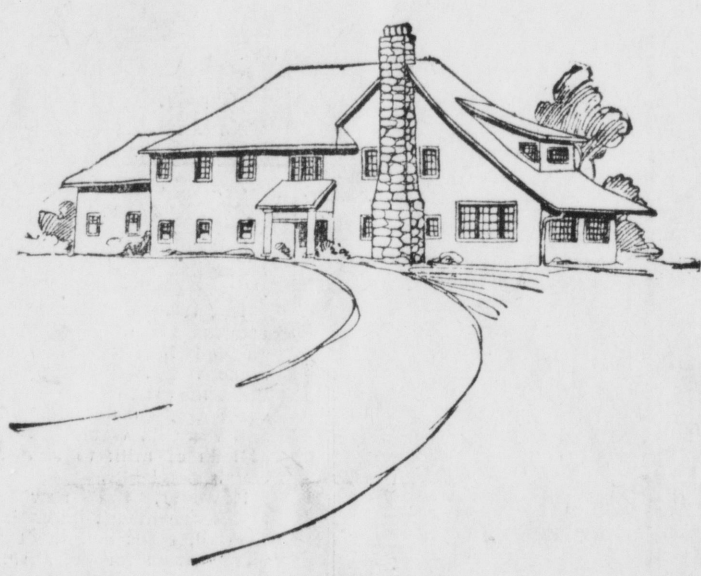

In flat pocketbooks, fashion apparently is in favor of increasing the size of the book, as larger models than usual are being displayed. This style of pocketbook continues in good taste, however, and may be secured in almost any size.

While the price of sealskin has materially advanced, the demand for staple styles of pocketbooks made of this material remains strong.

Mesh bags of metal still are decidedly popular and are offered this season in a wide range of design, including the quite new maize fashion.

Even luggage equipment has not been forgotten by the delineators of fashion. Traveling bags and suit cases are being shown in greater variety than ever before, while the new wardrobe trunks with their many conveniences and innovations truly may be said to meet all the exacting requirements of these modern times.

Spring Haberdashery Presents
New Notes in Wearing and Color Tones
by Bobby

Whether the designers of haberdashery are particularly prophetic or whether men will indulge with greater abandon in the still higher prices of haberdashery, is a question that this season will develop. Silk shirts at $18, $20 and $25 must be considered a luxury and the lavish use of these is problematical. For several years past, men have worn their silk shirts for business purposes as well as dress regardless of the fact that they do not stand the wear or the onslaughts of the laundry with the same resistance as the less costly shirt fabrics. But will they continue that practice with shirts at $20, or thereabouts, a throw?

The shirt makers seem to be playing safe. They seem to feel a strong doubt that with men, "price is no object." The Mrs. knows no restraint in her penchant to dress up the minute but men think twice when the purse is strenuously invaded for their apparel outlay.

So the shirt makers have gone a long way to meet the men who are more conservative in expenditure. To offset the real elegance of the silk shirt—its shimmering radiance, its soft richness and the impressive colorings that silk textures offer, there is launched for this Spring, an endless variety of novelty textures that evidence the glossiness of silk, very handsome pattern weaving and fabrics that are less costly and more durable.

Never before has such progress in the beautifying of fiber silks been offered as is evidenced in the Spring lines. Many of these shirts are so handsome that it takes a close examination to distinguish them from the pure silks.

You'll see a lot of these fine fiber silk and mercerized weaves worn by mighty well dressed men and you'll like them. Even such shirts will bring from $6 to $10 this Spring.

Then there are many other novelty weaves that will appeal in beauty of patterns, richness of cloths, durability and price moderation. These are fine madras cords, chambrays, oxfords, chevots, pop-lins and percales.

A very prominent note in men's shirt fashions for Spring are the madras and percale shirts with stiff collars to match. Broadway has taken to these with unmistakably favor and they really are exceedingly dressy.

Flannel shirts, too, are becoming more popular and the rich French and English cloths in these, are considered very smart.

In the silk shirts the baby broadcloths and Jersey knit weaves are the finest, most costly and most popular, as men find the lighter thread silks, taffetas, pongs and Jap silks are too fragile to warrant an expenditure of the prices they command.

In neckwear, prices, too, have taken a bound, but this is one item that men will indulge themselves with in order to get the richer and finer effects to be found in the more elegant silks. These ties are of imported silks and satins from Italy, Switzerland, France, England and the Far East.

The pattern effects in these, are in heavily woven cords, embroidered effects of printed floral and all-over designs.

Mogadors and grenadines are also very rich and tasty and present very smart pattern and color effects. Foulards in floral effects, conventional figures, and polka dots are good and will find many adherents among those who want the more moderate priced scarves. Knit and crocheted ties continue fashionable. These are in hand-framed effects with embroidered figures, cross bars or heather mixtures. Plain color knit ties are also very dressy in the darker tones of which plain black is considered exceedingly smart.

In hosiery there is not much in the way of novelty revealed. Very smart dressers who formerly felt that their social position or reputation for good dressing confined them to silk hose now find that the fine cashmeres, camels-hair and imported worsteds are highly fashionable and just as expensive as the silks.

These are in small two tones or heather mixture effects and solid colors.

There are not quite so many of the fine silk accordions and embroidered effects shown as in recent seasons but clocks of self or contrasting colors are still very smart.

In the plain silks and lises but few new colors are launched. Some of the more recent shades still hold over such as sand, mustard, oyster grey, Kelly and hunter's green, cocoa brown, cordovan and mahogany, champagne, burgundy and amethyst.

In gloves we still have the same popular finishes. Cape, Arabian-mocha, suede, buck and chamois in standard colors or off tones from these. Spear and embroidered backs are the only ornamentation with pearl buttons slightly favored over the old-time clasps.

Pajamas are still in plain or pattern effects of madras, percales, crepes, chambrays, soisette, fiber silks and pure silks in military models.

In stiff and soft collars, the new shapes are but slight variations of the old, with adequate variety to meet your personal taste. Some self-figured effects in white, stiff collars, are noted.

Underwear, belts, jewelry, handkerchiefs, and walking sticks present no radical changes for the season.

The increased importation of foreign hats since the war, has a great influence in the most dashing styling of men's hats than ever before. Not that our American hats have not been adequate to all requirements of quality and impressiveness, but the introduction of foreign hats seems to have whetted the desire for richer effects and the American designers have been quick to respond.

The hats from France, Italy, England and other foreign makers assert their attractions more from a standpoint of fabric elegance rather than from any novelty note in the styling. The hats employed are rich in color tones, soft in textures and lustrous in their silky finishes,

However, the novelty mixtures that are most popular are of our own domestic make and these have contributed much to the beautifying of men's hats.

There is not quite as much dash in the Spring shapes as heretofore. The keynote is more toward sedate proportions. In the soft hats as well as the derbies, it is noted that the brims are narrower and the crowns lower almost to a degree of squattiness because there is a decided "curl-up" to the brims that emphasize this effect.

The broad army, sombrero and cavalry effects are not as high in the vogue this season, but what the hats lack in dash is more than compensated for, in the texture tones.

Rich, solid colors in soft hats dominate the styles and next to these are the two-tone scratch mixture, silk finishes and blended mixtures. Beavers and velours are primarily fall and winter hats so but few are noticed in the Spring styles.

In the derbies the shapes are described above and but few colored derbies are shown. Some grays and tans are offered in Homburg shapes for older men.

Wool hats in patterned fabrics of tweeds and cassimeres are shown to some degree. These are in small patterns and heather mixtures. For the present, they are more popular abroad than over here and the best effects are of English make.

In caps, there is nothing radically new. The golf styles are more popular than the full crown effects of a year ago.

CAT, CANARY, FISH LIVING IN HARMONY

GENEVA, O., Mar. 9.—Mrs. Thad Tillery is believed to have three pets the strangest friends known. They are a gold-fish, a canary bird and a cat.

All three get along in perfect harmony and show deep regard for each other. Every time Mrs. Smith feeds the cat it saves a few crumbs for the bird which hops to the top of the goldfish bowl and tosses in a few to the fish. The favorite rest place of John, the canary bird is on the neck of Freddie, the cat.

All three friends seem to grieve that Pete, the goldfish, is unable to hop out of the bowl and gambol around on the floor with the other two.

Pete, however, swims around and around close to the glass sides of his prison, while John and Freddie play about, when the fish bowl is put on the floor.

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—One hundred and eight-six thousand towels were hemmed by hand and 48,000 aprons were made on sewing machines by blind women of Ohio during 1919, and were sold through the Ohio Commission for the Blind. In making aprons and towels alone, blind women of the state earned $22,800 during the year. These are only two of the 100 or more articles which were made. About $75,000 was received from the sale of articles made by blind women during the year. These sales have been made possible through the interest and co-operation of the club women.

Several blind women were employed as dictaphone operators, typists and telephone operators and several blind men were employed as salesmen.

New Styles Fitting To the Stout and Thin Alike

Are thin women or stout women going to be stylish this year? A thoughtless person might believe a woman will be as stylish as she can with her natural equipment.

But it is a fact that in some seasons the stout women might as well hibernate for a while, since the styles are none of them meant for her. Again, the stout woman has her innings, and the thin woman is drinking gallons of milk to add the fat which she lacks.

However, the new Spring styles are meant impartially for the tall, stout and the tall, thin woman, and for the short, stout and the short, thin woman. Let the woman of any figure look in her glass and rejoice that this year she is in the style.

It is merely a question of a choice of what is most becoming to the individual figure. Blouses, suits, dresses, are many of them made in straight-line effects. If the stout woman were a maker of styles, she could hardly select for this season's wear anything more becoming to her particular figure.

This does not mean, though, the woman of angular appearance must reveal her angles in all of the shapes. On the other page of the fashion books and in another style window of the shop are the styles which lend curves to her angles. Ruffles and draperies that the stout woman must avoid are here in plenty for the thin woman.

No woman, then, has to go into retirement for a season to wait the styles that suit her. The stout are made thing and the thin are made stout by this season's styles. Thus are all women rendered equal, and the world is safe for democracy in dress.

Jaunty Coat Made In Sport Style Will Prove Popular

The popular jaunty trotteur coat designed on the style of a loose sports coat answers most general purposes for street wear with either morning or afternoon semi-tailored frocks of tulle or duvetyne. With this season's very dressy kinds of afternoon gowns for card parties, luncheons, receptions and the like, one who rides to and from her destination wears some sort of a cape-wrap that is loose or voluminous. Such garments are made of soft fleecy duvetyne in brown, ox blood red, green, etc. with fur trimming, or in velvet, or entirely of fur. Another type of dressy outer garment is made on coat lines with sleeves, for wear if one walks to and from the scene of an afternoon's engagement.

For extremely smart semi-sports occasions, week-end visits and traveling, Paris is reveling in coats made of gay plaid woollens. Such coats have loose body parts and often kimono or raglan shoulders and a self belt. Coat-dresses are shown also in these gay novelty woollens. Copper with blue and black, and green with white and blue are some of the striking colorings.

For opera and theatre wear, the most gorgeous and brilliant wraps of metal brocades, satins, and fur are designed in original shapes, difficult to decipher as to cut, but wonderfully effective on the wearers. Cloth of gold veiled with rose chiffon forms the lining to one of these elaborate creations.

Woman's Fancy Turns to Thoughts of SPRING

The Blue Bird Harbinger of Spring IS HERE

A MESSAGE OF CHEER AND FREEDOM FOR WOMEN

In all the world there is no institution so great as the home. And woman makes the home.

Thousands of women now see and experience only the brighter side of home life. They are the women who take advantage of the wonderful labor-saving helps which modern science has provided for the home. In such homes the irksome tasks, the disagreeable duties connected with conducting a household are handled in a way as to require scarcely more than a passing thought.

Children are always cheery in these happy homes for mother has hours of spare time and they come to know and understand her.

Husbands, too, are contented and comforted in these well managed homes. Because they are speeded to business with an inspiring smile, always there is a joyous greeting awaiting their return. The true delights of domestic happiness are there.

All this, and more—much more—comes into the house with

Is It Vanity That Makes Silk Stockings Popular

IF MOTHER EVE should return today to the Garden of Eden and find all of the season's flowers for trimming of hats had been wilted, she might be vexed, but if the little silk worms had not been busy and stored up enough of their work so she could spin a pair of silk stockings, she would be angry—downright angry and give Adam some mighty unhappy moments.

For this little old world has advanced to the state where milady, old or young, demands her silk hosiery. She may be content to trim over last year's hat, make over her old suit and even wear run-down shoes, but she must have silk stockings.

That they are very common, one must admit. These days of the short skirts allow the evidence to show, in some instances, just a wee bit, and in other cases considerably.

Cotton Stockings Deserted.
So popular has silk hosiery become that the cotton stockings, which are being crowded back on the shelf, may be heard to inquire in a plaintive voice:

"Why is the silk stocking, and why am I being deserted?"

A survey of the subject seems to indicate the lowly cotton stocking has cause for its wail but on the other hand it merely is feeling the rebuff occasioned by a world of progress. The evolution of the stocking proves this. The ancients felt no need for stockings, but during the Middle Ages, perhaps it was one of the keenest fashion designers, who had a big lot of hides on hand and wanted to dispose of them, hit on the idea of stockings. And so the first stockings were mere wrappings of hides about the legs. While history fails to record these facts, it is very likely the women used to vie with one another in an effort to procure the finest hides.

But as time progressed, the wrappings gave way to coarse cloth fashioned into the modern day stockings. And as the years have passed, better stockings have been made, and today we have the silk craze. And the cotton stockings inquire "why." Let the fair women answer, and the reader decide whether it is vanity or fancy.

Young Woman Explains "Why."
One young woman, who confesses many years have passed since she wore her last cotton stockings, confesses to many reasons why she always demands silk hosiery. And vanity creeps in quite plainly. She says:

"In the first place silk stockings fit better, feel better and wear better. And of course they look better."

"Woman is a vain creature and naturally wants to look as nice as she can. Naturally she prefers silk hosiery to cotton. Now, in these days of the short skirts, it is more essential than ever that we wear silk stockings to look our best."

"And so long as you men will look, and we know that you do when we get on and off street cars, we want to look well dressed. Silk stockings help us do so."

Others Disagree.
All women do not agree with this first witness. Some of them claim the thought of how they look does not enter their minds.

"Silk stockings wear better and feel better and that is why we wear them," they say.

Another young woman says: "A woman is not well dressed unless she has on silk stockings. Silk stockings, good shoes and a pretty hat are the most essential parts of a woman's dress."

And another one says that a new dress offsets all the rest.

TOILETTE PARLORS ARE WELL EQUIPPED

During years of business experience in hairdressing and kindred branches, at another address in this city, the Turner sisters, Etta D. Turner and Nell Turner, of the Turner Toilette Parlors, have succeeded in building up a large clientele on a foundation of absolute confidence. They are now equipped to meet the requirements of the women of Santa Ana more than ever before and are justly proud of their new establishment which is one of the most complete and beautifully sanitary in its class in the west.

Many letters have even been received from firms in the far east asking for plans and descriptions of this establishment.

When you enter the front door of the building you find yourself in a pretty reception room furnished in gray wicker. The walls are white throughout the building, the woodwork in white enamel.

There are six hairdressing booths with built-in dressers of white enamel, three shampoo booths equipped with porcelain fixtures, two booths fitted up for the facial massage, three booths equipped with the violet ray electric machines for scalp treatment, an electrolysis department and the newest machine for the permanent hair curl. A specialty is also made of the cutting of children's hair and manicuring.

In addition to all these departments for the promotion of beauty, there is a completely equipped department for the giving of vapor baths and all the Swedish massage treatments with a thoroughly competent graduate in this line of work, in charge. Electric baths are also given, in fact, the department is equipped to give you any kind of treatment you may wish.

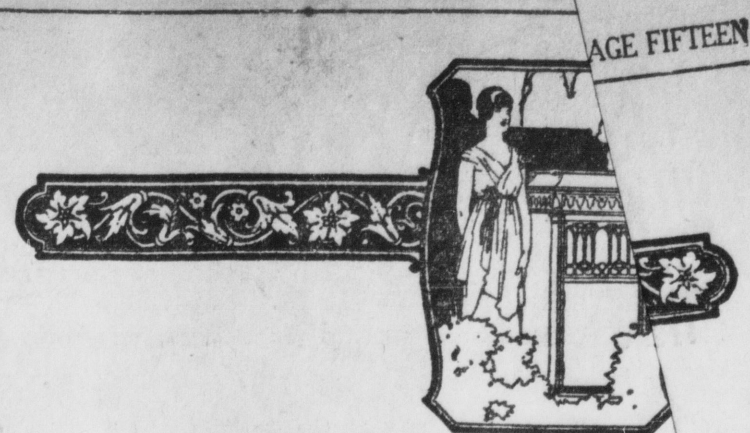

The establishment in its entirety, is decidedly beautiful.

R & G Corsets Make the Mature Figure Youthful

Age has nothing to do with slender, graceful lines. Your corset determines whether your figure will have the appearance of youth or age. There is as much difference in corsets as there is in people. R & G Corsets have been designed by experts to accentuate every youthful line and to suppress any suggestion of maturity in the figure.

R & G Corsets

Be sure to ask for the new styles of R & G Corsets. In them you will find the same careful workmanship, clever designing and good materials that have made them famous for nearly 40 years. The only difference is in the cut—a bias seam here—an elastic insert there—a skilfully placed band and a clever bit of tailoring.

The Sunroom In All Its Importance

Marjorie Howe Dixon

The tiny sunroom is equally as desirable, although in a different way as the more ambitious one. It is a resting place, where the tired housewife may spend a few pleasant moments with her sewing, reading or writing, and where the child or invalid may have his daily sunbath, so health giving and spirit raising.

The first thing to consider is of course the background of the room, and in order that the stream of sunlight on the gaily-hued fabrics and furnishings may not seem too garish, the walls, ceiling and floor should be kept in neutral tones. For the sunroom with only one or two sides open to the light, rough plaster, with or without a wainscot and a ceiling covered with painted lattice, that recalls to one's mind the old-fashioned latched summer house of a by-gone day. In the construction of any sunroom, large or small, the brick or tiled floor is almost a necessity, if one is to have growing things there, which have to be showered frequently. Though the fireplace is not a necessary feature, what extends a more glowing welcome to the casual guest than a blazing open fire? Not only in winter, but in early spring it is most pleasant and cheery.

The furnishings of the room is one of the most fascinating experiences that may fall to the lot of woman. The furniture must be suitable and desirable, although in a different way at the same time decorative. Wilow is very attractive and the roomy, luxurious chairs and couches are most comfortable. It invites and justifies the use of striking fabrics for cushions and upholstery, and is easily painted or stained in harmony with any color scheme. The flexibility and open texture of such furniture permits its use in decorative and unusual forms.

Painted furniture may also be used as appropriately in the sunroom as it can on the outside porch or lawn and carries with it a breezy suggestion of outdoors. Its color should be fresh and somewhat different, for the room of perpetual summer has no place for subdued harmonies.

Curtains of soft sunproof material should be arranged so that they may be drawn whenever desirable. The cool watery gray greens and green blues in solid colors are very lovely, if there are abundant gray blossoms and plenty of greenery. Cretonne or chintz is very often preferred, and is usually decorative, especially if ferns and foliage plants are the only growing things. Although the choice of a floor covering has to be considered it is an easy matter. In summer or where the floor is in itself decorative it can be left bare, but in any climate at any season a few rugs spread about add to the attractiveness of a sunroom. Where there is a wish to create an out-door atmosphere rag rugs or porch rugs of grass or rush may be used.

What shall be the selection of plants for both permanent inhabitants and "transients"? Of the former, if there is abundant room, large ornamental ferns are ideal, especially if growing in hanging baskets. Primrose, also in baskets in the windows, are delightful. "Wandering Jew" is a standby, since it will grow in water in any dark corner, where nothing else will flourish.

After the sunroom has been well established, its tiled floors spread with a cheerful rug or two; furnished with appropriate, comfortable and decorative furniture; soft hangings, harmoniously graceful, and baskets, tables and shelves turned into a veritable garden of growing greenery and bright flowers, its cheery invitation will prove irresistible.

CELOPHANE HATS NEW.

Though celophane hats, which come in black, brown and navy (mostly black), are an important thing in the spring season, they will in no wise supplant the bright colors which have enlivened the dull gray months of winter. They bid fair to burst forth in even greater glory.

Comfortably Short Walking Skirt Is Here to Stay

Though evening skirts are noticeably longer, street dresses and suit skirts are short. The ridiculously extreme short skirt worn in Paris has grown three or four inches longer, and the fact that shoes are made with tops either eight and one-half or nine inches high, is another rather likely assurance that the comfortably short walking skirt will prevail.

This season's effort to launch circular or bell shape skirts did not meet with pronounced success, but the intimation that skirts of this character will come in, sooner or later, should not be overlooked in coming months. A modification of the idea is had in a Paquin skirt with front and back panel breadths, and sides of which are straight, but braided with narrow gold galleon to suggest the flaring appearance. Skirts that are medium in width without flaring are liked best by French women just now. Many skirts have pleated side panels joining the long waist at the hip line.

Suits, and some street dresses are featuring the Eton jacket style. In serge or tricotine, there have been a few models of distinctive appeal. One-piece dresses, so called, lend themselves to the Eton idea, and allow a comfortable upper part. Save in evening gowns, there is no very decided tendency to fitted waists. The overskirts continue to give extra fullness to scant underskirts, while preserving the straight lines so universally admired by American women.

ORIENTAL NOTE IS DOMINATING FEATURE

One might say that a reaction is setting in against the startling extremes of décolleté bodices and bouffant skirts. The trend is toward more conservative ideas and yet emphasizing elegance and individuality.

The Oriental note is dominant in the color schemes as well as in designs themselves. As for the latter, there are numerous instances of the concurrent use of the culotte effect in skirts.

Trousers as such, are not offered, but rather the idea of the draped and looped under skirt, overskirt or panels is noticeable in street and indoor models. It lends itself admirably to soft clinging materials that may be combined with satins or stiff silks; and, to the eye of the initiated, it seems to cover the transition from narrow to fuller skirts.

Side panels gathered at the belt depend in graceful long lines and are turned under at the hem of the skirt, leaving the looped parts longer than the skirt itself. To correspond with this effect, many waists are bloused and the girdles or belts are placed below the normal waistline. Still another Oriental inspiration is apparent in the use of kimono sleeves and waists, with interesting variations for special uses.

Egyptian tendencies are making themselves felt in fancy ornaments for neck and arms. Egyptian beads also are used in handbag frames.

"TROT ALONG" BASKET NEW AID TO

LONDON, March 9.—A quaint and unusual shopping basket on wheels has made its appearance in London. It is called the "Trot Along" and is pushed or pulled with the aid of a walking cane for a handle. A child can easily trundle it even with a heavy parcel in it.

WICK EFFECTS FOR PETTICOATS IN USE

Wick effects continue good for petticoats. A brown chiffon num- is draped over orange, with silk design, and a model in silk sey has a brown design worked in orange.

Of jerseys, too, and for smart ports use, are petticoats made of alternating white and colored vertical stripes of jersey. Green and white, and blue and white are two of the combinations shown. Some pink satin petticoats, with simple tucks for trimming, have rows of tailored bows at one side of the flounce.

Among the petticoats for street wear, there are some of satin Fran- cian in changeable effects, one of these showing a tabbed hem. Others, especially those of jersey, have pointed hems. One jersey petti- coat has two rows of trimming, each one of which consists of four or five-inch black fringe, cut into pieces about three inches wide and attached to the petticoat with a strip of black satin ribbon. Tied fringe appears, too, in a rich looking petti- coat, not at the bottom of the hem, but set over the jersey. A Havana brown model is slit up quite far at the side and laced together with cords.

POWDER PUFF USE BY CO-EDS HIT BY BOYS

DENVER, Colo., Mar. 8.—Now come the boy students of Denver's South Side high school to put a crimp in the prosperity of Denver beauty shops.

Recently Miss Anne McKean Shuler, woman dean of the University of Denver, issued a ukase forbidding the co-eds at that institution using powder puffs. Miss Shuler declared that a beautiful new rug that adorned the floor in front of a large mirror in the women's study at the university was becoming "horribly ragged" because so many girl students fingered in front of the mirror to use their powder puffs. Also she said, men students breezing through the corridor can see the undignified performance.

At a meeting of the Mothers' Congress and Parent-Teacher Association a report was read from the boys of South Denver high school denouncing the follies of girl students who "dell themselves up" in drug-store complexions, and issuing a warning that youthful schoolgirls who appear in classroom attired like chorus beauties will be ostracized from social functions.

BLUEBIRD BLUE FINDS APPROVAL IN NECKWEAR

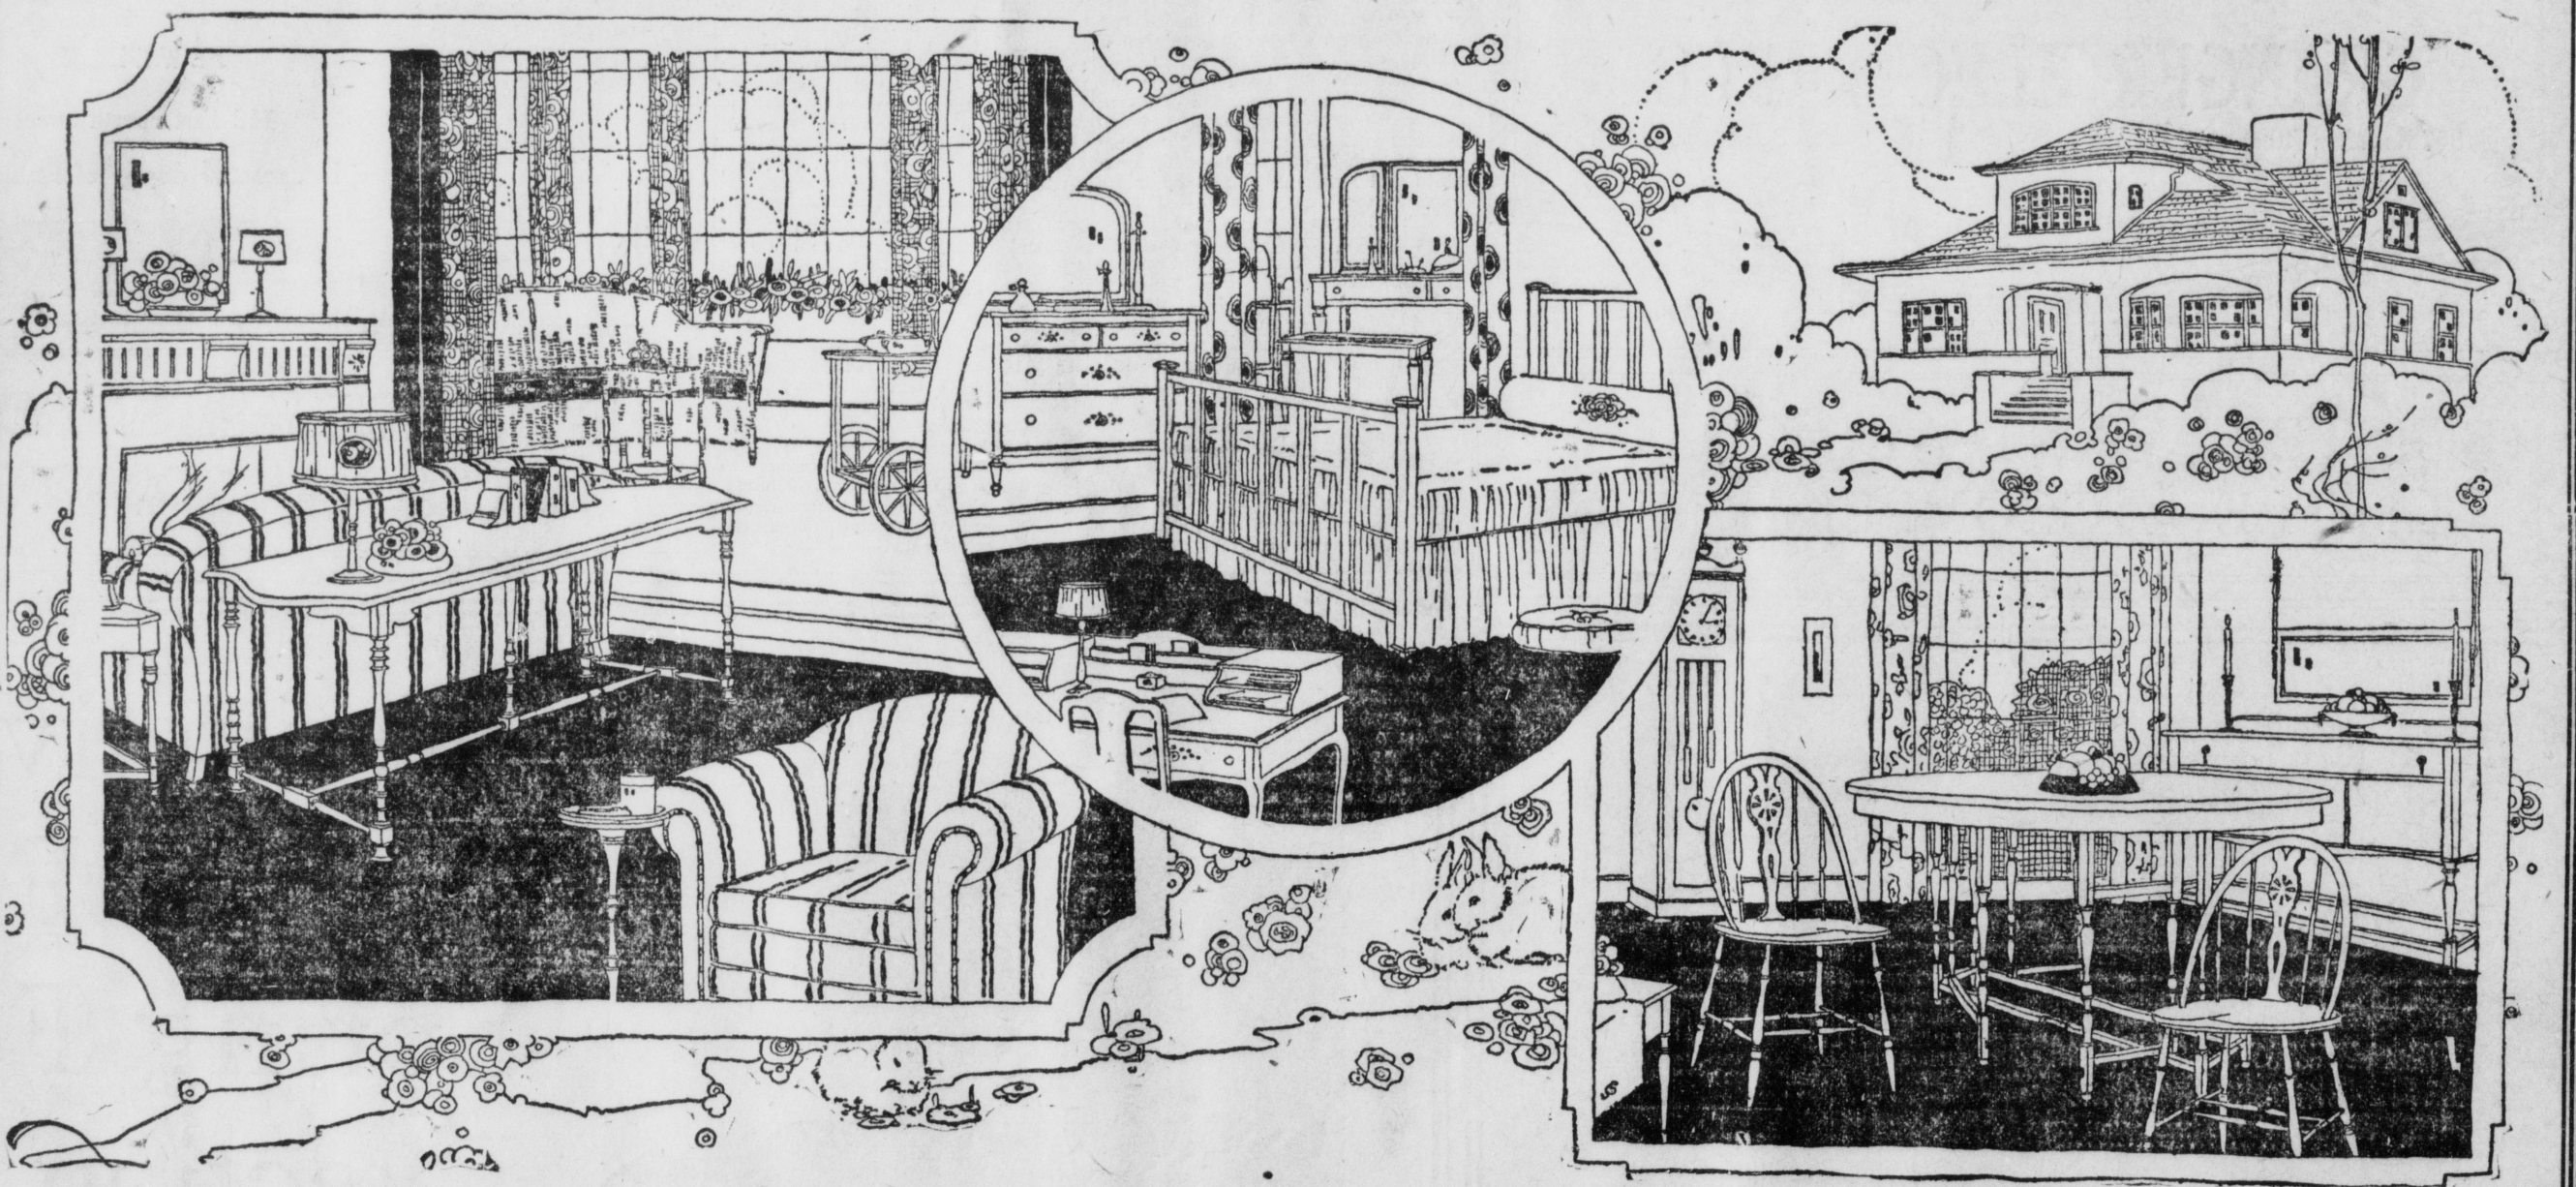

The favorite of the hour in the women's neckwear field is bluebird blue neckwear. It is being featured in practically all of the more prominent stores throughout the country.

Organly is the favorite material for use in this exquisite shade. Organly collars in the new narrow, rolling styles for wear with the tailor-made are freely shown, as are also a multitude of small short collars for the ornamentation of dresses.

Various shades of cream, honey and biscuit are shown, as well as peach blossom pink and a dainty lavender. A display of these new colored novelties certainly provides a spring-like appearance to any neckwear department.

A pretty sleeveless blouse of georgette crepe has eyelets in both front and back, under the arms, and is laced with a silk cord.

Making Your House A Home

Are You Entirely Satisfied With Your Home Arrangement?

Of course there are a few of us who can send for an interior decorator and say to him: "You know I really think we need new house furnishings throughout. I have a few preferences, for instance I want the dining room in Jacobean, my bedroom in Louis XIV and the living room in William and Mary period. Other than that I leave it to you."

But only a few of us are that fortunate. A great majority of us have to make a limited amount go the whole way and must study each room carefully as well as each purchase, that the combination may give us the maximum of utility and beauty.

And when it comes to meeting those problems, that's where this store comes in with it's excellent service. We do not want merely to sell you furniture. We hope to help you with your plans and assist you in spending your money wisely. This service follows the furniture into your home.

With the coming of Spring and the awakening of the flowers and the arrival of the birds there comes a demand for quite a whole-sale renewal of the house furnishings. The careful housewife plans the wardrobe for the home with the same thought that she gives to the Spring millinery and costume.

The wide, loungy, overstuffed pieces make an attractive grouping, with a floor lamp in the right place and perhaps a foot stool or two to make the reader more comfortable. We have a wonderful showing of smart furnishings for the living room and dining room.

We are also showing entirely new sets for the bedroom in oak, walnut, mahogany and ivory. Much of this is copied from the old period pieces.

For the hall and library and for every room in the house we have pieces that are new and beautiful and there is a service that goes with it all that you will find truly gratifying. We invite you to come and see.
